IN THE President's message there isn't a word about the world court. That's as dead, in the United States, as little Lucy Gray after she started on her trip with the lantern.

THE President's mind is on the farmers. He wants Muscle Shoals developed to produce cheap fertilizer, and the federal agricultural agencies made stronger and wider.

GENTLEMEN planning to run for president on a wet Democratic ticket will be met by the President more than half way, although he doesn't mention them, or the presidency. He intends to enforce prohibition legislation, and favors adequate financing of enforcement.

WARNED by our recent coal troubles and by England's industrial strike calamity, the President wants legislation that will put our coal supply beyond the reach of owners and workers' fights.

THE President wants adequate military and naval preparedness. Everybody knows that an adequate air fleet is included in his program. Pray that the country may have such a fleet in the air, not merely on paper.

THE President wants congress to [illegible] appropriate, at one session, enough money to build [illegible] years. This would allow congressmen to think about legislation instead of about money at least half the time. Congress won't like that. Money is the biggest club that a legislator can swing.

33 OTHER MEN ARE BROUGHT UP ALIVE; 17 BADLY BURNED

RESCUERS BUSY

Imprisoned Workers are 286 Feet Below Surface.

FRANCISCO, Ind., Dec. 9.—Thirty-six men remained in mine No. 2 of the Francisco Coal Mining company here at 10:30 a. m. today following a dust explosion while the day shift was going down into the pit.

Thirty-three men have been brought up alive. Of these 17 were seriously burned and have been rushed to the Methodist hospital at Princeton, Ind.

Fate of Entombed Uncertain.

The fate of the 36 entombed men was not definitely ascertained although reports were current that a number of them were dead.

Rescue crews were working feverishly to reach the men who are said to be 286 feet below the surface.

J. R. Henderson, manager of the mine, expressed confidence that most of the entombed miners would be rescued in a few hours, although he admitted no one knew the extent of the cave-in.

"There are 125 competent rescue workers mobilized for the rescue work," Henderson said. "We are sending down rescue gangs in shifts of 25 men.

The first body of a victim to be recovered from the mine was that of W. T. Bird, 58, who was killed instantly. Bird was survived by a widow and two children.

Plan Organization Beagle Club at Meeting Tonight

Steps to organize a Beagle club, membership of which will include Beagle dog owners and hunters, will be taken at a meeting to be held in the Carmarda garage building, West Fifth street, at 8 o'clock tonight.

Edwin Wells, jr., Newell, W. W. Beatty and Michael Carmarda, of East Liverpool, are sponsors of the club which will probably be affiliated with the national beagle organization. Four other clubs have been formed in the state of Ohio.

A field trial in which scores of dogs are expected to be entered, will probably be held next fall.

All dog owners and others interested in hunting are invited to attend tonight's meeting.

COUNT SALM'S SUIT POSTPONED

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—The separation suit brought by Count Ludwig Salm against his wife, the former Millicent Rogers, today was postponed until January 17 after the count's attorney had requested time in which to obtain witnesses who he said would testify to Salm's ability to support a family.

WELLSVILLE POLICE CHIEF IS "FIRED"

12 Talesmen Tentatively Seated In McDermott Trial

Prosecutor Has Exercised Last of Its Peremptory Challenges—Defense Has Six Left.

BY PAUL E. BROKAW.

COURT HOUSE, CANTON, O., Dec. 9.—With the state's right to peremptorily challenge potential jurors in the murder trial of Patrick E. McDermott exhausted, 12 talesmen were tentatively seated when court recessed this afternoon.

The prosecution had exercised the last of its authorized four challenges and the defense had six of its original sixteen left.

McDermott, a little wiry fellow with a sloping forehead and semi-receding chin, has displayed an amazing shrewdness in sizing up those who have been called to qualify as his jurors.

On one occasion, after a juror had been tentatively seated, he remarked to Homer Durand, one of his lawyers, that he thought the man was a "Ku Kluxer."

The man, Otto Black, was recalled to the witness chair.

Upon being questioned he admitted that he "had been a member of the Klan, but was now back in his dues."

Attorney Durand exercised the right of peremptory challenge and the man was dismissed.

Skirmishes Between Lawyers.

Skirmishes between opposing counsel over various questions directed at jurors by the defense in an effort to bring out more about their avowed "personal opinions on the case," featured the morning session of the court and gave promise of more wordy spectacles to come.

Prosecutor McClintock won out in some of these preliminary bickerings, for the court tentatively seated two potential jurors over the objection of defense counsel, thus forcing them to resort to the peremptory challenge if they desire the jurors excused.

When court opened this afternoon there were seven men and five women in the jury box.

CHEST CLINIC WILL BE HELD HERE TUESDAY BY STATE HEALTH OFFICIALS

Youngstown and Mt. Vernon Physicians Volunteer Services for Diagnostic Meet at First Baptist Church.

Plans were completed today for the diagnostic chest clinic which will be conducted at the First Baptist church next Tuesday under joint auspices of the state department of health, local health board and the Ohio State Medical association.

Drs. E. E. Kirkwood of the Mahoning county sanatorium, Youngstown, and F. C. Anderson, of Mt. Vernon sanatorium have volunteered their services as specialists. These physicians have devoted years of study to diseases of the chest and are recognized authorities on tuberculosis.

Dr. John A. Fraser, health commissioner, and Mrs. R. H. Leeper, public health nurse, are arranging for the clinic for the benefit of tuberculosis patients.

FOUR JAGS PER CAPITA POSSIBLE FROM LIQUOR STOCKS IN U. S.

715 Coast Guard Members Convicted Of Liquor Plots

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9.—Conspiracies with rum runners and other serious offenses led to the conviction by general courtmartial of 715 members of the U. S. coast guard in the year ending June 30, according to the annual report of that service made public today.

Out of 727 coast guardsmen placed before general courts only 12 were acquitted. Prison sentences were inflicted upon 112 men and 240 were dishonorably discharged.

Two Quarts of Intoxicants in Official Warehouses for Every Man, Woman and Child, Report Shows.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9.—Every man, woman and child in the United States could have two quarts of intoxicating liquors, all the way from sparkling champagne to industrial alcohol, if the stocks on hand June 30, were equitably distributed. If a pint produces intoxication that means four jags per capita.

Liquor stocks, including a small quantity of left-over denatured alcohol, in official warehouses amounted to 56,958,637 gallons, according to the annual report of Commissioner of Internal Revenue D. H. Blair, issued today.

Rum, 289,344 gallons.
Gin, 802,433 gallons.
Brandy, 1,133,000 gallons.
High wines, 336 gallons.
Alcohol, 467,560 gallons.
Wine, 23,383,000 gallons.
Industrial alcohol 5,743,000 gallons.

Six Prohibition Agents Killed.

Included in production of alcoholics for the year were 894,000 gallons of rum, 644,000 gallons of brandy and 202,271,000 gallons of industrial alcohol. Production of industrial alcohol

SOCIETY WOMAN LEAPS TO DEATH

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—Mrs. Louise Hewitt, 25-year-old daughter of William J. Schiefflin, wealthy retired druggist and prominent in the younger society set, committed suicide today by leaping from the window of her sixth story apartment. She had been suffering from a nervous breakdown, police were told.

Mrs. Hewitt was a descendant of Commodore Cornelius Vanderbilt and of John Jay, first chief justice of the United States. Her husband is a great grandson of Peter Cooper, founder of Cooper Union, and a grandson of the late Mayor Hewitt of New York.

POLICE RAID HOTEL, SEIZE PUNCHBOARDS IN POOL ROOMS

WHISKY FOUND

McKinley Hotel Lessee Pays $100 on Rum Charge.

Eight men, seven charged with having punch boards in their possession and one with a dry law violation, were arrested late yesterday afternoon by police in series of gambling and liquor raids on pool rooms, hotels, confectioneries and other places.

Fines of $50 and costs each were assessed by Municipal Judge Hanley against seven pool room owners, one of whom was charged with violations in two establishments. R. H. Canady, lessee of the McKinley hotel, was fined $100 and costs for illegal possession of intoxicating liquors.

Those held on gambling charges were: James Kapoff, proprietor of the Academy pool room, East Fifth street and the Unique pool room, East Sixth street; Ira Riebel, proprietor of the Madison pool room, Mulberry street; John McLaughlin, operator of the Liberty pool room in the Diamond; Chris Anas, proprietor of the National pool room, East Sixth stret; Charles Patterson, Mulberry street; William Kane, Mulberry street and John Davis, proprietor of the Grand pool room in the Diamond. Punch boards were found in each place.

The American pool room, East Sixth street, and the Diamond pool room in the Diamond were also visited, but no punch boards or gambling devices of any kind were found. Several confectioneries and grocery stores were also searched, but there was no evidence of games of chance.

At the McKinley hotel, Second street, the police found a half pint of liquor in a dresser drawer. Four women and two men, who claimed to be from Canton, were found in the hotel and ordered out of town. A charge of keeping a disorderly house, which was filed against Canady, was dismissed after he produced his hotel register.

The raid started shortly after 2

Theatre Manager Gets Court Order On Shed Removal

A temporary injunction, restraining the city of East Liverpool from removing a shed, covering an outside stairway adjoining the American theatre in Diamond alley, was granted Angel Alix, assistant manager of the playhouse, in common pleas court at Lisbon today. The injunction notice was served on Mayor Ralph Benedum at noon.

The city notified the lessee of the theatre recently that the shed was to be removed and an iron grating placed over the stairway. The Potters Lumber company was to have started work this afternoon when the injunction was served.

RAIDER SAYS HE FOUND SMALL QUANTITY OF LIQUOR IN STORE

Suspected Grocer is Said to Have Been Released Upon Executive's Order Before Officer is Notified That He Has Been Ousted for Second Time in Nine Months.

Chief of Police John Fultz, of Wellsville, "fired" early this year by Mayor W. L. Fogo, and later re-instated by a decision in common pleas court at Lisbon, again was dismissed as head of the police department by the mayor, it was reported, following an alleged dispute in police headquarters shortly before noon today.

The action of the mayor, it is said, followed the arrest of James Pugia, Twelfth street grocery store owner, by Fultz last night on a charge of possessing intoxicating liquor.

Fultz asserts he found a quantity of liquor in a pint bottle at the Pugia store and Pugia was ordered in for a hearing at 11 o'clock this morning.

Pugia, according to reports, was dismissed by Mayor Fogo, and Fultz was "fired" from his post as police head.

Pugia In Court.

When Pugia was ordered in police headquarters before Mayor Fogo this morning, the latter, it is reported, asked for the evidence.

Pugia then, it is claimed, declared: "there wasn't that much in that bottle last night."

Mayor Fogo then, it is alleged, said to Pugia, "You're dismissed."

The evidence, in the pint bottle, left sitting on a nearby desk, was picked up by Fultz and put in his pocket despite objections, it is said, of Mayor Fogo.

Turning to Fultz, according to reports, he said to the police officer: "You're done, your authority is through.

Demands Written Notice.

The police chief demanded written notice of dismissal with the reasons for his dismissal.

The mayor is said to told Fultz that he "would do that after while."

Fultz asserted at 2 p. m. that he is still working as chief of police.

The mayor, it is claimed, charged Fultz with having arrested persons who testified against him in his removal trial.

Fultz asserted to the mayor that he would arrest anyone, if provided with names.

Newspapermen's efforts to reach Mayor Fogo following the clash were in vain.

Decision of the appellate court in the first dimissal case, carried up by the city, is expected at Steubenville next week.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9.—President Coolidge today renominated Hywell Davies of California as a member of the United States board of mediation for a five-year term.

Akron Man Held On Murder Charge When Wife Dies

AKRON, O., Dec. 9.—Irvin Reese, 37, is held on a first degree murder charge here today, following the death of his wife, Mrs. Viola Reese, from wounds inflicted, it is alleged, by Reese Sunday night, as the woman was leaving Wesley Temple Methodist church.

The shooting, according to officers, climaxed a domestic quarrel. Mrs. Reese was shot near the door of the church as she emerged after attending the Sunday night services.

Six Persons Die When Caught in Blizzard in Spain

MADRID, Dec. 9.—Two women and four children belonging to a band of gypsies lost their lives today when the tribe was caught in the mountains near Cuenca by a blinding blizzard. Unable to find shelter, they were frozen to death.

DU PONT URGES SUPER HIGHWAY

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9.—A super highway, stretching from coast to coast, was proposed today by Senator DuPont (R) of Delaware.

The highway would pass through municipalities of less than 2,500 populations, strictly avoiding the "big towns," Leasing of the unused portions of a 500-foot wide right of way, set aside for future needs of military and post roads, would pay for the construction.

GENERAL WARE INDUSTRY ON UPGRADE IN FALL, BUT TREAD OF POTTING BUSINESS FOR NEXT YEAR IS ON KNEES OF GODS, SAYS W. E. WELLS

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—The general ware industry "as a whole was on the up grade, at least during the fall" but "the trend of the domestic potting business for the next year is on the knees of the gods" W. E. Wells, secretary-treasurer of the Homer Laughlin China company and chairman of the labor committee of the United States Potters' association told members of the association at their annual meeting which closed yesterday at the Waldorf-Astoria hotel.

"It must be apparent to all observers that the distribution of our products is in a transition stage," the report says further. "The older avenues and methods are yielding to the newer. Almost anything may happen at any time. Predictions for 1927 are little more than idle speculation."

The report of the committee, touching upon labor conditions in the general ware industry during the past year, briefly reviewed the negotiations between the National Brotherhood of Operative potters and the manufacturers with regard to the two-year wage scale which became effective October 1.

"The year 1926 has been at least as free from labor controversies of major importance as any other year," the report says. "It has been a year distinguished by the smooth working of the wage agreement."

The complete reports follows:

Peace in Industry.

"A scarcity of material from which to construct a labor report is a fortunate condition, as indicating that comparative peace has prevailed throughout the current year, but it is unfortunate in reflecting some degree of unemployment. That condition has obtained since the last report of your committee was submitted. The year 1926 has been at least as free from labor controversies of major importance as any other year of the long period during which we have dealt with the brotherhood in recognition of their equal right to a voice in wage adjustments. It has been a year distinguished by the smooth working of the wage agreement. The labor committee has not been called upon to function in any emergency. Its only activity was that of participating in the formality of negotiating a new agreement to supersede the one expiring on October first last.

"The annual convention of the brotherhood was held as usual at Atlantic City early in July. The discussions throughout the sessions, extending for more than a week, were largely devoted to the long list of proposals submitted by the various locals for increased wage rates and easier working conditions, which they hoped to have embodied in the new agreement.

"It may be assumed the officers of the brotherhood and other conservative delegates realized that trade conditions did not warrant a wage advance in any department, and that it would be futile to present demands of that character to our association. Consequently, it was currently reported that many of the more extreme proposals were rejected by their general price list committee, or on the floor of the convention. Nevertheless, the rank and file of the delegates succeeded in having passed twenty-three propositions, some of which were harmless, and others quite radical. These propositions were presented, in the usual printed form, to our association on July 19. A copy of the brotherhood communication will be made a part of the permanent records of the association.

Wage Scale Discussions.

The labor committee discussed the situation at a meeting held at the office of the chairman on July 23, concluding unanimously that any concession that would increase payrolls was out of order, and that all proposals seeking such concessions should be denied. The committee also considered the suggestion of some of our members that a demand be made for a wage reduction in some of the higher paid departments. Such action appeared to be warranted by the fact that our selling prices on leading staples had been forced down to the point of cost, or below, by aggressive competition on foreign goods. Even upon this basis, many of the potteries were short of business. There was

RAIDER SAYS HE FOUND SMALL QUANTITY OF LIQUOR IN STORE

Suspected Grocer is Said to Have Been Released Upon Executive's Order Before Officer is Notified That He Has Been Ousted for Second Time in Nine Months.

Chief of Police John Fultz, of Wellsville, "fired" early this year by Mayor W. L. Fogo, and later re-instated by a decision in common pleas court at Lisbon, again was dismissed as head of the police department by the mayor, it was reported, following an alleged dispute in police headquarters shortly before noon today.

The action of the mayor, it is said, followed the arrest of James Pugia, Twelfth street grocery store owner, by Fultz last night on a charge of possessing intoxicating liquor.

Fultz asserts he found a quantity of liquor in a pint bottle at the Pugia store and Pugia was ordered in for a hearing at 11 o'clock this morning.

Pugia, according to reports, was dismissed by Mayor Fogo, and Fultz was "fired" from his post as police head.

Pugia In Court.

When Pugia was ordered in police headquarters before Mayor Fogo this morning, the latter, it is reported, asked for the evidence.

Pugia then, it is claimed, declared: "there wasn't that much in that bottle last night."

Mayor Fogo then, it is alleged, said to Pugia, "You're dismissed."

Akron Man Held On Murder Charge When Wife Dies

AKRON, O., Dec. 9.—Irvin Reese, 37, is held on a first degree murder charge here today, following the death of his wife, Mrs. Viola Reese, from wounds inflicted, it is alleged, by Reese Sunday night, as the woman was leaving Wesley Temple Methodist church.

The shooting, according to officers, climaxed a domestic quarrel. Mrs. Reese was shot near the door of the church as she emerged after attending the Sunday night services.

Six Persons Die When Caught in Blizzard in Spain

MADRID, Dec. 9.—Two women and four children belonging to a band of gypsies lost their lives today when the tribe was caught in the mountains near Cuenca by a blinding blizzard. Unable to find shelter, they were frozen to death.

DU PONT URGES SUPER HIGHWAY

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9.—A super highway, stretching from coast to coast, was proposed today by Senator DuPont (R) of Delaware.

The highway would pass through municipalities of less than 2,500 populations, strictly avoiding the "big towns," Leasing of the unusued portions of a 500-foot wide right of way, set aside for future needs of military and post roads, would pay for the construction.

FOUR JAGS PER CAPITA POSSIBLE FROM LIQUOR STOCKS IN U. S.

715 Coast Guard Members Convicted Of Liquor Plots

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9.—Conspiracies with rum runners and other serious offenses led to the conviction by general courtmartial of 715 members of the U. S. coast guard in the year ending June 30, according to the annual report of that service made public today.

Out of 727 coast guardsmen placed before general courts only 12 were acquitted. Prison sentences were inflicted upon 112 men and 240 were dishonorably discharged.

Two Quarts of Intoxicants in Official Warehouses for Every Man, Woman and Child, Report Shows.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9.—Every man, woman and child in the United States could have two quarts of intoxicating liquors, all the way from sparkling champagne to industrial alcohol, if the stocks on hand June 30, were equitably distributed. If a pint produces intoxication that means four jags per capita.

Liquor stocks, including a small quantity of left-over denatured alcohol, in official warehouses amounted to 56,958,637 gallons, according to the annual report of Commissioner of Internal Revenue D. H. Blair, issued today.

Whisky, 23,814,000 gallons.
Rum, 289,344 gallons.
Gin, 802,433 gallons.
Brandy, 1,133,000 gallons.
High wines, 336 gallons.
Alcohol, 467,560 gallons.
Wine, 23,383,000 gallons.
Industrial alcohol 5,743,000 gallons.

Six Prohibition Agents Killed.

Included in production of alcoholics for the year were 894,000 gallons of rum, 644,000 gallons of brandy and 202,271,000 gallons of industrial alcohol. Production of industrial alcohol

SOCIETY WOMAN LEAPS TO DEATH

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—Mrs. Louise Hewitt, 25-year-old daughter of William J. Schiefflin, wealthy retired druggist and prominent in the younger society set, committed suicide today by leaping from the window of her sixth story apartment. She had been suffering from a nervous breakdown, police were told.

Mrs. Hewitt was a descendant of Commodore Cornelius Vanderbilt and of John Jay, first chief justice of the United States. Her husband is a great grandson of Peter Cooper, founder of Cooper Union, and a grandson of the late Mayor Hewitt of New York.

GENERAL WARE INDUSTRY ON UPGRADE IN FALL, BUT TREAD OF POTTING BUSINESS FOR NEXT YEAR IS ON KNEES OF GODS, SAYS W. E. WELLS

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—The general ware industry "as a whole was on the up grade, at least during the fall" but "the trend of the domestic potting business for the next year is on the knees of the gods" W. E. Wells, secretary-treasurer of the Homer Laughlin China company and chairman of the labor committee of the United States Potters' association told members of the association at their annual meeting which closed yesterday at the Waldorf-Astoria hotel.

"It must be apparent to all observers that the distribution of our products is in a transition stage," the report says further. "The older avenues and methods are yielding to the newer. Almost anything may happen at any time. Predictions for 1927 are little more than idle speculation."

The report of the committee, touching upon labor conditions in the general ware industry during the past year, briefly reviewed the negotiations between the National Brotherhood of Operative potters and the manufacturers with regard to the two-year wage scale which became effective October 1.

"The year 1926 has been at least as free from labor controversies of major importance as any other year," the report says. "It has been a year distinguished by the smooth working of the wage agreement."

The complete reports follows:

Peace In Industry.

"A scarcity of material from which to construct a labor report is a fortunate condition, as indicating that comparative peace has prevailed throughout the current year, but it is unfortunate in reflecting some degree of unemployment. That condition has obtained since the last report of your committee was submitted. The year 1926 has been at least as free from labor controversies of major importance as any other year of the long period during which we have dealt with the brotherhood in recognition of their equal right to a voice in wage adjustments. It has been a year distinguished by the smooth working of the wage agreement. The labor committee has not been called upon to function in any emergency. Its only activity was that of participating in the formality of negotiating a new agreement to supersede the one expiring on October first last.

"The annual convention of the brotherhood was held as usual at Atlantic City early in July. The discussions throughout the sessions, extending for more than a week, were largely devoted to the long list of proposals submitted by the various locals for increased wage rates and easier working conditions, which they hoped to have embodied in the new agreement.

"It may be assumed the officers of the brotherhood and other conservative delegates realized that trade conditions did not warrant a wage advance in any department, and that it would be futile to present demands of that character to our association. Consequently, it was currently reported that many of the more extreme proposals were rejected by their general price list committee, or on the floor of the convention. Nevertheless, the rank and file of the delegates succeeded in having passed twenty-three propositions, some of which were harmless, and others quite radical. These propositions were presented, in the usual printed form, to our association on July 19. A copy of the brotherhood communication will be made a part of the permanent records of the association.

Wage Scale Discussions.

The labor committee discussed the situation at a meeting held at the office of the chairman on July 23, concluding unanimously that any concession that would increase payrolls was out of order, and that all proposals seeking such concessions should be denied. The committee also considered the suggestion of some of our members that a demand be made for a wage reduction in some of the higher paid departments. Such action appeared to be warranted by the fact that our selling prices on leading staples had been forced down to the point of cost, or below, by aggressive competition on foreign goods. Even upon this basis, many of the potteries were short of business. There was

PRETTY GIRL LESSER FIGURE IN DEATH PLOT

Peggy Cavanaugh Material Witness in McDermott Case.

HELD IN JAIL

"Pat and I Are Not Lovers," She Declares.

BY BONITA WITT.

COURTROOM, CANTON, O., Dec. 9.—Again the woman pays.

With eyes riveted on well dressed Patrick Eugene McDermott, brought into court charged with the murder of Don R. Mellett, editor who tried to rid Canton of bootleggers and thugs, a lesser figure seems overlooked.

A girl, pretty and red-headed, stares through the bars in the drab Stark county workhouse. All because she went on an auto ride with Pat McDermott.

Locked up for three months as a material witness, questioned by a grand jury, Peggy Cavanaugh, a Cleveland waitress, has been in this prison, waiting, waiting.

An Unpleasant Prospect.

Two of those months it looked as if she'd have to wait for a long, long time—as McDermott was captured only a few weeks before his trial. He had been hiding in Cleveland.

The jaunty Pat, a dapper, pleasant-looking youth, was a customer at the restaurant which employed Peggy. He frequently chatted with her. The two became good friends.

Then, one night last July, Pat asked Peggy to accompany him on a motor trip to an adjoining city, Akron, where he wanted "to see a fellow on business."

Several days later Peggy was arrested by detectives.

The prosecution has charged that McDermott went to Akron to collect money it is alleged he was promised for the murder of Mellett.

Officials assert Peggy went along not knowing the nature of the trip and hold her merely as a material witness.

"Pat and I lovers? Absolutely not!" says Peggy, with a toss of her bobbed locks. "I have a real sweetheart in Cleveland. Pat and I are only friends. I wish the reporters would stop calling us lovers!

"Gosh, I'll never feel sorry for anyone again. Pat used to come into the restaurant and tell how his mother used to beg him to come to see her. I'd urge him to go to his home in Pennsylvania because I knew when he was there he wouldn't drink. Pat's an awfully nice kid, but easily led.

"Boy Friend' Angry.

"Here I tried to be nice to him and help him, and look at the mess I'm in now. My 'boy friend' is awfully sore at Pat and he doesn't think I ought to feel sorry for him. Yet sometimes I just can't help feeling sorry, he was such a nice fellow and he treated me just fine. Maybe I'll be friends with him if he should gain his freedom, but maybe I won't.

"I know he never dreamed that I might get into trouble the night he asked me to go auto riding. Pat was a good friend of mine and he wouldn't have taken me along if he had known how our first date would turn out. He always treated me with respect.

"I knew Pat a long time, but, honestly, he never told me a thing about the Mellett murder. I didn't even know there had been a murder until the police arrested me. If I'd suspected anything I never would have gone.

"It's pretty bad having to stay here because of a chance auto ride with a friend. If I had been a sweetheart in whom he confided, I might feel differently about it, but it's pretty tough when I have a 'boy friend' or my own who is peeved at me because I went riding with Pat."

MELLETT CASE IN NUTSHELL

On July 16 Don Mellett, crusading Canton, O., editor was shot down at his garage doors, one bullet piercing his brain. There were few clews except that Mellett had made repeated attacks on Canton's underworld and bootleggers, who Mellett charged, were under police protection.

Two days after Ora Slater, Cincinnati detective, was called in he started trailing Pat McDermott, Cleveland, O., as a suspect.

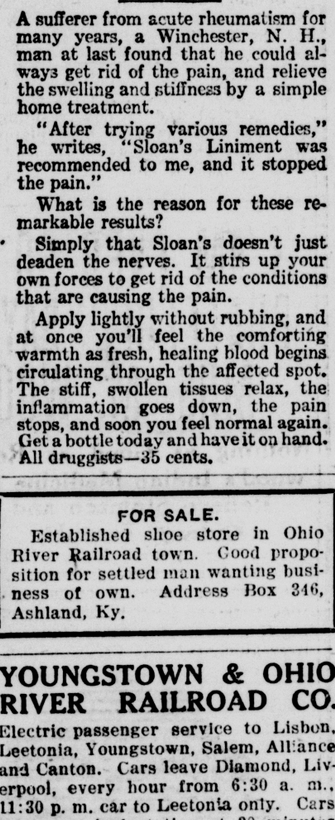

Steve Kascholk, now known as the "informer," told the prosecution he came to Canton with Pat and was hired to "beat up" an editor. He said he became afraid and quit before the shooting.

McDermott fled from Cleveland after police learned he had made a trip to Akron, after the murder accompanied by Peggy Cavanaugh, a Cleveland waitress.

C. B. McClintock, prosecutor of the case, charges McDermott went to Akron to collect money promised him. Miss Cavanaugh asserts she knew nothing of the nature of the trip.

Then McDermott disappeared for three months. Many thought him dead. Detective Slater, however, brought about his capture by gaining the confidence of McDermott's relatives at Nanty Glo, Pa. McDermott was taken while visiting his mother there. It later developed that during the entire three months he had been hiding in a Cleveland apartment.

Two other men were indicted for the murder at the same time McDermott was. They await trial.

HAD SUFFERED FOR YEARS WITH RHEUMATISM

A sufferer from acute rheumatism for many years, a Winchester, N. H., man at last found that he could always get rid of the pain, and relieve the swelling and stiffness by a simple home treatment.

"After trying various remedies," he writes, "Sloan's Liniment was recommended to me, and it stopped the pain."

What is the reason for these remarkable results?

Simply that Sloan's doesn't just deaden the nerves. It stirs up your own forces to get rid of the conditions that are causing the pain.

Apply lightly without rubbing, and at once you'll feel the comforting warmth as fresh, healing blood begins circulating through the affected spot. The stiff, swollen tissues relax, the inflammation goes down, the pain stops, and soon you feel normal again. Get a bottle today and have it on hand. All druggists—35 cents.

$750 VERDICT IN TWO CLAIMS FOR $70,000

Shegog-Pachal Suits Outgrowth of Auto Accident.

GIRL LOSES CASE

Mrs. Sarah Shapiro Defendant in Federal Court.

Two damage claims totalling $70,000, growing out of an accident on lower Broadway last June 2, in which Thomas A. Shegog, ceramic engineer, and Miss Helene Pachel, secretary of the Canadian Clay company, were injured when struck by an automobile driven by Mrs. Sarah Shapiro, Mulberry street, were heard by a jury before Federal Judge D. C. Westenhaver, Youngstown.

Shegog, who sued for $50,000, was given a judgment for $750, while Miss Pachel's suit for $20,000 resulted in a verdict for the defendant. Attorney George C. Davidson represented Mrs. Shapiro, while the law firm of Anderson, Lamb and Marsteller, Youngstown, was counsel for the plaintiffs.

The accident occurred when Shegog and Miss Pachal were crossing Broadway at the Pennsylvania railroad crossing. Miss Pachal charged that she was knocked to the street, one wheel of the car driven by Mrs. Shapiro passing over her right foot. Shegog was dragged along the front of the car several feet, he alleged, then dropped to the street. The petition charged that Mrs. Shapiro was careless and negligent in the operation of the machine.

Shegog, who resides in East Third street, was a ceramic engineer for one of the Sebring potteries for several years and recently became local representative of the Canadian Clay company. Miss Pachal, since the accident, has married and is now residing in Canada. Inasmuch as both plaintiffs were British subjects the case was filed in federal court.

Redwood

A good example of what Redwood's Tepee Tonic will do is embodied in the following statement from Mrs. Minnie Wood, 1427 E. 30th St., Cleveland, Ohio. She says: "Before I took Tepee Herb Tonic I had both kidney and stomach trouble and I was just about as nervous as I could be. I had a severe pain in my back that took the life right out of me. Even though I didn't do much work I felt tired and worn out.

"Tepee Herb Tonic proved to be a wonderful help. I am now so much stronger that my housework does not tire me. I have a splendid appetite and enjoy my meals."

If you don't feel well try Redwood's Tepee Tonic. It has relieved others and it will also relieve you.

$750 VERDICT IN TWO CLAIMS FOR $70,000

Shegog-Pachal Suits Outgrowth of Auto Accident.

Mrs. Sarah Shapiro Defendant in Federal Court.

Two damage claims totalling $70,000, growing out of an accident on lower Broadway last June 2, in which Thomas A. Shegog, ceramic engineer, and Miss Helene Pachel, secretary of the Canadian Clay company, were injured when struck by an automobile driven by Mrs. Sarah Shapiro, Mulberry street, were heard by a jury before Federal Judge D. C. Westenhaver, Youngstown.

Shegog, who sued for $50,000, was given a judgment for $750, while Miss Pachel's suit for $20,000 resulted in a verdict for the defendant. Attorney George C. Davidson represented Mrs. Shapiro, while the law firm of Anderson, Lamb and Marsteller, Youngstown, was counsel for the plaintiffs.

The accident occurred when Shegog and Miss Pachal were crossing Broadway at the Pennsylvania railroad crossing. Miss Pachal charged that she was knocked to the street, one wheel of the car driven by Mrs. Shapiro passing over her right foot. Shegog was dragged along the front of the car several feet, he alleged, then dropped to the street. The petition charged that Mrs. Shapiro was careless and negligent in the operation of the machine.

Restrictions On Coasting

Judging from the number of accidents so far reported as an aftermath of the season's first heavy snowfall, East Liverpool officials should emulate the example of the Chester administration relative to restrictions on coasting.

Believing that attendant dangers can be minimized by regulations governing the winter sport, the West Virginia town's council has designated Fifth street for sledding purposes. Police have been instructed to prohibit coasting on other thoroughfares. This action was prompted by one near accident, in which a sled was carried under a moving freight train, but the coaster escaped injury.

So far four persons have been injured in the East Liverpool district—two in the city proper and two in Chester. Two boy coasters were run down by an automobile at the intersection of Avondale street and Bradshaw avenue, one of the dangerous points, Monday night, while in the Chester mishaps a boy and a girl were the victims, each suffering a fractured leg.

Police should post guards on coasting tracks or prohibit the winter pastime on certain streets, especially on thoroughfares crossing street car tracks. Otherwise, more coasting accidents are inevitable.

Mexican Oil Troubles

The Mexican government wants to have foreign titles to Mexico oil lands, acquired since the adoption of the new Mexican Constitution in 1917, exchanged for 50-year leases. This is done because the new constitution forbids the ownership of such property by aliens. Nothing has been done about it so far, but the Mexican government plans to act on the matter starting Jan. 1, 1927. The idea is to get all Mexican land ultimately back into Mexican hands.

Naturally many American owners, who acquired their titles in good faith, object to that. It is not human nature to submit cheerfully to having a permanent title changed into a limited title.

It develops, though, that important British and Dutch oil interests, which are the chief competitors of American interests in Mexico, are acquiescing. They accept the situation, apparently, in the assurance that they can get out their oil in less than 50 years. Possibly oil men, who usually clean up an oil field in this country in a few years, can do likewise.

Poor Child Brides

Child wives find unhappiness oftener than happiness, says a women's protective association, which has made a study of the question of "school girl brides."

The evil is more extensive than is commonly realized.

In one American city it was found that 518 girls of 14 to 18 had received licenses to marry in the last three years. Of 39 of these who were married under the age of 16, it was learned that 14 are already divorced or separated from their husbands.

"The hasty, ill-considered youthful marriage, motivated only by emotional instability or passing acquaintance," the investigators report, "is likely shortly to end in failure. Unfortunately family conditions of broken homes and misunderstandings are contributing factors to premature marriages, and rarely provide the training in home-making which is essential to marital adjustment."

Such marriages, they add, "weaken and cheapen the institution of marriage itself," a truth that hardly needs driving home to the American public, in view of a sensational case that has attracted much attention recently. Even the nauseating features of such cases, and the rather questionable taste of some of the matter printed in connection with them, may serve a good purpose if they help to impress on immature boys and girls, and upon their parents, the folly of such youthful unions.

"America The Beautiful

Women of the National Federation of Music clubs are offering a prize for the best tune for "America the Beautiful" written by a native American composer. The purpose is to push this song into first place among American patriotic airs.

Neither "America" nor "The Star-Spangled Banner" is altogether satisfactory, explains Mrs. Frank A. Seiberling, who is directing the contest.

"We propose to have set to suitable music a poem by an American woman which carries an appeal as wide as our nation itself, and idealizes the deep sentiments which are the foundation of true Americanism. If we are successful, we intend to ask congress to make it America's own."

The words of "America the Beautiful" are unquestionably noble in sentiment and lovely in expression. The song has been criticized as "too literary to be popular," but perhaps that objection does not matter if the tune is sufficiently popular. Then the literary folk can love the words and everybody can love the music.

The tune to which the song is usually sung is generally regarded as beautiful and appropriate, and has been gaining steadily in popularity. But if a superior one can be written before the whole nation becomes devoted to the present tune, so much the better.

COMBINING PLEASURE WITH BUSINESS.

A stranger with agreeable manners was hired as collector for a kirk in Scotland. His job was to solicit funds for building a new bell tower.

Before starting the campaign, the specialist, glancing over the list of names that had been handed him, asked the minister:

"How many of the members are teetotalers?"

The preached thought at least half of the number did not indulge in intoxicants.

"Then check off the names of the non-drinkers," said the collector.

In two days he reappeared with a nice comfortable bun on, as the expression goes, and a considerable sum in contributions.

"Surely you haven't made the entire rounds of the parish in so short a time?" said the minister.

"Oh, no," explained the expert as he smothered a hiccough, "I called personally on the fifty per cent who drink, and wrote letters to the rest of them."

NEW YORK DAYBYDAY
By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—There are any number of brave little magazines in New York inspired by high ideals and struggling rather hopelessly for recognition. They represent rebellious and impossible dreams plunging along to stir commonplace minds.

Genius often flickers on their pages to be rewarded with a pittance. Poets write verse in the ante-rooms in the home of peace from badgering landladies. Learned but rejected essayists come with hats in hand to offer their wares.

Most of the editorial rooms are in mildewed rooms of abandoned houses. The exchequer cannot keep pace with the dreams but somehow publication continues—sometimes a week or even a month late. They cannot be howled down.

To one of those editorial rooms the other day came a woman with a cough and a poem. She had the appearance of having trudged several weary miles. She was asked for the price of postage in case of rejection and with a despairing gesture she revealed her empty purse.

Feverishly scribbled manuscripts, postage collect, pour in from out of pocket contributors. One poem which caused a bit of favorable comment recently was written in heavy pencil across the ink of a letter. Clean paper was evidently not obtainable.

The courage of these journals in attempting to present the labors of unsung genius is heartening. And their work is not always in vain for quite a number of men and women have been able to find successful recognition through them. That is as it should be.

The automobile is responsible for the passing of the grave frock and Prince Albert coats. Men might wear them riding in leisurely horse drawn carriages but somehow they do not fit in with automobiles.

Floating up from the depths of a cellar cabaret on Broadway the other night passers by were started to hear a rich voice singing:

Jerusalem, Jerusalem.
Lift up your gates and sing.
Hosanna in the highest,
Hosanna——

The first night the Statute of Liberty torch was lighted in the New York harbor more than one thousand birds rushed out and hurled themselves against it only to drop bruised and broken into the sea. Since that time there is no record of a bird darting out against the flaming torch. They learned the lesson that birds of gay plumage northward never learn.

Someone has recalled how New York bartenders went on strike at appearance of the cash register. Before that a certain percentage of receipts as a "knockdown" was considered legitimate. With cash registers bartenders ceased to wear diamonds.

Every small town in those days had men holding down obscure clerkships who suddenly blossomed out as proprietors of their own stores. It was generally believed the money was miserly hoarded after years of "tapping the till," and probably it was.

There are, it has been estimated, 15,000 lonely bachelors in the boarding houses of the three boroughs. They have their dinners and usually go to their rooms or perhaps break the montony now and then at a neighborhood movie.

HASKIN'S LETTER
By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

New Panhellenic Movement.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—An ambitious movement of great importance to women engaged in professional and business occupations, and to younger women in colleges and universities who are fitting themselves for smiliar careers, has been launched in Washington with the second meeting of the Women's National Panhellenic association.

It purpose is to study every phase of the problem of women in the professions and in business, to compile statistical data, to develop new jobs and new activities for women, and to establish a national placement agency that will deal in a practical way with all the angels of the employment question.

The Panhellenic association is composed of sixteen honorary Greek letter societies, all college organizations, that cover twelve fields in which women are engaged—law, medicine, education, home economics, journalism, physical education, music, drama, business, public speaking, chemistry, and fine arts. It was formed in June of last year, largely upon the initiative of Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, assistant attorney general of the United States since 1921.

Dr. Louise Stanley, director of the bureau of home economics of the department of agriculture, became actively interested and was elected the first president of the association. Mrs. Willebrandt was chosen president at the meeting this year. Scores of prominent professional and business women throughout the United States have been enlisted in the movement and have promised to devote time and efforts, and the fruits of their experience, to make it a success.

Back of the movement is the idea that the time is near at hand when practically every woman will have some form of economic activity outside her home life, whatever that may be, and when the girl who is planning her future will no longer debate the question whether she shall go in for a career, or a job, or devote herself to domesticity. This tendency is not destructive of the home, according to the the leaders of the movement, but the home will be adjusted to the new economic order of things.

Eventually, it is contended, a veritable economic revolution may be brought about such that every husband and every wife will work, but they will work shorter hours than prevail in business and the professions at the present time and both will thus have more time for the home, for social activities, for recreation, for study, and the like.

Organized on Three Lines.

The work of the Panhellenic association is being organized on three lines. The first is for the undergraduates—the girls and young women in colleges and universities—and be largely in the nature of vocational guidance, assisting the undergraduate to choose the profession or job which she wants to undertake and to work out the best possible courses of preparation and training.

The second line will consist of research in opportunities for and the status of women in various professions and vocations. Opening up new opportunities and new jobs for women is regarded as especially important in view of the fact that there will be a constantly larger number of women seeking their place in the economic sun.

Something of what is to be accomplished in this direction is illustrated by what has already been done by Theta Sigma Phi, the honorary journalistic society, which was the first of the organizations to undertake anything of the kind, according to the report of Ruby A. Black. Formerly

Even the nauseating features of such cases, and the rather questionable taste of some of the matter printed in connection with them, may serve a good purpose if they help to impress on immature boys and girls, and upon their parents, the folly of such youthful unions.

"America The Beautiful

Women of the National Federation of Music clubs are offering a prize for the best tune for "America the Beautiful" written by a native American composer. The purpose is to push this song into first place among American patriotic airs.

Neither "America" nor "The Star-Spangled Banner" is altogether satisfactory, explains Mrs. Frank A. Seiberling, who is directing the contest.

"We propose to have set to suitable music a poem by an American woman which carries an appeal as wide as our nation itself, and idealizes the deep sentiments which are the foundation of true Americanism. If we are successful, we intend to ask congress to make it America's own."

The words of "America the Beautiful" are unquestionably noble in sentiment and lovely in expression. The song has been criticized as "too literary to be popular," but perhaps that objection does not matter if the tune is sufficiently popular. Then the literary folk can love the words and everybody can love the music.

The tune to which the song is usually sung is generally regarded as beautiful and appropriate, and has been gaining steadily in popularity. But if a superior one can be written before the whole nation becomes devoted to the present tune, so much the better.

COMBINING PLEASURE WITH BUSINESS.

A stranger with agreeable manners was hired as collector for a kirk in Scotland. His job was to solicit funds for building a new bell tower.

Before starting the campaign, the specialist, glancing over the list of names that had been handed him, asked the minister:

"How many of the members are teetotalers?"

The preached thought at least half of the number did not indulge in intoxicants.

"Then check off the names of the non-drinkers," said the collector.

In two days he reappeared with a nice comfortable bun on, as the expression goes, and a considerable sum in contributions.

"Surely you haven't made the entire rounds of the parish in so short a time?" said the minister.

"Oh, no," explained the expert as he smothered a hiccough, "I called personally on the fifty per cent who drink, and wrote letters to the rest of them."

NEW YORK DAYBYDAY
By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—There are any number of brave little magazines in New York inspired by high ideals and struggling rather hopelessly for recognition. They represent rebellious and impossible dreams plunging along to stir commonplace minds.

Genius often flickers on their pages to be rewarded with a pittance. Poets write verse in the ante-rooms in the home of peace from badgering landladies. Learned but rejected essayists come with hats in hand to offer their wares.

Most of the editorial rooms are in mildewed rooms of abandoned houses. The exchequer cannot keep pace with the dreams but somehow publication continues—sometimes a week or even a month late. They cannot be howled down.

To one of those editorial rooms the other day came a woman with a cough and a poem. She had the appearance of having trudged several weary miles. She was asked for the price of postage in case of rejection and with a despairing gesture she revealed her empty purse.

Feverishly scribbled manuscripts, postage collect, pour in from out of pocket contributors. One poem which caused a bit of favorable comment recently was written in heavy pencil across the ink of a letter. Clean paper was evidently not obtainable.

The courage of these journals in attempting to present the labors of unsung genius is heartening. And their work is not always in vain for quite a number of men and women have been able to find successful recognition through them. That is as it should be.

The automobile is responsible for the passing of the grave frock and Prince Albert coats. Men might wear them riding in leisurely horse drawn carriages but somehow they do not fit in with automobiles.

Floating up from the depths of a cellar cabaret on Broadway the other night passers by were started to hear a rich voice singing:

Jerusalem, Jerusalem.
Lift up your gates and sing.
Hosanna in the highest,
Hosanna——

The first night the Statute of Liberty torch was lighted in the New York harbor more than one thousand birds rushed out and hurled themselves against it only to drop bruised and broken into the sea. Since that time there is no record of a bird darting out against the flaming torch. They learned the lesson that birds of gay plumage northward never learn.

Someone has recalled how New York bartenders went on strike at appearance of the cash register. Before that a certain percentage of receipts as a "knockdown" was considered legitimate. With cash registers bartenders ceased to wear diamonds.

Every small town in those days had men holding down obscure clerkships who suddenly blossomed out as proprietors of their own stores. It was generally believed the money was miserly hoarded after years of "tapping the till," and probably it was.

There are, it has been estimated, 15,000 lonely bachelors in the boarding houses of the three boroughs. They have their dinners and usually go to their rooms or perhaps break the montony now and then at a neighborhood movie.

HASKIN'S LETTER
By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

New Panhellenic Movement.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—An ambitious movement of great importance to women engaged in professional and business occupations, and to younger women in colleges and universities who are fitting themselves for smiliar careers, has been launched in Washington with the second meeting of the Women's National Panhellenic association.

It purpose is to study every phase of the problem of women in the professions and in business, to compile statistical data, to develop new jobs and new activities for women, and to establish a national placement agency that will deal in a practical way with all the angels of the employment question.

The Panhellenic association is composed of sixteen honorary Greek letter societies, all college organizations, that cover twelve fields in which women are engaged—law, medicine, education, home economics, journalism, physical education, music, drama, business, public speaking, chemistry, and fine arts. It was formed in June of last year, largely upon the initiative of Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, assistant attorney general of the United States since 1921.

Dr. Louise Stanley, director of the bureau of home economics of the department of agriculture, became actively interested and was elected the first president of the association. Mrs. Willebrandt was chosen president at the meeting this year. Scores of prominent professional and business women throughout the United States have been enlisted in the movement and have promised to devote time and efforts, and the fruits of their experience, to make it a success.

Back of the movement is the idea that the time is near at hand when practically every woman will have some form of economic activity outside her home life, whatever that may be, and when the girl who is planning her future will no longer debate the question whether she shall go in for a career, or a job, or devote herself to domesticity. This tendency is not destructive of the home, according to the the leaders of the movement, but the home will be adjusted to the new economic order of things.

Eventually, it is contended, a veritable economic revolution may be brought about such that every husband and every wife will work, but they will work shorter hours than prevail in business and the professions at the present time and both will thus have more time for the home, for social activities, for recreation, for study, and the like.

Organized on Three Lines.

The work of the Panhellenic association is being organized on three lines. The first is for the undergraduates—the girls and young women in colleges and universities—and be largely in the nature of vocational guidance, assisting the undergraduate to choose the profession or job which she wants to undertake and to work out the best possible courses of preparation and training.

The second line will consist of research in opportunities for and the status of women in various professions and vocations. Opening up new opportunities and new jobs for women is regarded as especially important in view of the fact that there will be a constantly larger number of women seeking their place in the economic sun.

Something of what is to be accomplished in this direction is illustrated by what has already been done by Theta Sigma Phi, the honorary journalistic society, which was the first of the organizations to undertake anything of the kind, according to the report of Ruby A. Black. Formerly

AUTO DAMAGE SUITS FILED

Toronto Woman and R. C. Williams Seek $850.

Two suits for damages growing out of automobile accidents have been filed in municipal court.

Mrs. Mary Allen, Toronto, is asking $500 judgment against Edward F. Arnold, 222 West Third street, as the result of a head-on collision on Pennsylvania avenue, near the clay bank stop, on the evening of November 2. Mrs. Allen says that while her husband, Leonard Allen, was driving her Franklin sedan, he was struck by a Maxwell touring car driven by Arnold and traveling in the opposite direction. Cochran & Crawford represent the plaintiff.

The Steubenville, East Liverpool & Beaver Valley Traction company is named in a suit for $350 damages, brought by R. C. Williams, 351 Ogden street, as the result of a crash which occurred on Wells avenue, Wellsville, near Silver switch, on October 21, 1926. Williams claims that he was driving east on the Wellsville-East Liverpool road and his machine was struck by a street car going in the same direction as he attempted to cross the tracks, just west of the switch. Cochran and Crawford also filed this action.

The Iron City Fuel company of Pittsburgh has brought an action to collect $750 from Frank Carson, coal dealer. The money, it is claimed, is due on a note given by Carson on July 20, 1926. Brookes & Thompson are attorneys for the plaintiff.

Donald Johnson, R. F. D. No. 2, Wellsville, has sued Dory C. McIntyre, also of R. F. D. No. 2, Wellsville, for $500 alleged to be due on a note given Nov. 26, 1919. The money, the plaintiff charges, was spent in the purchase of household furnishings. The suit was filed by Attorney Charles Boyd.

Miscellaneous Shower.

Following the regular choir practice in the First Baptist church last evening, Mrs. Brady Rollins, formerly Miss Margaret Hall, was surprised with a miscellaneous shower. Informal social hours were spent with music, after which refreshments were served by Mesdames Ray Thompson, Ruth Strause, W. F. Lones, Ruby Pickard and Miss Ora McElroy. Covers were arranged for 20 guests.

Mrs. Bert Brown Hostess.

Members of the Wood-Bees club were entertained last evening at the home of Mrs. Bert Brown in Commerce street, Wellsville. Two tables of bridge were in play. Trophies were awarded Mrs. Kathryn Smith and Miss Margaret Bell.

Neville Institute Cantata.

A Christmas cantata, "Santa Claus' Advise," will be presented at 7:30 o'clock Monday evening, under the auspices of the Neville institute, in the Odd Fellows' lodge room in Mulberry street.

Symphony Club Date Changed.

The regular meeting of the Symphony club has been changed from Tuesday evening until Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. Floyd Kerr, Virginia avenue, East End, on account of the Civic Music club concert.

Dancing, Eagles Thursday Night!

Eagles' Dancing Party.

An informal dancing party will be held in the Eagles' temple, Broadway, tonight between the hours of 8:30 and 11:30 o'clock. DeMar Miller's orchestra will play.

East End Catholic Club Party.

A card party will be featured at 8 o'clock tonight at the house-warming and reception to be held by the East End Catholic club, Palissey street and Pennsylvania avenue, East End.

L. T. L. Meet Friday.

Dancing, Danceland, tonight. 25c and 50c.

AUTO DAMAGE SUITS FILED

Toronto Woman and R. C. Williams Seek $850.

Two suits for damages growing out of automobile accidents have been filed in municipal court.

Mrs. Mary Allen, Toronto, is asking $500 judgment against Edward F. Arnold, 222 West Third street, as the result of a head-on collision on Pennsylvania avenue, near the clay bank stop, on the evening of November 2. Mrs. Allen says that while her husband, Leonard Allen, was driving her Franklin sedan, he was struck by a Maxwell touring car driven by Arnold and traveling in the opposite direction. Cochran & Crawford represent the plaintiff.

The Steubenville, East Liverpool & Beaver Valley Traction company is named in a suit for $350 damages, brought by R. C. Williams, 351 Ogden street, as the result of a crash which occurred on Wells avenue, Wellsville, near Silver switch, on October 21, 1926. Williams claims that he was driving east on the Wellsville-East Liverpool road and his machine was struck by a street car going in the same direction as he attempted to cross the tracks, just west of the switch. Cochran and Crawford also filed this action.

The Iron City Fuel company of Pittsburgh has brought an action to collect $750 from Frank Carson, coal dealer. The money, it is claimed, is due on a note given by Carson on July 20, 1926. Brookes & Thompson are attorneys for the plaintiff.

Donald Johnson, R. F. D. No. 2, Wellsville, has sued Dory C. McIntyre, also of R. F. D. No. 2, Wellsville, for $500 alleged to be due on a note given Nov. 26, 1919. The money, the plaintiff charges, was spent in the purchase of household furnishings. The suit was filed by Attorney Charles Boyd.

Miscellaneous Shower.

Following the regular choir practice in the First Baptist church last evening, Mrs. Brady Rollins, formerly Miss Margaret Hall, was surprised with a miscellaneous shower. Informal social hours were spent with music, after which refreshments were served by Mesdames Ray Thompson, Ruth Strause, W. F. Lones, Ruby Pickard and Miss Ora McElroy. Covers were arranged for 20 guests.

Mrs. Bert Brown Hostess.

Members of the Wood-Bees club were entertained last evening at the home of Mrs. Bert Brown in Commerce street, Wellsville. Two tables of bridge were in play. Trophies were awarded Mrs. Kathryn Smith and Miss Margaret Bell.

Neville Institute Cantata.

A Christmas cantata, "Santa Claus' Advise," will be presented at 7:30 o'clock Monday evening, under the auspices of the Neville institute, in the Odd Fellows' lodge room in Mulberry street.

Symphony Club Date Changed.

The regular meeting of the Symphony club has been changed from Tuesday evening until Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. Floyd Kerr, Virginia avenue, East End, on account of the Civic Music club concert.

Dancing, Eagles Thursday Night!

Eagles' Dancing Party.

An informal dancing party will be held in the Eagles' temple, Broadway, tonight between the hours of 8:30 and 11:30 o'clock. DeMar Miller's orchestra will play.

East End Catholic Club Party.

A card party will be featured at 8 o'clock tonight at the house-warming and reception to be held by the East End Catholic club, Palissey street and Pennsylvania avenue, East End.

L. T. L. Meet Friday.

Dancing, Danceland, tonight. 25c and 50c.

OPEN WARFARE OVER SENATE PLACES LOOMS

BRIBERY PROBE

Retaliatory Contests Against Southern Senators.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9.—Two years of open warfare over senatorial election contests appeared inevitable today as a result of the senate's action in ordering an inquiry into bribery charges raised against Senator Arthur R. Gould (R.) of Maine.

Incensed by the action of Democrats in forcing an investigation into the private life of Gould, Republican leaders were said to be planning a series of retaliatory contests against Democratic senators recently elected in southern states. In all these elections, Republican leaders said, but six per cent of the total voting population participated while in two of the states, large expenditures of money were reported in the primaries.

The Gould inquiry meanwhile will be prosecuted without delay. The senate elections committee, ordered to conduct the investigation by a vote of 70 to 7, will meet this afternoon to adopt a program. Indications were that Senator Ernst (R.) of Kentucky, would name a sub-committee to hold public hearings on the charges, at which both Gould and his accusers will be given a chance to speak.

Three Questions to Decide.

The committee will have three questions to decide:

1—Whether Gould was guilty of paying $100,000 a decade ago to J. K. Fleming, former premier of New Brunswick, in return for expected favors to a railroad which the Maine senator then represented.

2—Whether the senate has the power to investigate the previous private life of a member to find grounds on which to deny him a seat in the senate.

3—Whether a criminal act, having no convention with a senatorial election, can constitute sufficient grounds either to exclude a citizen from the senate or to expel him as a senator.

Friends of Gould, drawn principally from the New England group of senators, will contend that Gould is innocent of the charges, but that even though he were guilty, the senate has no right to deny him a seat. They will argue that under the doctrine of state's rights, the election of Gould completely vindicated him as the voters knew of the charges prior to the election.

Those opposing the seating of Gould, however, will argue that an act of bribery cannot be countenanced by the senate even though committed a decade ago.

A Tested Recipe by

Winifred S. Carter

½ cup Crisco	1 tablespoon hot water
1 cup sugar	2½ cups flour
2 eggs	½ teaspoon salt
½ cup seeded raisins	½ teaspoon clove
½ cup currants	½ teaspoon mace
½ cup nuts	1½ teaspoons cinnamon
1 teaspoon soda	½ cup sour milk

Cream Crisco and sugar together. Add unbeaten egg yolks and mix well. Add raisins, currants and nuts, cut fine. Add soda, dissolved in hot water. Mix and sift flour, salt and spices and add alternately with the sour milk to the first mixture. Fold in one stiffly beaten egg white. (Save other white for frosting.) Pour into well greased muffin pans and bake in a hot oven (375 degrees F.) 15 to 20 minutes.

This recipe makes 18 medium sized cup cakes.

FROSTING

1 egg white	Confectioners' sugar
2 tablespoons sweet cream	¼ teaspoon mace

(All measurements level)

Crisco is by no means limited to cake making. I find that I can always depend on Crisco for flaky pie crusts, fluffy biscuits, dainty desserts and for all frying.

"WHAT SHALL I ANSWER WHEN GOD RISES UP?"

Query of O. A. Newlin in Revival Sermon.

REPENT, HE URGES

Unrepentant Sinners Will Have Nothing to Say.

How unrepentant sinners will have nothing to say to God in the judgment was disclosed in an impressive sermon by Rev. O. A. Newlin, Winona Lake, Ind., evangelist at the First United Presbyterian revival last evening. "To those accepting Him now by confessing Jesus Christ," he said, "the meeting will be mutually joyous."

"Three things are certain to every living person," he said, "and none can be evaded or passed by, death, the judgment and the certainty that one's sins, great and small, will be found out."

In the face of these three facts he held Job's 6,000-years-ago interrogation to himself, a double-barrelled query to be particularly apropos to every one at this time, "What then shall I do when God rises up? And when he visiteth, what shall I answer?"

In no uncertain terms he declared that one would have nothing to reply in this crucial moment. "You will be like Adam after he had sinned with not a thing to say," he pointed out. "Now is the time to do something which will enable you to talk then. If you accept God now through Jesus Christ you then will be enabled to speak. And happily."

Following a song service Director John C. Ussher sang "Seek Ye the Lord" in which the choir finally joined. Miss Adda McLain was the accompanist.

The invocation was made by the pastor, Rev. L. J. Davison.

Emphasis was laid on the fact that but five more services of the present campaign remain, Thursday and Friday evening and the final three meetings on Sunday. That of tonight will be known as "Everybody's Night when other churchmen and those not allied anywhere are expected to attend.

"The ice and slush should be about gone by tomorrow evening, asserted Pastor Davison. "So we can stress our invitations to those whom we wish to attend at these remaining gatherings." He announced also a combined meeting of the session and trustees at the conclusion of the prayer service in the Sunday school room which followed the discourse of Rev. Mr. Newlin.

"Though there are said to be 30,000 promises in the Bible, my text is not one of them but a question of man to himself though there are queries of various kinds enumerated in it: king to subject, subject to king, children to parents, parents to children, master to slave and slave to master yet Job put this one to himself.

"So all ask this question to themselves. Those who had their sins nullified by acceptance of God through Christ by way of repentance and the subsequent new birth will find it a pleasure to meet God as obedient children delight to greet their parents. Adam found joy in meeting his Maker until he had sinned, then he dodged and tried to hide from Him. But he was found. He had to meet Him. There was no escape. And he had nothing to say. For he had sinned. So will it be to all meeting the Almighty with their sins unforgiven.

AVOID UGLY PIMPLES

A pimply face will not embarass you much longer if you get a package of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. The skin should begin to clear after you have taken the tablets a few nights.

Cleanse the blood, bowels and liver with Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the successful substitute for calomel; there's no sickness or pain after taking them.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do that which calomel does, and just as effectively, but their action is gentle and safe instead of severe and irritating.

No one who takes Olive Tablets is ever cursed with a "dark brown taste," a bad breath, a dull, listless, "no good" feeling, constipation, torpid liver, bad disposition or pimply face.

Dr. Edwards spent years among patients afflicted with liver and bowel complaints and Olive Tablets are the immensely effective result. Take nightly for a week. See how much better you feel and look. 15c, 30c, 60c.

COSTS BUT 50c TO HEAL SKIN WITH POSLAM

Poslam is so concentrated and acts so directly that a very little of it goes a long way. Its medication is so gentle that it cannot irritate the most delicate or inflamed skin. Eczema, rashes, scalp troubles, pimples—they simply cannot resist Poslam. At all druggists, 50c.

What Are You Doing For Your Puny Child?

One Boy Gained 11 Pounds in 7 Weeks and Is Now Strong and Healthy.

For weak, frail, under-developed children—and especially those that have rickets, and need a sure builder that promotes the growth of teeth and bones, Cod Liver Oil is the one medicine supreme—nothing helps like it.

But it is nasty and repulsive and evil smelling and nearly always upsets children's stomachs—so now up-to-date chemists advise McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets.

Children love them as they do candy, because they are sugar coated and easy to take. One boy gained 11½ pounds in seven weeks, and is now healthy and happy—thousands of other children have grown strong and robust.

Sixty tablets for 60c at Mathews Med. Store and all druggists—but be sure and insist on McCoy's—the original and genuine.

Give them to the sickly, frail child for 30 days, and if they don't help—wonderfully, your druggist is authorized to hand you back the money you paid for them.

Mexico Tries Fraternizing.

In order to promote a friendly feeling among the Indian boys of the various tribes in Mexico an assembly of representatives of the various tribes is being held frequently by the federal department of education. They will be given special training adapted to their needs and ability during the assemblies but the main idea is to make one tribe acquainted with the other.

Tax on "Personal Liberty."

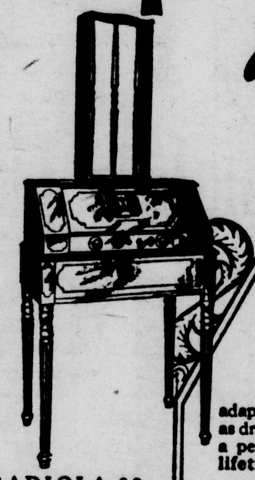

In the province of Tabasco in Mexico, those who drink or smoke in public must pay a tax for the privilege, the money thus raised being devoted to fighting locusts which are a pest in that district. If a policeman sees a man smoking or showing the effects of liquor, he is privileged to ask him to show his tax receipt.

BIG DOUBLE DEMONSTRATION
GAIN-A-DAY WASHER and WONDER IRONER

BY FACTORY DEMONSTRATORS

Mr. Keisling, a Factory Representative and Experienced Demonstrator, will be here both Friday and Saturday, Dec. 10 and 11, to demonstrate the Simplicity, Superiority and Dependability of the New Gain-A-Day Washer. At the same time Miss Edith Meyers, also a factory representative and thoroughly experienced demonstrator will be here to show the merits of the new Wonder Automatic Ironer—how you can easily and perfectly iron the most difficult pieces.

We invite you to bring anything you would like to see washed or ironed with you and see how easy wash day can be made. We claim for both the Gain-A-Day Washer and Wonder Ironer to be most practical in construction—Simple in operation—Dependable in service. They take the repulsive, laborious drudgery out of wash day and make it a day of interesting pleasure andsatisfaction by the ease with which dirty, unsightly, obnoxious clothing are quickly transformed into pure, clean, wholesome, smooth, desirable wearing apparel.

We consider ourselves exceptionally fortunate in securing the services of two such capable and efficient factory representatives and being able to bring them both to our store at the same time should prove especially interesting to every one as it affords the opportunity of two demonstrations with only one visit.

We trust you will avail yourself of the information to be obtained from this double demonstration of Gain-A-Day Washer and Wonder Ironer. Ask all the questions you can think of pertaining to the scientific principles of washing and ironing electrical devices.

Everybody welcome. Remember the time—Tomorrow and Saturday, Dec. 10 and 11.

Emphasis was laid on the fact that but five more services of the present campaign remain, Thursday and Friday evening and the final three meetings on Sunday. That of tonight will be known as "Everybody's Night when other churchmen and those not allied anywhere are expected to attend.

"The ice and slush should be about gone by tomorrow evening, asserted Pastor Davison. "So we can stress our invitations to those whom we wish to attend at these remaining gatherings." He announced also a combined meeting of the session and trustees at the conclusion of the prayer service in the Sunday school room which followed the discourse of Rev. Mr. Newlin.

"Though there are said to be 30,000 promises in the Bible, my text is not one of them but a question of man to himself though there are queries of various kinds enumerated in it: king to subject, subject to king, children to parents, parents to children, master to slave and slave to master yet Job put this one to himself.

"So all ask this question to themselves. Those who had their sins nullified by acceptance of God through Christ by way of repentance and the subsequent new birth will find it a pleasure to meet God as obedient children delight to greet their parents. Adam found joy in meeting his Maker until he had sinned, then he dodged and tried to hide from Him. But he was found. He had to meet Him. There was no escape. And he had nothing to say. For he had sinned. So will it be to all meeting the Almighty with their sins unforgiven.

AVOID UGLY PIMPLES

A pimply face will not embarass you much longer if you get a package of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. The skin should begin to clear after you have taken the tablets a few nights.

Cleanse the blood, bowels and liver with Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the successful substitute for calomel; there's no sickness or pain after taking them.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do that which calomel does, and just as effectively, but their action is gentle and safe instead of severe and irritating.

No one who takes Olive Tablets is ever cursed with a "dark brown taste," a bad breath, a dull, listless, "no good" feeling, constipation, torpid liver, bad disposition or pimply face.

Dr. Edwards spent years among patients afflicted with liver and bowel complaints and Olive Tablets are the immensely effective result. Take nightly for a week. See how much better you feel and look. 15c, 30c, 60c.

What Are You Doing For Your Puny Child?

One Boy Gained 11 Pounds in 7 Weeks and Is Now Strong and Healthy.

For weak, frail, under-developed children—and especially those that have rickets, and need a sure builder that promotes the growth of teeth and bones, Cod Liver Oil is the one medicine supreme—nothing helps like it.

But it is nasty and repulsive and evil smelling and nearly always upsets children's stomachs—so now up-to-date chemists advise McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets.

Children love them as they do candy, because they are sugar coated and easy to take. One boy gained 11½ pounds in seven weeks, and is now healthy and happy—thousands of other children have grown strong and robust.

Sixty tablets for 60c at Mathews Med. Store and all druggists—but be sure and insist on McCoy's—the original and genuine.

Give them to the sickly, frail child for 30 days, and if they don't help—wonderfully, your druggist is authorized to hand you back the money you paid for them.

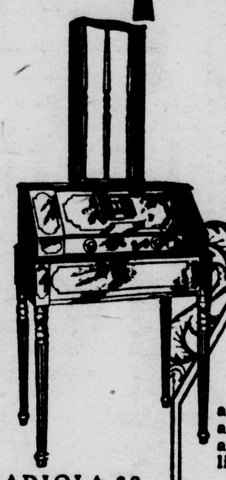

Mexico Tries Fraternizing.

In order to promote a friendly feeling among the Indian boys of the various tribes in Mexico an assembly of representatives of the various tribes is being held frequently by the federal department of education. They will be given special training adapted to their needs and ability during the assemblies but the main idea is to make one tribe acquainted with the other.

Tax on "Personal Liberty."

In the province of Tabasco in Mexico, those who drink or smoke in public must pay a tax for the privilege, the money thus raised being devoted to fighting locusts which are a pest in that district. If a policeman sees a man smoking or showing the effects of liquor, he is privileged to ask him to show his tax receipt.

BIG DOUBLE DEMONSTRATION
GAIN-A-DAY WASHER and WONDER IRONER

BY FACTORY DEMONSTRATORS

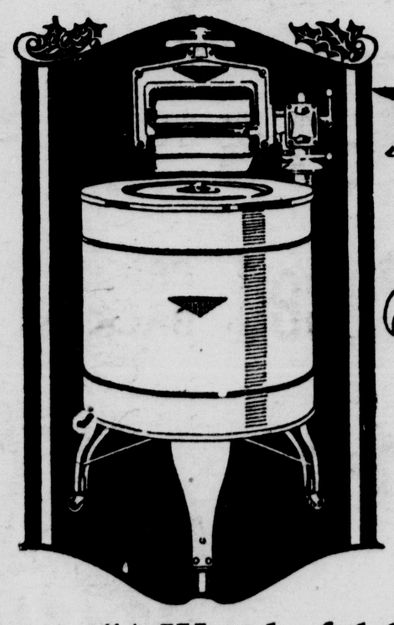

Mr. Keisling, a Factory Representative and Experienced Demonstrator, will be here both Friday and Saturday, Dec. 10 and 11, to demonstrate the Simplicity, Superiority and Dependability of the New Gain-A-Day Washer. At the same time Miss Edith Meyers, also a factory representative and thoroughly experienced demonstrator will be here to show the merits of the new Wonder Automatic Ironer—how you can easily and perfectly iron the most difficult pieces.

We invite you to bring anything you would like to see washed or ironed with you and see how easy wash day can be made. We claim for both the Gain-A-Day Washer and Wonder Ironer to be most practical in construction—Simple in operation—Dependable in service. They take the repulsive, laborious drudgery out of wash day and make it a day of interesting pleasure andsatisfaction by the ease with which dirty, unsightly, obnoxious clothing are quickly transformed into pure, clean, wholesome, smooth, desirable wearing apparel.

We consider ourselves exceptionally fortunate in securing the services of two such capable and efficient factory representatives and being able to bring them both to our store at the same time should prove especially interesting to every one as it affords the opportunity of two demonstrations with only one visit.

We trust you will avail yourself of the information to be obtained from this double demonstration of Gain-A-Day Washer and Wonder Ironer. Ask all the questions you can think of pertaining to the scientific principles of washing and ironing electrical devices.

Everybody welcome. Remember the time—Tomorrow and Saturday, Dec. 10 and 11.

ORMISTON, WANTED IN AIMEE M'PHERSON CASE, FOUND

NEWSPAPERMAN TRAILS HIM TO HARRISBURG, PA.

DENIES HIDING

Admits Identity, But Will Fight Return to California.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Dec. 9.—Kenneth Ormiston, arrested here by Chicago Detectives Charles Bonnelly and Harry Ellwood, in connection with the Aimee McPherson case in Los Angeles, left here today for Los Angeles, having waived extradition.

Donnelly and Ellwood arrived here from Chicago last night to make the arrest, Ellwood having been on the trail of Ormiston for some time, it was said.

When arrested in the apartment which he has occupied in Harrisburg, Ormiston ,who was using the name of "Fred Lininger," immediately admitted his identity. He told police that he had been making his living by writing and soliciting subscriptions for radio magazines.

Plans "Last Ditch" Fight.

CHICAGO, Dec. 9.—Kenneth Ormiston will make a "last ditch" fight in Chicago against extradition to Los Angeles, Edward H. S. Martin, his attorney, announced today.

Disagreeing with reports that Ormiston planned to return voluntarily to Los Angles from Harrisburg, Pa., Martin said he was coming of his own volition to Chicago where the legal battle would begin.

CHICAGO, Dec. 9.—Kenneth G. Ormiston, fugitive radio operator wanted in Los Angeles in connection with the Aimee Semple McPherson case, has been located in Harrisburg, Pa., according to a copyrighted story appearing in the Chicago Herald-Examiner today.

Ormiston was found last night living in a two-story apartment fronting on the Susquehanna river. He resided there under the name of "Fred Lininger."

When the Herald-Examiner reporter, accompanied by two Chicago detectives, walked in on Ormiston, he smiled and quietly admitted his identity.

"Yes, I am Ormiston," he said, "but this is only the beginning. There will be a long, hard fight before I go back to California. Also I feel that District Attorney Asa Keyes is not very anxious to have me go back for trial."

The former Angelus Temple radio announcer is under indictment in California charged with subornation of perjury and conspiracy to defeat justice.

Amazes "Uninvited Guests."

Ormiston amazed his "uninvited guests" when he explained how he has made a living since he fled from California. He stated he has been writing articles for radio magazines and that recently he sold an article which is soon to appear under his own name in a magazine having nation-wide circulation.

Ormiston declined to discuss any of the thousands of stories which have linked his name with that of Aimee McPherson. But he was quite willing, according to the reporter, to talk about anything and everything else.

When the reporter, having traced him for several months, knocked last night on the door of the Front street flat, it was Ormiston who opened. He made no attempt at deception when he was addressed as "Mr. Ormiston."

"Come in," he said.

Sergeant Carson of the Harrisburg force was called to Ormiston's flat as soon as his identity was established.

Writes for Living.

Ormiston sat on the edge of a folding bed, and in front of him on an infirm table stood his typewriter with a sheet of manuscript in it.

"I have to write for a living," he explained.

Then he said:

"Would you gentlemen mind showing me your credentials, so I may krow whom I am talking to?"

He glanced at the cards and said he was satisfied.

"There are some few things I shall not care to discuss with you," he went on, "but on other subjects I shall be glad to give you whatever information I can."

Ormiston willingly put on his hat and overcoat and went out with the reporter and the officer as their "guest."

"I really can't understand," he said, "why it has taken so long for you people to find me—or rather for somebody to find me, considering the great number who have been trying. For the fact is that I have made no particular effort to hide."

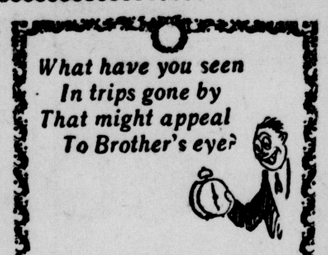

Aimee Not Concerned.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 9. — Aimee Semple McPherson attaches "no significance whatsoever" to the fact that Kenneth G. Ormiston has been found in Harrisburg, Pa.

She so declared herself here today when informed the former radio operator of her Angelus temple had been located.

"I am not in the least concerned about or interested in Mr. Ormiston's whereabouts," the famous evangelist said.

Mrs. McPherson added she was too busy with the Christmas program of her temple to be bothered about matters that did not concern her in the least."

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKETS

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—Short covering and speculative buying of the high-priced industrial and specialties accounted for the moderate rally during early trading on the stock exchange today. A few of the railroad shares, principally the stocks of the "coal roads" participated more actively in the transactions in this period. Lehigh Valley topped its best previous price record at 98, and Reading sold a point higher.

was 180,000,000 gallons heavier than in 1920.

During the year, 150,522,000 gallons of cereal beverage was produced, the industry centering in New York, which accounted for 43,000,000 gallons, Chicago, 17,000,000 gallons, and Pittsburgh 10,000,000 gallons.

Six prohibition agents were killed and 50 injured in performance of duty in the 1925-1926 year.

Blair's report showed that 72,723 persons were arrested by federal agents or on federal information and that the treasury collected $5,231,130 as the result of enforcement operations.

More than $5,388,000 worth of property was destroyed by dry agents. Seizures included 12,227 distilleries, 130,000 fermenters, 1,247,000 gallons of distilled spirits, 14,220,000 gallons of malt liquor, 193,000 gallons of cider, 5,935 automobiles and 187 boats and launches.

DOHENY'S WIFE AND SON TAKE WITNESS STAND

NOTE EXPLAINED

E. L. Doheny, Jr., Carried $100,000 Cash for Fall.

Following his mother came E. L. Doheny, jr., who carried the "little black catchel" to Washington with $100,000 in currency for Fall.

Waiving all immunity, Mrs. Doheny told of her part in the $100,000 loan made by Doheny to Fall, which the government contends constituted a bribe.

Fall gave a demand note for the money, she declared. The note was torn in half and her husband gave her the part containing the signature. This was done, she said, so that Fall would not be pressed for the money in event that anything happened to her or to her husband.

Tells About Loan.

"Did you know about the loan to Mr. Fall?" asked Frank J. Hogan, chief defense counsel.

"Yes."

"Who told you?"

"My husband. He said Secretary Fall needed it to buy a ranch, and I said I would be glad to let him have it."

"Did you know about the physical details of the loan?"

"No, but when, on November 30, I suggested we have Ned (her son) in for dinner, my husband said 'Ned has gone to Washington. I've made the loan.'"

"Did you see the note for this loan?"

"Yes, when Ned came back."

"When it was in its entirety?"

"Yes."

"Were you present when it was torn?"

"Yes."

"Will you state why it was torn?"

"We were getting ready to leave for California. My husband was looking at the note. Suddenly he said: 'If anything should happen to me and this note were found in my wallet, the executors would press immediately for payment, and Mr. Fall would be worse off than ever. I shall tear off the signature and give it to you and keep the body myself. Then, if anything should happen, you will know and Mr. Fall will not be embarrassed.'"

"Did you keep the signature?"

"Yes."

"Where?"

"In a deposit box in the Security Trust and Savings bank of Los Angeles."

Police Raid Hotel

o'clock when Chief of Police McDermott, Captain Conley, Patrolmen Roth, Smith, Lister, Haley and McFarland and Special Officer Curran, met at city hall and were given search warrants.

Chief McDermott went to the Diamond pool room, Captain Conley to the Unique and Academy pool rooms, Patrolman Lister to the American, Patrolman Haley to the National pool room, Patrolman McFarland to the Liberty, Patrolman Roth to the Madison pool room in East End, Patrolman Smith to the Kane establishment and Special officer Curran to the Patterson place.

100 Punch Boards Seized.

Nearly 100 punch boards were confiscated, many never having been used. Two boards known as "The California Gold Mine," in which cash prizes of $20, $10 and $5 were offered, were seized in two places. Other punch boards offered candy and other merchandise. Police seized no merchandise.

According to Chief McDermott, the punch boards were placed in the establishments about two weeks ago by a salesman for a Chicago house, who promised "big returns." Each board, the chief said, explained where the lucky numbers were located on the board and these numbers which called for cash prizes of $20, $10 and $5 could be removed before the boards were placed on sale. On a 5,000-hole card, the dealer collected $500 and paid out $170, making a profit of about $330. By using the secret key the dealer, police say, could punch out several of the large prize winning numbers before placing it on the counter.

Another Liquor Charge.

The seven men nabbed in the raid pleaded guilty to the gambling charges when they were given their hearings this morning and paid fines totalling $400. Canady also paid his fine on the liquor charge.

One other alleged liquor violator was arrested early this morning when Harry Martin was taken into custody by Patrolman McFarland near the high school building. Three half pints of whisky were found in his possession police say. He pleaded guilty when he faced Judge Hanley and was fined $100 and costs.

Today's police court session netted more than $700. Besides those apprehended in the raids, several others held on charges of being drunk and disorderly drew the customary fine of $10 and costs.

POTTERS FACE FOREIGN FIGHT

European Competition Serious Problem, Says Burgess.

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—(Special to the Review-Tribune).—The American ceramic industry faces serious competition from European pottery manufacturers, William Burgess, Trenton, first vice president of the United States Potters association, reported at the opening session of the annual convention at the Waldorf-Astoria hotel here yesterday afternoon.

Burgess has been making an intensive study of the tariff situation as it affects American general ware manufacturers. Greater attention will be given to the question during the coming year than ever before, manufacturers decided.

Thomas Anderson, Coshocton, was elected president of the association at the closing session; Joseph M. Wells, second vice president, and Charles F. Goodwin, East Liverpool, secretary-treasurer.

It was explained yesterday that of the nearly 600 kilns represented in the association, 150 are now engaged in the production of an ivory body, and that more are to go into this line. This will include the National China company, Salineville, Ohio, and the Dresden Pottery company, East Liverpool, Ohio.

The W. S. George Pottery company began the production of an ivory body at the No. 4 plant at East Palestine this week.

Rescue Cars Ordered.

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 9.—An explosion rocked the No. 2 mine of the Francisco Coal company near Princeton, Ind., early today, while 50 to 60 men were at work there, according to word received at the U. S. Bureau of Mines here.

Rescue cars were ordered to the scene by the bureau at once.

General Ware Industry

a further reason in that the net reduction in wages in the last five-year period was not in reasonable ratio to the larger decrease in the cost of commodities over the same years. There were still other sound arguments that need not be recited here that seemed to justify a demand for downward revision. Nevertheless, the committee decided against filing such a demand, largely for the reason that many of the operatives were working on short time, their earnings were curtailed correspondingly, and any reduction in the wage scale would constitute a further hardship, which the committee was unwilling to sanction.

"The conclusions of the committee were submitted to a general meeting of the association held at our headquarters in East Liverpool on July 28. The recommendation that we yield nothing and ask nothing excepting the renewal of the existing scale was unanimously approved, and the usual motion was passed conferring full power upon the committee to negotiate a new agreement.

"The resulting conference with the Brotherhood representatives was convened at the Chalfonte hotel, Atlantic City, on August 11. The sessions extended over three days, during which the 31 members of the Brotherhood committee were given the opportunity to present at considerable length their arguments in support of all of their propositions, and of some extraneous things. They were informed in the beginning that nothing would be granted involving a wage concession, but, since they were delegated by the locals to present their claims, they were entitled to their day in court, and got it. Their arguments were presented in a dignified and courteous manner it must be said they made the most of a hopeless case. The outcome was a decision without a dissenting vote to renew the 1924 agreement for a period of two years following October 1, 1926, with the usual provision for a re-opening in the event of pronounced changes in labor, living or market conditions.

New Edition of Wage Scale.

"A few resolutions were adopted for the appointment of sundry joint committees, etc., all of which are embodied in the copy of the 1926 agreement.

"The last edition of the vage scale was published in September, 1920. It was decided in conference to publish a new edition that will be up to date, including all the changes in and additions to the agreement that have been enumerated in the supplements for the last six years. This revised edition should be in your hands within a few weeks. The supplement nuisance being eliminated will be good news.

"The tabulation of the results of the study of our industry made by the United States bureau of labor statistics during the summer and early fall of 1925 was published in July of this year as Bulletin 412 of the Department of Labor. It covers 164 pages, and is entitled "Wages, Hours and Productivity in the Pottery Industry." Copies of the bulletin, presumably, have been mailed to all the firms that were examined. Additional copies may be obtained upon request.

"The immediate value to the industry of this publication may not be apparent, but it is very much worth while as pegging at this point by an authoritative, governmental department the status of wages and working methods and conditions in the industry. The Sheridan survey of wages, conditions and earnings for the year 1912 and 1913 did not add much to our knowledge of conditions prevailing at that time, but the publication covering the results of that survey is now become an historical document of real value pegging conditions as they stood when that survey was made. Our association does not possess records readily available that so clearly reflect the difference in wages and labor conditions between 1913 and

Roumanian King's Condition Takes More Serious Turn

NAME DR. HOBBS KIWANIS CHIEF

Rev. O. A. Newlin Speaker at Noon Luncheon.

Dr. W. A. Hobbs, physician, was elected president of the Kiwanis club for 1927 at the annual election of officers at today's noon luncheon meeting in Larkins Annex, Market street. He will succeed Clarence C. Cline.

Charles W. Hendershot, real estate and insurance agent, was named first vice-president, while John Newell, Chester, was the club's selection for second vice president. C. C. Ashbaugh was chosen treasurer and Clarence Cline, trustee. The board of directors includes: Joseph Finley, Harry Hoffman, Harry Keys, Charles T. Larkins, Frank Swaney, Cyril Taylor and Russell C. Heddleston. The latter is a life director.

The speaker was Rev. O. A. Newlin, of Winona Lake, Ind., who is conducting a series of revival meetings at the First United Presbyterian church. He was introduced by James Anderson.

"Men must practice team work if they are going to accomplish anything," said the evangelist. If you wanted to write a history about the United States during the past 25 or 40 years you could write it around a group of approximately 25 men who have been the nation's leaders. In any community you will find a group of about 25 leaders who do the thinking and the rest follow their example.

"We are moving so fast that no one can tell what we are coming to during the next 10 years. If we look back over developments during the last decade you can readily see great things are to happen in the future. You men are in the center of a great industry and should be on the alert for the opportunity which may bring your city or community into renown over-night."

HONOR SEVEN LEGIONNAIRES

E. Liverpool Men Get County Voiture Offices.

Several East Liverpool legionnaires were honored with official positions in the Columbiana County Voiture No. 273, La Societe des 40 Hommes et 8 Chevaux, at a meeting held in the Salem American Legion home last night.

Myron Griffith, Greenford, was elected chef de gare of the order; William J. Glass, East Liverpool; chef de train; S. J. Adams, Wellsville, correspondent locale, and W, S. Foulks, East Liverpool, commissaire intendent. Other officers are:

Cecil Pearce, East Liverpool, conductor; Paul Heckert, Salem, guard de la porte; John Litty, Gus Seckler and Alex Chalfant, Salem, guard de la prisoners; J. V. Householder, P. T. Blankenship and H. J. Kaufman, members of the executive committee.

East Liverpool was selected over East Palestine as the place for the January meeting at which officers will be installed. Lunch was served by a committee of the Salem members.

Ex-service men from East Liverpool, Lisbon, Leetonia, Wellsville and East Palestine attended the session.

Physicians Say it May be Necessary to Perform Third Operation on Ferdinand.

BUCHAREST, Dec. 9.—King Ferdinand's condition has taken a more serious turn.

Physicians stated today that it may be necessary to perform a third operation on the king. Dr. Hartmann, who had planned to leave for Paris after the second operation yesterday, has deferred his departure.

The king does not realize how serious his condition is, but members of his family have been advised that he may take a critical turn at any moment.

A bulleting issued at noon stated: "His majesty is beginning to feed more abundantly. His temperature is 97 1-2 and his pulse 64. His general condition is satisfactory."

Dr. Hartmann announced he would return to Paris tomorrow if there are no new complications.

Five Months to Live.

The official communiques continue optimistic but it is learned that the death of the king would not surprise his physicians, who give him five months as the outside limit of his life.

The second operation which was performed yesterday will make the king a permanent invalid, it is stated, and has seriously taxed his heart.

A diseased liver and other complications are giving the physicians considerable worry, and it is stated that it will take at least three days for the crisis to pass and at least another week to determine the permanent results of the operation.

GEORGIA HOLDS LAD BELIEVED ERDMAN OLSON

Await Definite Word in Wisconsin Murder Inquiry.

PHOTOS MAILED

ALMA, Ga., Dec. 9.—The youth arrested here on suspicion that he may be Erdman Olson, wanted in Prairie du Chien for the murder of Clara Olson, will be held until definite word is received from Wisconsin authorities, Sheriff Walter Johnson said today.

Johnson has sent photographs of the youth who gives the name of John Pittman to Prairie du Chien, and he is awaiting further instructions. Pending these the youth will be held on a blanket charge.

The Olson suspect declared he is a native of Baltimore and worked for a time in a Miami, Fla., restaurant. He was arrested on a farm near here. Pittman denies ever having been in Wisconsin.

GRAND JURORS MEET JAN. 3

Panel for Petit Veniremen is Also Drawn.

The January term of common pleas court will open at Lisbon on Monday, January 3, when the biggest docket ever known in Columbiana county will be up for disposal. On Tuesday the names of 40 persons were drawn from the jury wheel by Sheriff George Wright and Clerk Frank Ballantine to serve on the grand and petit juries.

For some years it has been the custom in the court here for the grand jury members to begin their work on the opening day of court, but the members of the petit jury began their work the beginning of the second week, the opening week being devoted to the hearing of motions and demurrers by the trial judge. Owing to the enormous docket Judge W. F. Lones will open the term with the petit jury on the job.

Those drawn to serve on the grand and petit juries are: Grand Jury—E. G. Votaw, Cora McClain, A. W. Stiver, Salem; Charles Fuhrman, Columbiana; Gus Alexander, Ftlix J. Savage, Ralph T. Couch, Ann McNicol, Minnie Trotter, T. E. Lewis, East Liverpool; Stewart Patterson, H. S. Burnett, Eva Moore, Lisbon; Jacob J. Koch, Eva May Rupert, New Waterford.

Petit jury—George Goppert, Lloyd S. Gilmore, Bertha M. Cheeks, Harry J. Price, Orlando H. Steele, Robert Corns, Clinton C. Cline, John C. Carnahan, Joseph Betz, Robert Cartwright, East Liverpool; R. M. Wilson, Negley; Walter Abrams, Elkton; Luella Garrand, Morris Brinker, Columbiana; Charles H. Adams, New Waterford; W. F. Heastand, North Georgetown; John Mundy, N. J. Earl, Dora Hunter, Salineville; W. E. McIntosh, Wellsville; Mrs Ida Bedell, Anna Tucker, Ruby Donahey, Salem; H. J. Fraser, East Palestine; C. J. Halverstadt, Leetonia.

ORMISTON, WANTED IN AIMEE M'PHERSON CASE, FOUND

DENIES HIDING

Admits Identity, But Will Fight Return to California.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Dec. 9.—Kenneth Ormiston, arrested here by Chicago Detectives Charles Bonnelly and Harry Ellwood, in connection with the Aimee McPherson case in Los Angeles, left here today for Los Angeles, having waived extradition.

Donnelly and Ellwood arrived here from Chicago last night to make the arrest, Ellwood having been on the trail of Ormiston for some time, it was said.

When arrested in the apartment which he has occupied in Harrisburg, Ormiston ,who was using the name of "Fred Lininger," immediately admitted his identity. He told police that he had been making his living by writing and soliciting subscriptions for radio magazines.

Plans "Last Ditch" Fight.

CHICAGO, Dec. 9.—Kenneth Ormiston will make a "last ditch" fight in Chicago against extradition to Los Angeles, Edward H. S. Martin, his attorney, announced today.

Disagreeing with reports that Ormiston planned to return voluntarily to Los Angles from Harrisburg, Pa., Martin said he was coming of his own volition to Chicago where the legal battle would begin.

CHICAGO, Dec. 9.—Kenneth G. Ormiston, fugitive radio operator wanted in Los Angeles in connection with the Aimee Semple McPherson case, has been located in Harrisburg, Pa., according to a copyrighted story appearing in the Chicago Herald-Examiner today.

Ormiston was found last night living in a two-story apartment fronting on the Susquehanna river. He resided there under the name of "Fred Lininger."

When the Herald-Examiner reporter, accompanied by two Chicago detectives, walked in on Ormiston, he smiled and quietly admitted his identity.

"Yes, I am Ormiston," he said, "but this is only the beginning. There will be a long, hard fight before I go back to California. Also I feel that District Attorney Asa Keyes is not very anxious to have me go back for trial."

The former Angelus Temple radio announcer is under indictment in California charged with subornation of perjury and conspiracy to defeat justice.

Amazes "Uninvited Guests."

Ormiston amazed his "uninvited guests" when he explained how he has made a living since he fled from California. He stated he has been writing articles for radio magazines and that recently he sold an article which is soon to appear under his own name in a magazine having nation-wide circulation.

Ormiston declined to discuss any of the thousands of stories which have linked his name with that of Aimee McPherson. But he was quite willing, according to the reporter, to talk about anything and everything else.

When the reporter, having traced him for several months, knocked last night on the door of the Front street flat, it was Ormiston who opened. He made no attempt at deception when he was addressed as "Mr. Ormiston."

"Come in," he said.

Sergeant Carson of the Harrisburg force was called to Ormiston's flat as soon as his identity was established.

Writes for Living.

Ormiston sat on the edge of a folding bed, and in front of him on an infirm table stood his typewriter with a sheet of manuscript in it.

"I have to write for a living," he explained.

Then he said:

"Would you gentlemen mind showing me your credentials, so I may know whom I am talking to?"

He glanced at the cards and said he was satisfied.

"There are some few things I shall not care to discuss with you," he went on, "but on other subjects I shall be glad to give you whatever information I can."

Ormiston willingly put on his hat and overcoat and went out with the reporter and the officer as their "guest."

"I really can't understand," he said, "why it has taken so long for you people to find me—or rather for somebody to find me, considering the great number who have been trying. For the fact is that I have made no particular effort to hide."

Aimee Not Concerned.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 9. — Aimee Semple McPherson attaches "no significance whatsoever" to the fact that Kenneth G. Ormiston has been found in Harrisburg, Pa.

She so declared herself here today when informed the former radio operator of her Angelus temple had been located.

"I am not in the least concerned about or interested in Mr. Ormiston's whereabouts," the famous evangelist said.

Mrs. McPherson added she was too busy with the Christmas program of her temple to be bothered about "matters that did not concern her in the least."

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKETS

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—Short covering and speculative buying of the high-priced industrial and specialties accounted for the moderate rally during early trading on the stock exchange today. More than $5,388,000 worth of property was destroyed by dry agents. Seizures included 12,227 distilleries, 130,000 fermenters, 1,247,000 gallons of distilled spirits, 14,220,000 gallons of malt liquor, 193,000 gallons of cider, 5,935 automobiles and 187 boats and launches.

DOHENY'S WIFE AND SON TAKE WITNESS STAND

E. L. Doheny, Jr., Carried $100,000 Cash for Fall.

Following his mother came E. L. Doheny, jr., who carried the "little black catchel" to Washington with $100,000 in currency for Fall.

Waiving all immunity, Mrs. Doheny told of her part in the $100,000 loan made by Doheny to Fall, which the government contends constituted a bribe.

Fall gave a demand note for the money, she declared. The note was torn in half and her husband gave her the part containing the signature. This was done, she said, so that Fall would not be pressed for the money in event that anything happened to her or to her husband.

Tells About Loan.

"Did you know about the loan to Mr. Fall?" asked Frank J. Hogan, chief defense counsel.

"Yes."

"Who told you?"

"My husband. He said Secretary Fall needed it to buy a ranch, and I said I would be glad to let him have it."

"Did you know about the physical details of the loan?"

"No, but when, on November 30, I suggested we have Ned (her son) in for dinner, my husband said 'Ned has gone to Washington. I've made the loan.'"

"Did you see the note for this loan?"

"Yes, when Ned came back."

"When it was in its entirety?"

"Yes."

"Were you present when it was torn?"

"Yes."

"Will you state why it was torn?"

"We were getting ready to leave for California. My husband was looking at the note. Suddenly he said: 'If anything should happen to me and this note were found in my wallet, the executors would press immediately for payment, and Mr. Fall would be worse off than ever. I shall tear off the signature and give it to you and keep the body myself. Then, if anything should happen, you will know and Mr. Fall will not be embarrassed.'"

"Did you keep the signature?"

"Yes."

"Where?"

"In a deposit box in the Security Trust and Savings bank of Los Angeles."

o'clock when Chief of Police McDermott, Captain Conley, Patrolmen Roth, Smith, Lister, Haley and McFarland and Special Officer Curran, met at city hall and were given search warrants.

Chief McDermott went to the Diamond pool room, Captain Conley to the Unique and Academy pool rooms, Patrolman Lister to the American, Patrolman Haley to the National pool room, Patrolman McFarland to the Liberty, Patrolman Roth to the Madison pool room in East End, Patrolman Smith to the Kane establishment and Special officer Curran to the Patterson place.

100 Punch Boards Seized.

Nearly 100 punch boards were confiscated, many never having been used. Two boards known as "The California Gold Mine," in which cash prizes of $20, $10 and $5 were offered, were seized in two places. Other punch boards offered candy and other merchandise. Police seized no merchandise.

According to Chief McDermott, the punch boards were placed in the establishments about two weeks ago by a salesman for a Chicago house, who promised "big returns." Each board, the chief said, explained where the lucky numbers were located on the board and these numbers which called for cash prizes of $20, $10 and $5 could be removed before the boards were placed on sale. On a 5,000-hole card, the dealer collected $500 and paid out $170, making a profit of about $330. By using the secret key the dealer, police say, could punch out several of the large prize winning numbers before placing it on the counter.

Another Liquor Charge.

The seven men nabbed in the raid pleaded guilty to the gambling charges when they were given their hearings this morning and paid fines totalling $400. Canady also paid his fine on the liquor charge.

One other alleged liquor violator was arrested early this morning when Harry Martin was taken into custody by Patrolman McFarland near the high school building. Three half pints of whisky were found in his possession police say. He pleaded guilty when he faced Judge Hanley and was fined $100 and costs.

Today's police court session netted more than $700. Besides those apprehended in the raids, several others held on charges of being drunk and disorderly drew the customary fine of $10 and costs.

POTTERS FACE FOREIGN FIGHT

European Competition Serious Problem, Says Burgess.

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—(Special to the Review-Tribune).—The American ceramic industry faces serious competition from European pottery manufacturers, William Burgess, Trenton, first vice president of the United Potters association, reported at [illegible] session of the annual convention at the Waldorf-Astoria hotel here yesterday afternoon.

Burgess has been making an intensive study of the tariff situation as it affects American general ware manufacturers. Greater attention will be given to the question during the coming year than ever before, manufacturers decided.

Thomas Anderson, Coshocton, was elected president of the association at the closing session; Joseph M. Wells, second vice president, and Charles F. Goodwin, East Liverpool, secretary-treasurer.

It was explained yesterday that of the nearly 600 kilns represented in the association, 150 are now engaged in the production of an ivory body, and that more are to go into this line. This will include the National China company, Salineville, Ohio, and the Dresden Pottery company, East Liverpool, Ohio.

Rescue Cars Ordered.

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 9.—An explosion rocked the No. 2 mine of the Francisco Coal company near Princeton, Ind., early today, while 50 to 60 men were at work there, according to word received at the U. S. Bureau of Mines here.

Rescue cars were ordered to the scene by the bureau at once.

a further reason in that the net reduction in wages in the last five-year period was not in reasonable ratio to the larger decrease in the cost of commodities over the same years. There were still other sound arguments that need not be recited here that seemed to justify a demand for downward revision. Nevertheless, the committee decided against filing such a demand, largely for the reason that many of the operatives were working on short time, their earnings were curtailed correspondingly, and any reduction in the wage scale would constitute a further hardship, which the committee was unwilling to sanction.

"The conclusions of the committee were submitted to a general meeting of the association held at our headquarters in East Liverpool on July 28. The recommendation that we yield nothing and ask nothing excepting the renewal of the existing scale was unanimously approved, and the usual motion was passed conferring full power upon the committee to negotiate a new agreement.

"The resulting conference with the Brotherhood representatives was convened at the Chalfonte hotel, Atlantic City, on August 11. The sessions extended over three days, during which the 31 members of the Brotherhood committee were given the opportunity to present at considerable length their arguments in support of all of their propositions, and of some extraneous things. They were informed in the beginning that nothing would be granted involving a wage concession, but, since they were delegated by the locals to present their claims, they were entitled to their day in court, and got it. Their arguments were presented in a dignified and courteous manner It must be said they made the most of a hopeless case. The outcome was a decision without a dissenting vote to renew the 1924 agreement for a period of two years following October 1, 1926, with the usual provision for a re-opening in the event of pronounced changes in labor, living or market conditions.

New Edition of Wage Scale.

"A few resolutions were adopted for the appointment of sundry joint committees, etc., all of which are embodied in the copy of the 1926 agreement.

"The last edition of the vage scale was published in September, 1920. It was decided in conference to publish a new edition that will be up to date, including all the changes in and additions to the agreement that have been enumerated in the supplements for the last six years. This revised edition should be in your hands within a few weeks. The supplement nuisance being eliminated will be good news.

"The tabulation of the results of the study of our industry made by the United States bureau of labor statistics during the summer and early fall of 1925 was published in July of this year as Bulletin 412 of the Department of Labor. It covers 164 pages, and is entitled "Wages, Hours and Productivity in the Pottery Industry." Copies of the bulletin, presumably, have been mailed to all the firms that were examined. Additional copies may be obtained upon request.

"The immediate value to the industry of this publication may not be apparent, but it is very much worth while as pegging at this point by an authoritative, governmental department the status of wages and working methods and conditions in the industry. The Sheridan survey of wages, conditions and earnings for the year 1912 and 1913 did not add much to our knowledge of conditions prevailing at that time, but the publication covering the results of that survey is now become an historical document of real value pegging conditions as they stood when that survey was made. Our association does not possess records readily available that so clearly reflect the difference in wages and labor conditions between 1913 and

Rev. O. A. Newlin Speaker at Noon Luncheon.

Dr. W. A. Hobbs, physician, was elected president of the Kiwanis club for 1927 at the annual election of officers at today's noon luncheon meeting in Larkins Annex, Market street. He will succeed Clarence C. Cline.

Charles W. Hendershot, real estate and insurance agent, was named first vice-president, while John Newell, Chester, was the club's selection for second vice president. C. C. Ashbaugh was chosen treasurer and Clarence Cline, trustee. The board of directors includes: Joseph Finley, Harry Hoffman, Harry Keys, Charles T. Larkins, Frank Swaney, Cyril Taylor and Russell C. Heddleston. The latter is a life director.

The speaker was Rev. O. A. Newlin, of Winona Lake, Ind., who is conducting a series of revival meetings at the First United Presbyterian church. He was introduced by James Anderson.

"Men must practice team work if they are going to accomplish anything," said the evangelist. If you wanted to write a history about the United States during the past 25 or 40 years you could write it around a group of approximately 25 men who have been the nation's leaders. In any community you will find a group of about 25 leaders who do the thinking and the rest follow their example.

"We are moving so fast that no one can tell what we are coming to during the next 10 years. If we look back over developments during the last decade you can readily see great things are to happen in the future. You men are in the center of a great industry and should be on the alert for the opportunity which may bring your city or community into renown over-night."

HONOR SEVEN LEGIONNAIRES

E. Liverpool Men Get County Voiture Offices.

Several East Liverpool legionnaires were honored with official positions in the Columbiana County Voiture No. 273, La Societe des 40 Hommes et 8 Chevaux, at a meeting held in the Salem American Legion home last night.

Myron Griffith, Greenford, was elected chef de gare of the order; William J. Glass, East Liverpool; chef de train; S. J. Adams, Wellsville, correspondent locale, and W. S. Foulks, East Liverpool, commissaire intendent. Other officers are:

Cecil Pearce, East Liverpool, conductor; Paul Heckert, Salem, guard de la porte; John Litty, Gus Seckler and Alex Chalfant, Salem, guard de la prisoners; J. V. Householder, P. T. Blankenship and H. J. Kaufman, members of the executive committee.

East Liverpool was selected over East Palestine as the place for the January meeting at which officers will be installed. Lunch was served by a committee of the Salem members.

Ex-service men from East Liverpool, Lisbon, Leetonia, Wellsville and East Palestine attended the session.

For some years it has been the custom in the court here for the grand jury members to begin their work on the opening day of court, but the members of the petit jury began their work the beginning of the second week, the opening week being devoted to the hearing of motions and demurrers by the trial judge. Owing to the enormous docket Judge W. F. Lones will open the term with the petit jury on the job.

Those drawn to serve on the grand and petit juries are: Grand Jury—E. G. Votaw, Cora McClain, A. W. Stiver, Salem; Charles Fuhrman, Columbiana; Gus Alexander, Ftlix J. Savage, Ralph T. Couch, Ann McNicol, Minnie Trotter, T. E. Lewis, East Liverpool; Stewart Patterson, H. S. Burnett, Eva Moore, Lisbon; Jacob J. Koch, Eva May Rupert, New Waterford.

Petit jury—George Goppert, Lloyd S. Gilmore, Bertha M. Cheeks, Harry J. Price, Orlando H. Steele, Robert Corns, Clinton C. Cline, John C. Carnahan, Joseph Betz, Robert Cartwright, East Liverpool; R. M. Wilson, Negley; Walter Abrams, Elkton; Luella Garrand, Morris Brinker, Columbiana; Charles H. Adams, New Waterford; W. F. Heastand, North Georgetown; John Mundy, N. J. Earl, Dora Hunter, Salineville; W. E. McIntosh, Wellsville; Mrs Ida Bedell, Anna Tucker, Ruby Donahey, Salem; H. J. Fraser, East Palestine; C. J. Halverstadt, Leetonia.

Most Astounding Metamorphoses Ever Devised

THE GREAT BLACKSTONE, astride a magnificient Arabian stallion, is seized by a score of sinister figures in robes and hoods —hanged high in the air the necromancer makes his sensational escape, leaps upon the charger, dashes into cabin and then—a mighty explosion rocks the very foundation of earth, the hut falls and stands revealed rider with bridle and saddle—

SALARIES OF DRY AGENTS REDUCED

Prohibition agents in the West Virginia district will suffer a reduction in wages. John D. Pennington, newly appointed commissioner of the West Virginia district, has notified several of his agents throughout the state of the reduction, which is not being met with much favor. Under the new ruling, agents will receive no less than an average of $50 a week, which, according to statements of several is not sufficient.

Complaints protesting against the drastic economical measures being taken by the new chief will be filed with H. N. Bradley, in charge of J. Walter Bee and Joseph J. Doerr, who come under the ax of the new administration.

Mr. Bradley is at present in Keyser, in conference with District Attorney Arthur Arnold. He will go to Pittsburgh to confer with J. D. Pennington before returning to Wheeling the last part of the week.

Special Offer To Victims of Chronic Indigestion

Jesse D. Holloway Says Pleasant to Take, Elixir Must Help Poor Distressed Stomachs or Money Gladly Refunded.

You can be so distressed with gas and fullness that you think your heart is going to stop beating.

Your stomach may be so distended that your breathing is short and gaspy.

You are dizzy and pray for quick relief—what's to be done.

Just one tablespoonful of Dare's Mentha Pepsin and in ten minutes the gas disappears, the pressing on the heart ceases and you can breathe deep and naturally.

Oh! What blessed relief; but why not get rid of such attacks altogether? Why have chronic indigestion at all?

Especially when Jesse D. Holloway or any druggist anywhere guarantees Dare's Mentha Pepsin, a pleasant elixir, to end indigestion, acute or chronic or money back.

No More Piles

Thousands Bless Dr. Leonhardt, the Physician Who Discovered This Common Sense Remedy

If you think that the surgeon's knife is the only method of escape from the misery of piles, it's because you have not heard of the new treatment known as Dr. Leonhardt's HEM-ROID.

This Doctor's treatment is internal. By experimenting for years he discovered the exact cause of piles and then went further and compounded a remedy that would remove the cause.

Dr. Leonhardt wants every sufferer to benefit by his discovery and so that there will be no doubting or delay, C. G. Anderson and all druggists are authorized to sell HEM-ROID with guarantee that it will do as stated or money back.

On that honorable basis every sufferer should secure a package of Dr. Leonhardt's HEM-ROID today.

The ENTERTAINING ANGEL

By SAMUEL MERWIN

SYNOPSIS.

Julian Reed is wandering southern California in his little roadster. At luncheon in a small restaurant he meets, by chance, a charming, rather wistful young woman. She has missed connections with a troupe of vagabonding actors and he offers to drive her to the troupe's next stopping place, La Jolla. She accepts his offer. Julian meets Watt, the chief of the "Wayside Theatre"; Sadie, an ex-chorus girl, and the rest. Julian comes to the rescue of the troupe financially. Sadie is attracted to him. She tells him how Hester risked everything to try for the leading role in a movie of a play written by "Robert Johns," failed and joined the troupe as a last resort. Julian falls in love with Hester but when she learns of his financial help to Watt, is angry and will have nothing to do with him. Watt offers him a half interest in the enterprise for $4,000 and he accepts. Then he goes to Hollywood. While there he buys a snappy roadster and new clothes. In the meantime Watt gives a dinner to the troupe, introducing a new member, a college boy, Joe Maybury. He, too, loves Hester. She knows he is much younger than she but to her he is the symbol of youth and his love helps restore her faith in herself. The other members of the troupe understand and pity her. Hester and Joe ride together on the back of one of the trucks all the way in to San Diego. Julian awaits the troupe there. At last they come and he is warmly greeted by al but Hester and Joe. At last he sees Hester but she barely nods to him and when he approaches her she walks away. He has brought her a beautiful bracelet, but when she snubs him he tries to give it to a passing sailor for his girl, and failing that he thrusts it upon Sadie.

Because of his clumsiness in helping with the scenery Joe names Julian "Marceline" after an old clown who tries to help but is in everyone's way. Unintentionally at first he calls Julian Marceline to his face which angers him very much. Sadie suggests that Julian "fire" Joe.

Julian decides that he can't do that.

Julian has a talk with Hester, telling her he considers her wonderful. She doesn't know how to answer him and wishes he'd go.

Jim Wilde, stage manager, tells Julian that Lester, the young leading man, is leaving the troupe and that Hester and Watt think Joe may be trained to fill his place. It is decided that he will be given the chance and Julian and Jim go to find Hester and Joe in Julian's car.

CHAPTER TWENTY-ONE.

Sadie looked after them with eager curiosity, as they drove away.

"What I've been thinking"—thus spoke Jim, as the car sped down the road — "is that the whole program hangs on controlling Murry, somehow. His vanity makes it pretty difficult. But now you . . ."

". . . . . you could do it."

"I don't quite . . . ."

"You're half owner. Really more, considering what you paid on the old touring car."

He watched Julian in some anxiety, while that elusive and prodigal young man was brining himself up to the point of speech.

"I'm absolutely no good at business."

"What we need, of course, is a business manager with a little real authority. I'm not sure that Murry mightn't put up with it, at that, if we played him up harder in the billing. He'd love a little real publicity. And in the end he wouldn't mind making a little money. If we could only get control out of his hands and flatter his vanity at the same time! You know . . . . kick him upstairs. As things stand now, every one of our problems leads straight back to him. We'll never succeed while he runs the troupe. Never!"

"I don't care about the four thousand," said Julian. His brows were knit. Jim hadn't before seen this look of rather puzzled determination on that sensitive, unaccountable face; and didn't know now that it found its origin in a wish on Julian's part to compel himself to face the facts. Jim was practical, and knew little of the struggle, in an imaginative personality like Julian's, between dream and actuality. . . . "No, I don't care about that. You know what I mean. . . . I'd just as soon let the four thousand go."

"You would?" Jim looked more than a little dazed.

"Oh, yes!" He seemed really eager about it. "I mean, I wouldn't want Mr. Watt's wasting it to eat into the profit-sharing part of it for all you folks. No, it wouldn't be right to insist on your paying it back. But I supose we would have to stop somewhere."

Jim was still staring. Was this fellow made of money? . . . . He grunted. "Hm! Try stopping Murry just once! Try it! He's a madman. There's just one way . . . .Throw him down and sit on him."

They left the car on the higher ground and walked down to the beach.

"There they are," said Jim gruffly, "rehearsing."

The two, Hester and Joe, stood far down the beach, just above the curving line of flotsam left by the surf. Their mouths moved, but no sound reached the two men on the rocks. Hester made an animated little figure, barely half the size of the youth before her. She danced about like a sprite, all gayety. Then, in a sudden timidity, after an engaging little curtsey, she extended one hand toward Joe. He caught it ardently. She pushed him away, correcting him. It was the final scene of "Better to Have Loved and Won." Again he tok the shyly extended hand, with something of the stiff British dignity demanded by the role. Then, with what appeared to be a burst of merry laughter, he drew her to him and bent over as if to kiss her.

But Hester slipped away and ran along the beach. He pursued. She dodged and ran back. She was almost as swift as he, and much quicker. She twisted and turned, running and dodging like a frightened fox. But finally he caught her, swung her around, picek her up in his arms and kissed her. Then he ran a little way along the surf stopped, and made as if to throw her into the spume of an inrushing wave. Julian faintly heard a scream. He saw Joe kissing her again. Her little arms were tightly clasped about the boy's neck.

He felt Jim's eye on him now, but could only stand rigidly, whitely there.

"I'll go for them," said Jim.

Julian found his voice. "I'll wait in the car," he said, and walked swiftly back. Hester hadn't seen him.

He turned the car about. He couldn't bring himself to watch them, as they approached over the rocks. His nerves were a jingle, but a wholly new clear thought was finding a place in his imagination. There had been something curiously primitive in that little scene . . . . the woman fleeing, yet wildly eager to be caught, eager to be kissed, eager even to scream.

SCHOOL BOND MEET CALLED

Boosters' Club Plans Taxpayers' Rally Friday.

Proposed bond issue of $60,000 for the improvement of three school buildings in Chester, to be voted on at a special election next Tuesday, will be discussed at an open meeting tomorrow night under the auspices of the Boosters' club in the Masonic temple, First street.

Officials of the club today issued an invitation to all taxpayers in the city to attend the meeting which will be held at 7:30 o'clock.

R. B. Rutledge will preside.

WATER SYSTEM IS COMPLETED

New Plant is Accepted by Holliday's Cove Council.

The new $45,000 water system has been completed by the Pittsburgh-Des Moines Steel and Piping company, and was accepted by the members of the Holliday's Cove city council at a special meeting held in the city building.

With the completion of the water system, Holliday's Cove is now given first-class water protection in case of fires, and individuals are likewise afforded the opportunity of securing running water in their homes. The contract, which was let in late September to the Pittsburgh-Des Moines Steel company, was for the construction of pipe lines 4-6-8 inch, equivalent to five miles of piping. The water supply will be purchased from the Weirton Steel company, whose filtered water supply now is furnishing Weirton township.

The supply of water which in the future will be available for use in Holliday's Cove will equal that of any city in the Ohio valley. Between 105 and 110 pounds pressure will be available for use at all times.

With the completion of the water supply, a need in Holliday's Cove for many years, the building program for this progressive community is expected to increase rapidly. The building program has been hindered considerably in the past by lack of fire protection, which is now available. Citizens have expressed satisfaction in the construction of the new water system, which was in use for the first time on Tuesday, December 7.

WOOL PRODUCTION TO BE INCREASED

A campaign to stock West Virginia farms with 3,000,000 sheep is under way by the Wool Growers' association in co-operation with the Eastern Wool Growers' federation.

Increasing the sheep production will insure an annual revenue of $30,000,000, association officers say. Present wool production from the 600,000 head of sheep now in West Virginia brings approximately $6,000,000 into the state.

The aim of the association is not only to get more wool produced but market it in a modern way that will assure the consumer wool of highest quality, while guaranteeing the producer top prices.

WEIRTON MAN IS ELECTROCUTED

Paul Caiva, 33 years old, was instantly killed yesterday morning when he stepped on a charged wire while working in the yards of the Weirton Steel company.

The body was taken to the Hartnick funeral parlors.

Coroner George A. Arner, of Chester, conducted an inquest in the case last night and returned a verdict of "accidental death."

He is survived by two brothers who reside in Detroit, Mich.

CLASS PLAYLET HERE TONIGHT

Large crowd is expected to attend the production of "Arnold Goes Into Business" this evening under the auspices of the senior class of the high school in the Lincoln theatre.

Matinee is scheduled this afternoon for children.

Registering Voters.

Members of the board of education are sitting today in the city hall for the purpose of registering new voters and correcting the November election lists for the special election on the school bond issue next Tuesday. Books will be closed at 9 o'clock tonight.

GOITRE REMOVED

For Many In Ohio, Without Knife. Colorless Liniment Used.

Elliot Pyle, Doanville, Ohio, says: "Sorbol-Quadruple removed my inward goitre in short time. The choking, smothering and dizziness soon left. My nerves were a complete wreck. The What and Why of a "Diuretic"

Diuretics are used to aid the kidneys in carrying on their necessary work of picking out of the blood stream certain poisons which must be regularly carried off in the secretions to preserve the system from self-poisoning. Foley Pills, diuretic, in constant use over twenty-five years, a reliable, valuable medicine, aid in regulating this flow and in keeping the system free of the lurking poisons that cause certain phases of ill health and bodily pains. Satisfaction guaranteed. Ask for Foley Pills, diuretic. You may need them now. Sold everywhere.

Library Extension Grows.

Library extension has become so general with the colleges and universities of the United States, that this type of service is now being maintained regularly by thrity-five of the leading institutions. The service is free with the exception of the postage charge for transmitting books to the residents interested.

WELLSVILLE FIRE TRUCK-PUMPER BIDS CONSIDERED

SIX PROPOSALS SUBMITTED TO FOGO, ASHLEY

Report Will be Made to Council on December 14.

$12,500 NEEDED

Legislation Necessary Before Contract is Available.

Six bids, received from as many different firms, on a new fire truck and pumper, combined, are being considered today by the city's board of control, including Mayor W. L. Fogo and Safety-Service Director George F. Ashley preparatory for a report to council at an adjourned meeting on Tuesday Dec. 14.

Decision on the kind of truck needed to meet the requirements of the municipality will be made by the board of control and their proposal will be submitted to council.

The solons then will be asked to enact legislation for a bond issue amounting to $12,500, which it is decided, will be necessary to purchase the equipment.

With preliminary legislation out of the way, solons will authorize the board of control to enter into a contract for the machine

The adjourned meeting was planned by council at the request of Director Ashley who pointed out Tuesday night that he had had insufficient time in which to carefully examine the bids.

PERSONALS

Mrs. Bernard Hartman, of the Lisbon road, has returned from a ten-day visit with her sister, Mrs. H. P. Moss, in Crafton, Pa. She also spent several days with her daughter, Mrs. Rogers Geiser, of Evanswood, Pa.

Mrs. M. R. Shingler, of Main street, was a Pittsburgh visitor yesterday.

Mrs. E. M. Hartford, Maple avenue, is confined to her home by illness.

Condition of Mrs. George Hough, Maple avenue, who recently returned from the Salem Clinic hospital, is reported to be improving.

Mrs. C. O. Ball, Commerce street has concluded a visit with relatives in Huntington, W Va.

More Emotional Religion Needed Says Evangelist

Stressing the need of more emotional religion, Rev. H. A. Frye discussed the subject, "What Must We Do to Be Saved?" at last night's revival meeting in the First Evangelical church.

His subject for tonight will be, "Gambling With Destiny." The Nazarene church orchestra will render special music.

"The answer to the text question 'What Must We Do to Be Saved?' is contained in the 31st verse," said the evangelist. "It it—'Believe on the Lord, Jesus Christ.'

"Some people never like a revival because it is unusual. The earthquake in Paul's and Silas' day came in answer to prayer.

"The event seriously effected the jailer so much so that he was about to take his life. But Paul said 'do thy self no harm for we are all here.' The jailor asked the question of the text, 'what must I do to be saved?'

"There is an idea among men today that it is a mark of weakness for a man to cry in church. The very opposite in true. It's a mark of real manhood.

"We need more emotional religion in the Evangelical church.

"There is implied the thought in our text that we ought to be saved. There is also implied the possibility of being saved, but we must believe. First we must believe that He can save; second, that He will save, third, that He does save.

"Before we can believe we must do what is commanded in Issiah 55, 6-7. "Seek ye the Lord while He may be found, call upon Him while He is near. Let the wicked forsake his way, and the unrighteous man his thoughts, and let Him return unto the Lord, and He will have mercy upon him.'

"You never got to Jesus until you step out of the old ways. It's more than turning over a new leaf. To turn over a new leaf does not get rid of the old account. For every successful bookkeeper knows that you always carry forward the old account upon the new page unless its been paid for.

"A lot of folks would like to become christians but they won't forsake their own way.

"Conversion is not a change of opinion concerning Christ. But it is a change of attitude in your heart toward Christ."

Will Serve Supper.

Members of the seating committee of the A. M. E. church will entertain at a chicken supper, from 4 to 8, on Saturday evening in the Knights of Pythias lodgerooms. Mrs. C. A. Spires is chairman of the committee.

PLAN BRANCH OF SALVATION ARMY IN CITY

Campaign for $2,060 Will be Staged Here.

CHURCHES TO AID

Citizens Help is Sought in Yule Relief Work.

In an effort to effect the establishment of a permanent Salvation Army station here, officers and local representatives of the mercy organization are perfecting the plans for a $2,060 campaign which will be put on before Christmas.

The work is being undertaken at the invitation of the Wellsville Ministerial association.

One thousand dollars of the quota, which, if reached, will insure the success of the project, will be used as a relief fund during the year. This provides for a hall and one worker, at present, to handle affairs of the army here.

C. J. Vogel will direct the drive as campaign manager, and under his direction a number of teams will canvass the city for the budget fund.

Citizens have been urged to report cases of need and their proposed offerings to Major Hughes—phone Main 1339—not later than December 20, in order that the army's relief work might be made more efficient through avoiding duplication of baskets and gifts.

If co-operation is obtained in this, officials essert, every needy family in the city will be reached through the distribution point that will be established here for the purpose.

INTER-ALLIED CONTROL BOARD QUITS GERMANY

PLAN ACCEPTED

Briand and Stresemann Approve League's Report.

GENEVA, Dec. 9.—Foreign Minister Briand of France and Foreign Minister Stresemann of Germany after a conference today accepted the league of nations experts' report providing for the recall of the inter-allied military control commission from Germany on January 15.

This commission will be replaced by the league's investigation plan, which has been accepted by Germany.

A meeting of the ambassadors' conference was scheduled for this afternoon in Paris to confirm M. Briand's and Herr Stresemann's decision.

The agreement reached today will permit Herr Stresemann to return to Germany, claiming a victory and may avert a serious political crisis, inasmuch as the nationalists had threatened the goverinment if it did not secure the withdrawal of the inter-allied military control commission.

It is understood that the meeting of the ambassadors' council will receive assurances from Germany regarding charges which have been made that Germany is violating some of the provisions of the Versailles treaty with regard to armaments.

MURPHY WILL NOT RESIGN

Congressman Denies Rumor of Retirement.

In a letter to a Cadiz newspaper, published recently, Congressman Frank B. Murphy of Steubenville, formally denies rumors that he will retire from congress after the expiration of the 70th congress.

"I have not yet reached the place in my career," asserts Congressman Murphy, "where I have decided to retire, but feel that the longer I have remained as the representative of the people of the 18th district, the better service I shall be able to render."

Murphy calls attention to the influence wielded in legislative matters by the state of Pennsylvania by the continued service of their congressmen. Stephen G. Porter, of Pittsburgh, he points out, is the chairman of the foreign relations committee; Mr. McFadden is chairman of the banking committee; Mr. Graham is chairman of the judiciary committee; Mr. Vare is a member of the appropriations committee; Mr. Butler is chairman of the naval affairs committee; Mr. Morin is chairman of the military affairs committee.

"These chairmanships," he explains, "have all come about through continued service in congress and it is pleasing to note that Ohio has adopted the plan to keep their men in congress long enough to get the place in legislative influence to which their people are entitled."

MRS. CHAS. BOYD CLUB HOSTESS

Mrs. Charles Boyd will be hostess to members of the Woman's club this afternoon at her home in Riverside avenue.

An informal program will be carried out, including fancywork and other diversions. Dinner will be served at 6 o'clock.

Guests will include Mrs. Charles Stevenson, Cleveland; Mrs. Nell Wade, Beaver, and Mrs. Boothman, of this city.

Class Plans Supper.

Members of the Lady Helpers' class of the Church of the Ascension, Episcopal, will hold a supper tonight in the parish house of the church, Eleventh and Center streets. The hours will be from 5 to 7.

WELLSVILLE FIRE TRUCK-PUMPER BIDS CONSIDERED

SIX PROPOSALS SUBMITTED TO FOGO, ASHLEY

Report Will be Made to Council on December 14.

Legislation Necessary Before Contract is Available.

Six bids, received from as many different firms, on a new fire truck and pumper, combined, are being considered today by the city's board of control, including Mayor W. L. Fogo and Safety-Service Director George P. Ashley preparatory for a report to council at an adjourned meeting on Tuesday Dec. 14.

Decision on the kind of truck needed to meet the requirements of the municipality will be made by the board of control and their proposal will be submitted to council.

The solons then will be asked to enact legislation for a bond issue amounting to $12,500, which it is decided, will be necessary to purchase the equipment.

With preliminary legislation out of the way, solons will authorize the board of control to enter into a contract for the machine

The adjourned meeting was planned by council at the request of Director Ashley who pointed out Tuesday night that he had had insufficient time in which to carefully examine the bids.

PERSONALS

Mrs. Bernard Hartman, of the Lisbon road, has returned from a ten-day visit with her sister, Mrs. H. P. Moss, in Crafton, Pa. She also spent several days with her daughter, Mrs. Rogers Geiser, of Evanswood, Pa.

Mrs. M. R. Shingler, of Main street, was a Pittsburgh visitor yesterday.

Mrs. E. M. Hartford, Maple avenue, is confined to her home by illness.

Condition of Mrs. George Hough, Maple avenue, who recently returned from the Salem Clinic hospital, is reported to be improving.

Mrs. C. O. Ball, Commerce street has concluded a visit with relatives in Huntington, W Va.

More Emotional Religion Needed Says Evangelist

Stressing the need of more emotional religion, Rev. H. A. Frye discussed the subject, "What Must We Do to Be Saved?" at last night's revival meeting in the First Evangelical church.

His subject for tonight will be, "Gambling With Destiny." The Nazarene church orchestra will render special music.

"The answer to the text question 'What Must We Do to Be Saved?' is contained in the 31st verse," said the evangelist. "It it—'Believe on the Lord, Jesus Christ.'

"Some people never like a revival because it is unusual. The earthquake in Paul's and Silas' day came in answer to prayer.

"The event seriously effected the jailer so much so that he was about to take his life. But Paul said 'do thy self no harm for we are all here.' The jailor asked the question of the text, 'what must I do to be saved?'

"There is an idea among men today that it is a mark of weakness for a man to cry in church. The very opposite in true. It's a mark of real manhood.

"We need more emotional religion in the Evangelical church.

"There is implied the thought in our text that we ought to be saved. There is also implied the possibility of being saved, but we must believe. First we must believe that He can save; second, that He will save, third, that He does save.

"Before we can believe we must do what is commanded in Issiah 55, 6-7. "Seek ye the Lord while He may be found, call upon Him while He is near. Let the wicked forsake his way, and the unrighteous man his thoughts, and let Him return unto the Lord, and He will have mercy upon him.'

"You never got to Jesus until you step out of the old ways. It's more than turning over a new leaf. To turn over a new leaf does not get rid of the old account. For every successful bookkeeper knows that you always carry forward the old account upon the new page unless its been paid for.

"A lot of folks would like to become christians but they won't forsake their own way.

"Conversion is not a change of opinion concerning Christ. But it is a change of attitude in your heart toward Christ."

Will Serve Supper.

Members of the seating committee of the A. M. E. church will entertain at a chicken supper, from 4 to 8, on Saturday evening in the Knights of Pythias lodgerooms. Mrs. C. A. Spires is chairman of the committee.

PLAN BRANCH OF SALVATION ARMY IN CITY

Campaign for $2,060 Will be Staged Here.

CHURCHES TO AID

Citizens Help is Sought in Yule Relief Work.

In an effort to effect the establishment of a permanent Salvation Army station here, officers and local representatives of the mercy organization are perfecting the plans for a $2,060 campaign which will be put on before Christmas.

The work is being undertaken at the invitation of the Wellsville Ministerial association.

One thousand dollars of the quota, which, if reached, will insure the success of the project, will be used as a relief fund during the year. This provides for a hall and one worker, at present, to handle affairs of the army here.

C. J. Vogel will direct the drive as campaign manager, and under his direction a number of teams will canvass the city for the budget fund.

Citizens have been urged to report cases of need and their proposed offerings to Major Hughes—phone Main 1339—not later than December 20, in order that the army's relief work might be made more efficient through avoiding duplication of baskets and gifts.

If co-operation is obtained in this, officials essert, every needy family in the city will be reached through the distribution point that will be established here for the purpose.

BLACKSTONE AT CERAMIC

Great Magician Opens Three-day Engagement Here.

Blackstone, the world's greatest magician, who will hold the boards of the Ceramic theatre for three days, will open his engagement tonight.

This season's program embraces a score of new features, some of them of world-wide fame, and never heretofore shown in this city.

Among them being the famous Hindoo Rope Mystery, which has been performed in India as a religious ceremony for more than five centuries, but never before shown outside of India. Blackstone obtained the secret from an aged Hindoo fakir whom he befriended. "Broadcasting a Woman," will be shown for the first time in this city. This illusion has caused more discussion as to its performance than any illusion in history. It is thrilling.

Other new features are "Can a Man Walk Away from His Shadow?" Blackstone proves that he may. "Alice in Wonderland," is as baffling as it is beautiful. It is a veritable fairyland brought to life. "The Mystery of the Carryall" is a Chinese effect. Two seventy-foot baggage cars are required to transport the vast quantity of effects used in the performance. A veritable menagerie is carried with the company, and ranges from camels to domestic animals.

After a young man has made his first ringing speech he should buy the ring.—Cincinnati Times-Star.

The Name Tells a True Story.

The very name, Foley's Honey and Tar Compound, tells why, without opiates of chloroform, it is so quickly effective in stopping coughs and in healing the distressing cause. Because it alone combines the curative virtues of pure Pine Tar and other healing ingredients, together with the mollifying demulcent effects of clear fresh Honey. From 651 E. 46th St., Chicago, comes this: "A stubborn cough worried me, kept me awake nights, and resisted other cough medicines, but quickly yielded to your good Foley's Honey and Tar Compound. My druggist recommended it." Ask for it. Sold everywhere.

BLACKSTONE AT CERAMIC

Great Magician Opens Three-day Engagement Here.

Blackstone, the world's greatest magician, who will hold the boards of the Ceramic theatre for three days, will open his engagement tonight.

This season's program embraces a score of new features, some of them of world-wide fame, and never heretofore shown in this city.

Among them being the famous Hindoo Rope Mystery, which has been performed in India as a religious ceremony for more than five centuries, but never before shown outside of India. Blackstone obtained the secret from an aged Hindoo fakir whom he befriended. "Broadcasting a Woman," will be shown for the first time in this city. This illusion has caused more discussion as to its performance than any illusion in history. It is thrilling.

Other new features are "Can a Man Walk Away from His Shadow?" Blackstone proves that he may. "Alice in Wonderland," is as baffling as it is beautiful. It is a veritable fairy-land brought to life. "The Mystery of the Carryall" is a Chinese effect. Two seventy-foot baggage cars are required to transport the vast quantity of effects used in the performance. A veritable menagerie is carried with the company, and ranges from camels to domestic animals.

After a young man has made his first ringing speech he should buy the ring.—Cincinnati Times-Star.

ELKRUN GRANGE PLANS CONTEST

Entertainments Will be Held During Winter Season.

The members of Elkrun Grange have inaugurated a contest for the winter season with the men and women of the grange lined up on opposite sides, and with a banquet dinner to the entire grange membership facing the loser in the contest, which calls for the best entertainments during the season. W. A. Morris has been chosen as captain of the men, and Mrs. Mary A. Finney, of the women.

On next Saturday evening in the Grange hall the men will open the contest and an elaborate program is being arranged for the opening night. The complete program will not be announced in advance, but there will be a male quartet, duet, solos, readings and stunts, and an address by R. M. Patterson.

On an evening during the holiday season the women of the Grange will provide an evening of entertainment, and on Saturday evening, January 22, the men will again put on a program, the ladies to close the contest on the second Saturday in February with what promises to be an elaborate entertainment. Women of the Grange will serve lunch on Saturday evening, the opening night of the contest.

Homer Williams, south of Lisbon, Denver Williams, former master of the Clarkson grange, and a third party yet to be named, will serve as judges in the contest. The banquet to the winners will be served in Grange hall soon after the close of the contest in February.

Three Divorce Suits Filed Yesterday in Common Pleas Court

Mrs. Laura Whittington, aged 20 years, of East Liverpool, is represented in court by her next friend, Bessie Cullison, in an action filed against her husband, Arnold Whittington, asking for a divorce. Whittington is serving time in the Mansfield State reformatory.

The young couple were married in New Cumberland, W. Va., in the spring of 1924. She says the defendant has failed to provide the necessaries of life either for her or their child, and tells the court that she has been compelled to rely upon friends for the same. She asks for a divorce and the custody of the child.

Sharon M. Quigley, of East Palestine, has asked the common pleas court to give him a divorce from his wife, Margaret, who is now living in Cleveland. The husband, in his petition, states to the court that his wife is a minor, and he suggests that the court appoint a guardian for her to represent her in the action.

They were married, it is stated, in Beaver, Pa., on January 3rd, 1925, and their daughter, Jane Ann, is near 18 months old. Quigley charges his wife with gross neglect of duty and wilful absence since five months after their marriage. Soon after they were married, he tells the court, she left him after a quarrel, but returned after remaining away six weeks. In June 1925, however, she again went away and has since been absent.

Mary Bartholow, who is not yet of legal age, has filed an action in the common pleas court through her next friend, Ella T. Allen, asking for a divorce from Ralph E. Bartholow. Wednesday she will appear in court and ask Judge Lones for temporary alimony with which to care for her child during the pendency of the suit.

They were married on January 2, 1925, at New Cumberland, W. Va., and lived in Salem township. Early in September, the wife states, her husband threatened to shoot her and ordered her from their home, and later told her to go back to her parents. She asks divorce, alimony and the custody of the child.

CURTIS WERNER CITED TO COURT

Curtis E. Werner of East Liverpool, has again been notified to appear in the common pleas court to show cause, if he can, why he should not be punished for contempt of court.

Werner, it is claimed, has failed to carry out the orders of the court in fulfilling the agreement as to alimony to be paid to his former wife, Floretta, entered into April, 1924, at the time Mrs. Werner was given a divorce.

He has not fulfilled his part of the contract, and he has been notified to appear before Judge Lones in the common pleas court on next Monday morning at 10 o'clock. Werner sued his wife for divorce almost three years ago, and when the case was heard the decree was entered by the court in favor of the wife on her answer and cross petition, on grounds of wilful absence. In September, one year ago he was haled before the court to answer to a contempt charge in not carrying out his alimony agreement.

Three Divorce Suits Filed Yesterday in Common Pleas Court

Mrs. Laura Whittington, aged 20 years, of East Liverpool, is represented in court by her next friend, Bessie Cullison, in an action filed against her husband, Arnold Whittington, asking for a divorce. Whittington is serving time in the Mansfield State reformatory.

The young couple were married in New Cumberland, W. Va., in the spring of 1924. She says the defendant has failed to provide the necessaries of life either for her or their child, and tells the court that she has been compelled to rely upon friends for the same. She asks for a divorce and the custody of the child.

Sharon M. Quigley, of East Palestine, has asked the common pleas court to give him a divorce from his wife, Margaret, who is now living in Cleveland. The husband, in his petition, states to the court that his wife is a minor, and he suggests that the court appoint a guardian for her to represent her in the action.

They were married, it is stated, in Beaver, Pa., on January 3rd, 1925, and their daughter, Jane Ann, is near 18 months old. Quigley charges his wife with gross neglect of duty and wilful absence since five months after their marriage. Soon after they were married, he tells the court, she left him after a quarrel, but returned after remaining away six weeks. In June 1925, however, she again went away and has since been absent.

Mary Bartholow, who is not yet of legal age, has filed an action in the common pleas court through her next friend, Ella T. Allen, asking for a divorce from Ralph E. Bartholow. Wednesday she will appear in court and ask Judge Lones for temporary alimony with which to care for her child during the pendency of the suit.

They were married on January 2, 1925, at New Cumberland, W. Va., and lived in Salem township. Early in September, the wife states, her husband threatened to shoot her and ordered her from their home, and later told her to go back to her parents. She asks divorce, alimony and the custody of the child.

CURTIS WERNER CITED TO COURT

Curtis E. Werner of East Liverpool, has again been notified to appear in the common pleas court to show cause, if he can, why he should not be punished for contempt of court.

Werner, it is claimed, has failed to carry out the orders of the court in fulfilling the agreement as to alimony to be paid to his former wife, Floretta, entered into April, 1924, at the time Mrs. Werner was given a divorce.

He has not fulfilled his part of the contract, and he has been notified to appear before Judge Lones in the common pleas court on next Monday morning at 10 o'clock. Werner sued his wife for divorce almost three years ago, and when the case was heard the decree was entered by the court in favor of the wife on her answer and cross petition, on grounds of wilful absence. In September, one year ago he was haled before the court to answer to a contempt charge in not carrying out his alimony agreement.

Northside Diamond Star Is Top Slugger In City League

Strobel Hits Ball At .441 Clip In 31 Games During Year

HENRY STROBEL, known to all and sundry as "Hen," veteran diamond performer of the Northside, who has played on about every club in and about East Liverpool in his day and generation, topped the batters of the City Industrial League for 1926 with a mark of .441 for 31 games, according to figures announced today by T. T. Jones, official league statistician.

However, Strobel was in three contests less than "Eddie" Bailey, the active field leader of Turk-Nash who, in 34 engagements, finished with an average of .398. The veteran made 29 bingles in his 68 chances with the bludgeon while his younger rival laced out 45 safe drives in his 113 times at bat.

Both players sagged a bit during the second half of the league race. In the initial period Strobel had swatted at a .485 clip with his 16 hits in 33 tries; in the final dash of the clubs he annexed 13 safeties in 35 efforts for a .371 mark.

Bayley was a .420 swatter during the spring and early summer weeks with 29 clouts for his 69 times at the plate; in the concluding open air argument of the competing clubs his swinging efforts netted 16 wallops which no one could get from the 44 essays that were his as he faced the pitcher. His secondary figure accordingly was .364

Both of these outstanding exponents of swat for the season lambasted the horsehide pellet above .400 at the outset of the year's race and both dropped into the .300 class during its terminating days. Though always the gardener was in fewer engagements than the infielder he had the higher standing in both the divided interims of the six-sided struggle for team supremacy. They loomed at the July half-way with Strobel .485 and Bayley .420; as September morns ended the succeeding interval of play the count stood Strobel .371 and Bayley .364. A margin of .65 points separated the two in the earlier days of activity and seven points prevented a tie between the two in the latter occasions of struggle. Together these totaled .441 and .391 respectively for the schedule's consummation.

Strobel's big lead at the outset enabled him to make the .400 class as a finality while Bayley missed it by two points. What strobel would have done had he not been injured at a Klondyke game in early August, which caused him to hesitate with the stick for a contest or two or had he not assumed the leadership of the Victor Motor aggregation in the final meetings of the season, can hardly be conjectured. With the duties of "boss" upon him basehits flew from his belaying weapon during the two appearances of his management. But his ability to smite the ball plus a rare capacity at walking silhouetted him for the year as one of the organization's stars.

In even more resplendence was the constant performance of E. Bayley, who, failing in 1925, to show his old batting form came back with a capability that made him one of the year's sensations at bat. However, his responsibility in the final rush for the flag told somewhat on him also.

Despite the showing of both H. Strobel and E. Bayley, neither one led his team with the bat during the second half. On the Turk-Nash club the clouting leader was Dewey Morgan, the team's third bagman, who hit the ball in 15 games at a .381 clup, 17 more points than E. Bayley's .364. E Mundy of the same club swatted at a .380 pace for that period, but he was in but six games. Likewise Desh-ler, in nine games of that interim, drove the ball at a .304 pace.

Strobel's .371 for the added section of play was overshadowed by Buzzard's .500 in five games; Robinson's .389 in 13; Sainor's .388 in 15; C. Coleman's .376 in 16 and Davis .467 in 13 games of that period. All in all for both to worm themselves through and above such competition characterizes their work as accomplishments at once creditable and commendable.

No less remarkable and almost equaling the record of the two league leaders was that made by that other diamond veteran hereabouts, "Ralph Red" McShane, long the star middle gardener, frequent club director and ever a member of the board a strategy of the K. T. K. club. In 29 contests, two less than those in which H. Strobel engaged and five short of E. Bayley's contests he swatted at a .392 clip for the season. In addition, a feat which the two topping him did not have, he fielded perfectly. He equaled Strobel in doubles, both having four, had one more triple, 3 to 2, but failed to connect with a homer which Strobel and E. Bayley did. The latter had had four triples and ten doubles, thus eclipsing both.

McShane went the entire season without an error. In the final clash of his team with Chester which, because of a lack of players on his club, was forfeited to the West Virginians an exhibition game followed in which "Red" essayed to cover first. Then he muffled an assist, but the miscue was not counted as such contests are not in the official records. In the first half McShane hit exactly .400, but fell in the second to .345 with 11 bingles in 29 chances. His grand mark accordingly reached .392.

Standing out also was the smashing proclivities of Catcher Robinson, of Victory Motor, who, out of the game more than a year, returned in the second half, led his club with the bludgeon and almost duplicated McShane's all-around mark with .389 while also fielding perfectly.

(Additional league records will be announced in succeeding issues).

LODGE CAGERS DOWN TO WORK

Coach Powell Pleased With First Night's Results.

Elks' club basketball candidates went through the paces last night at the Y. M. C. A. under the direction of Coach "Bill" Powell in their first workout preliminary to the opening of the Columbiana County Amateur Basketball league next week.

Enough players to form two squads reported to Powell for duty and the cage mentor declared himself well pleased with the results of the first workout.

Another drill is scheduled for tonight at 8 o'clock.

Columbiana Five Working Out for League Campaign

Former Miller Brothers Stars, Ex-Highs on Squad.

COLUMBIANA, Dec. 9.—Practice sessions are well under way for Columbiana's amateur basketball team, one of the eight entries in the county amateur circuit which will open next week.

The Columbiana team will be made up of players from the Miller Brothers and Central Market teams of last year and also players from last year's high five.

Among the candidates working out are Hoover, Kyser, Harvey, McFadden, McMaster, Crumbacher, Stephens, Messersmith, F. Miller, Nichols, Clunerman, Barber and Flickinger.

Hawkins, Anderson, Graham and Robinson, members of the Miller quint will report within the next few days or so.

An effort is being made to arrange two or three preliminary games.

HEYDLER BACKS JUDGE LANDIS

Will Support Commissioner for Second Term.

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—John A. Heydler's statement, in which he declared that he would "whole heartedly and determinedly support Baseball Commissioner K. M. Landis for re-election," no matter whether he, Heydler, was a club owner, player or private citizen, was taken today as indicating that the judge was certain of being returned to his office without compromise. His re-election may come up for consideration at the joint meeting of the major leagues in Chicago next week.

It was taken for granted that Heydler was speaking for the entire National League and, with the support of Charles A. Comiskey, of the Chicago American League club, the return of Landis for another term seemed to be a formality.

BROMBY TO TRY COURT AGAIN

Mount Cagers Seek Services of Star Guard.

ALLIANCE, Dec. 9.—Mount Union plays the first game of her schedule of eighteen when she meets the Kent State Normal quintet at Alliance, December 9. The Mount team will be minus the services of "Lefty" Miller and "Bo" Labor, captains of Mount's last two Championship teams and members of all three. Hall and Mills regulars of last year, have been lost by graduation. Colin Bromby of East Liverpool, and "Shrimp" Orin, regulars of the first championship squad of 1924-25 may start. Neither men played last year. Bromby was forced out of the game by a trick knee, and Orin was not in school. Coach Robert D. Wright has one sub of last year's squad upon whom he may call, Parker Orr. These three men are the only letter men in school. Captain-elect George Wilcoxin, was lost to this year's squad when he entered Ohio State this fall to take up the study of medicine.

No other coach in the Ohio conference has the proposition to face which "Bob" Wright does. There is a record of three successive Ohio conference championships to maintain, and a record of thirty-three unbroken conference wins to uphold with only one sure regular of two years ago around which to build a team. Wright must of necessity draw from the sophomore class for material with which to complete a team.

Thevenow Is Coming Star, Avers Rickey

Regrets Passing of Cobb, Collins and Speaker; Says Hornsby Will Probably Manage Cards Next Year; St. Louis Club Director Talks at School.

BARRING unforseen occurrences, accidents or other tribulations which might befall the average ball player, young Tommy Thevenow, shortstop of the St. Louis Cardinals, who contributed quite a few valuable base clouts as well as a number of brilliant plays to the success of the Cards in the championship series will, one of these days, be one of the bright stars of the game.

This is the prediction of Branch Rickey, business manager and vice president of the Cardinals, who last night delighted a large audience at the high school with an informal talk, rather than a stereotyped address, on the general subject of athletics.

Rickey discussed Thevenow and other players of the game following his talk, while donning his overcoat in the office of Superintendent McVay preparatory to a long drive to Columbus.

The baseball player, manager, athlete, lawyer and student was in a hurry to get away but nevertheless had plenty of time to talk with well wishers who came into the office for an informal visit.

Rickey's reference to Thevenow, as well as to Bell, the third sacker, and Jim Bottomley, first baseman, was prompted by a discussion of Cobb, Collins and Speaker, who for years have been mighty figures in the world of baseball.

"It is extremely regrettable," said Rickey, commenting on the passing of this trio from the ranks of the pastime. "Men of this type and caliber," he said, "are not produced every day and although it is a loss to the game when they leave, the circumstances are natural and must be expected."

"You can look to Thevenow as one of the future stars," declared Rickey enthusiastically, "and beside that there are other youngsters coming up who will crowd into the spotlight one of these days."

"Has Hornsby signed a contract as manager for next year? Rickey was asked.

"Well—," Rickey hesitated a second, and then—"I don't know. That matter is being fixed up between Hornsby and Sam Breadon. I imagine he'll return as manager next year."

And he made a smiling reference to what is known as off-season stove league talk.

Before his departure to Columbus, Rickey and his companion, Fred Hunter, scout, spent a few minutes in a lively fanning bee with Bill Powell, former minor and major league star. Rickey and Hunter are close friends and both are chums of Powell's. Hunter roomed with Powell out in Kansas City a good many years ago and "the good old days" were discussed thoroughly before the trio parted.

A number of entertaining incidents in the various fields of sport were related by Rickey in his talk at the high school. He stressed as usually particular to any team, baseball, football, or whatever it is, "the desire to win." But as particular and commendable as this is the desire to play fair, he pointed out.

INSIDE GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON,
Maker of 51 Golf Champions. "Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans.

In the first place, in taking a correct grip, bring the left hand well up on top of the shaft. This probably means that you bring it up more than you have been doing. Let the first three knuckles show plainly to your eye. Now with the right hand, bring it up to the shaft but, instead of having the wrist point directly away from the shaft, bend the wrist inward—toward the shaft—until you can plainly see the first two or three knuckles of this hand, too. Then observe that the V's are actually parallel. The reason you do this, first, is because this so places the hands that when you hit the ball both wrists will be turned against the ball, or across it, in such position that there can be no give in the wrists. That's an important detail in hitting and is one reason why little details of grip are important to be in with.

Gradual Abolition Of Draft is Plan Of Minor Leagues

ASHEVILLE, N. C., Dec. 9.—Gradual abolition of the system of major league teams drafting players from the minor leagues is expected to result within the next few years as result of the movement under way today at the annual convention of professional baseball leagues.

Officials of the association were instructed to draw up another agreement, which would allow various minors to refuse or accept the draft by April, 1927. The Texas league already has announced its intention of doing away with the draft.

NAME CARTLEDGE ATHLETIC HEAD

STEUBENVILLE, Dec. 9.—Announcement was made here yesterday of the appointment of Charles Q. Cartledge, Steubenville high school coach, to the position of supervisor of athletics in city schools for a period of three years, beginning at the termination of Cartledge's present contract, September, 1927, at a salary of $3,600 for the first year; $3,800 for the second and $4,000 for the third year.

RICKARD PLANS DEMPSEY FIGHT

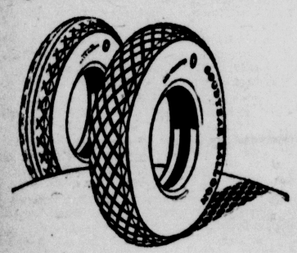

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—Tex Rickard's receipt of a message from Jack Dempsey, informing him that the ex-champion will return east soon after the first of the year, prompted the promoter today to lay plans for Dempsey's appearance in the ring at Madison Square Garden next March. Rickard re-iterated his preference for a bout between Dempsey and one of the survivors of the elimination series, rather than a return match between Dempsey and Tunney without preamble.

"I think it would be better for all concerned, Dempsey included, to meet some good man before he tackles Tunney,' said Rickard. "Dempsey may find that he needs to get at least one fight under his belt in order to come up for his title effort in the proper condition."

The Community Bank will loan you money to pay your taxes.

HENRY STROBEL, known to all and sundry as "Hen," veteran diamond performer of the Northside, who has played on about every club in and about East Liverpool in his day and generation, topped the batters of the City Industrial League for 1926 with a mark of .441 for 31 games, according to figures announced today by T. T. Jones, official league statistician.

However, Strobel was in three contests less than "Eddie" Bailey, the active field leader of Turk-Nash who, in 34 engagements, finished with an average of .398. The veteran made 29 bingles in his 68 chances with the bludgeon while his younger rival laced out 45 safe drives in his 113 times at bat.

Both players sagged a bit during the second half of the league race. In the initial period Strobel had swatted at a .485 clip with his 16 hits in 33 tries; in the final dash of the clubs he annexed 13 safeties in 35 efforts for a .371 mark.

Bayley was a .420 swatter during the spring and early summer weeks with 29 clouts for his 69 times at the plate; in the concluding open air argument of the competing clubs his swinging efforts netted 16 wallops which no one could get from the 44 essays that were his as he faced the pitcher. His secondary figure accordingly was .364

Both of these outstanding exponents of swat for the season lambasted the horsehide pellet above .400 at the outset of the year's race and both dropped into the .300 class during its terminating days. Though always the gardener was in fewer engagements than the infielder he had the higher standing in both the divided interims of the six-sided struggle for team supremacy. They loomed at the July half-way with Strobel .485 and Bayley .420; as September morns ended the succeeding interval of play the count stood Strobel .371 and Bayley .364. A margin of .65 points separated the two in the earlier days of activity and seven points prevented a tie between the two in the latter occasions of struggle. Together these totaled .441 and .391 respectively for the schedule's consummation.

Strobel's big lead at the outset enabled him to make the .400 class as a finality while Bayley missed it by two points. What strobel would have done had he not been injured at a Klondyke game in early August, which caused him to hesitate with the stick for a contest or two or had he not assumed the leadership of the Victor Motor aggregation in the final meetings of the season, can hardly be conjectured. With the duties of "boss" upon him basehits flew from his belaying weapon during the two appearances of his management. But his ability to smite the ball plus a rare capacity at walking silhouetted him for the year as one of the organization's stars.

In even more resplendence was the constant performance of E. Bayley, who, failing in 1925, to show his old batting form came back with a capability that made him one of the year's sensations at bat. However, his responsibility in the final rush for the flag told somewhat on him also.

Despite the showing of both H. Strobel and E. Bayley, neither one led his team with the bat during the second half. On the Turk-Nash club the clouting leader was Dewey Morgan, the team's third bagman, who hit the ball in 15 games at a .381 clup, 17 more points than E. Bayley's .364. E. Mundy of the same club swatted at a .380 pace for that period, but he was in but six games. Likewise Deshler, in nine games of that interim, drove the ball at a .304 pace.

Strobel's .371 for the added section of play was overshadowed by Buzzard's .500 in five games; Robinson's .389 in 13; Sainor's .388 in 15; C. Coleman's .376 in 16 and Davis .467 in 13 games of that period. All in all for both to worm themselves through and above such competition characterizes their work as accomplishments at once creditable and commendable.

No less remarkable and almost equaling the record of the two league leaders was that made by that other diamond veteran hereabouts, "Ralph Red" McShane, long the star middle gardener, frequent club director and ever a member of the board a strategy of the K. T. K. club. In 29 contests, two less than those in which H. Strobel engaged and five short of E. Bayley's contests he swatted at a .392 clip for the season. In addition, a feat which the two topping him did not have, he fielded perfectly. He equaled Strobel in doubles, both having four, had one more triple, 3 to 2, but failed to connect with a homer which Strobel and E. Bayley did. The latter had had four triples and ten doubles, thus eclipsing both.

McShane went the entire season without an error. In the final clash of his team with Chester which, because of a lack of players on his club, was forfeited to the West Virginians an exhibition game followed in which "Red" essayed to cover first. Then he muffled an assist, but the miscue was not counted as such contests are not in the official records. In the first half McShane hit exactly .400, but fell in the second to .345 with 11 bingles in 29 chances. His grand mark accordingly reached .392.

Standing out also was the smashing proclivities of Catcher Robinson, of Victory Motor, who, out of the game more than a year, returned in the second half, led his club with the bludgeon and almost duplicated McShane's all-around mark with .389 while also fielding perfectly.

(Additional league records will be announced in succeeding issues).

LODGE CAGERS DOWN TO WORK

Coach Powell Pleased With First Night's Results.

Elks' club basketball candidates went through the paces last night at the Y. M. C. A. under the direction of Coach "Bill" Powell in their first workout preliminary to the opening of the Columbiana County Amateur Basketball league next week.

Enough players to form two squads reported to Powell for duty and the cage mentor declared himself well pleased with the results of the first workout.

Another drill is scheduled for tonight at 8 o'clock.

Columbiana Five Working Out for League Campaign

COLUMBIANA, Dec. 9.—Practice sessions are well under way for Columbiana's amateur basketball team, one of the eight entries in the county amateur circuit which will open next week.

The Columbiana team will be made up of players from the Miller Brothers and Central Market tearms of last year and also players from last year's high five.

Among the candidates working out are Hoover, Kyser, Harvey, McFadden, McMaster, Crumbacher, Stephens, Messersmith, F. Miller, Nichols, Clunerman, Barber and Flickinger.

Hawkins, Anderson, Graham and Robinson, members of the Miller quint will report within the next few days or so.

An effort is being made to arrange two or three preliminary games.

HEYDLER BACKS JUDGE LANDIS

Will Support Commissioner for Second Term.

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—John A. Heydler's statement, in which he declared that he would "whole heartedly and determinedly support Baseball Commissioner K. M. Landis for re-election," no matter whether he, Heydler, was a club owner, player or private citizen, was taken today as indicating that the judge was certain of being returned to his office without compromise. His re-election may come up for consideration at the joint meeting of the major leagues in Chicago next week.

It was taken for granted that Heydler was speaking for the entire National League and, with the support of Charles A. Comiskey, of the Chicago American League club, the return of Landis for another term seemed to be a formality.

INSIDE GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON,
Maker of 51 Golf Champions.
"Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans.

In the first place, in taking a correct grip, bring the left hand well up on top of the shaft. This probably means that you bring it up more than you have been doing. Let the first three knuckles show plainly to your eye. Now with the right hand, bring it up to the shaft but, instead of having the wrist point directly away from the shaft, bend the wrist inward—toward the shaft—until you can plainly see the first two or three knuckles of this hand, too. Then observe that the V's are actually parallel. The reason you do this, first, is because this so places the hands that when you hit the ball both wrists will be turned against the ball, or across it, in such position that there can be no give in the wrists. That's an important detail in hitting and is one reason why little details of grip are important to be in with.

BROMBY TO TRY COURT AGAIN

Mount Cagers Seek Services of Star Guard.

ALLIANCE, Dec. 9.—Mount Union plays the first game of her schedule of eighteen when she meets the Kent State Normal quintet at Alliance, December 9. The Mount team will be minus the services of "Lefty" Miller and "Bo" Labor, captains of Mount's last two Championship teams and members of all three. Hall and Mills regulars of last year, have been lost by graduation. Colin Bromby of East Liverpool, and "Shrimp" Orin, regulars of the first championship squad of 1924-25 may start. Neither men played last year. Bromby was forced out of the game by a trick knee, and Orin was not in school. Coach Robert D. Wright has one sub of last year's squad upon whom he may call, Parker Orr. These three men are the only letter men in school. Captain-elect George Wilcoxin, was lost to this year's squad when he entered Ohio State this fall to take up the study of medicine.

No other coach in the Ohio conference has the proposition to face which "Bob" Wright does. There is a record of three successive Ohio conference championships to maintain, and a record of thirty-three unbroken conference wins to uphold with only one sure regular of two years ago around which to build a team. Wright must of necessity draw from the sophomore class for material with which to complete a team.

RICKARD PLANS DEMPSEY FIGHT

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—Tex Rickard's receipt of a message from Jack Dempsey, informing him that the ex-champion will return east soon after the first of the year, prompted the promoter today to lay plans for Dempsey's appearance in the ring at Madison Square Garden next March. Rickard re-iterated his preference for a bout between Dempsey and one of the survivors of the elimination series, rather than a return match between Dempsey and Tunney without preamble.

"I think it would be better for all concerned, Dempsey included, to meet some good man before he tackles Tunney,' said Rickard. "Dempsey may find that he needs to get at least one fight under his belt in order to come up for his title effort in the proper condition."

Thevenow Is Coming Star, Avers Rickey

Regrets Passing of Cobb, Collins and Speaker; Says Hornsby Will Probably Manage Cards Next Year; St. Louis Club Director Talks at School.

BARRING unforseen occurrences, accidents or other tribulations which might befall the average ball player, young Tommy Thevenow, shortstop of the St. Louis Cardinals, who contributed quite a few valuable base clouts as well as a number of brilliant plays to the success of the Cards in the championship series will, one of these days, be one of the bright stars of the game.

This is the prediction of Branch Rickey, business manager and vice president of the Cardinals, who last night delighted a large audience at the high school with an informal talk, rather than a stereotyped address, on the general subject of athletics.

Rickey discussed Thevenow and other players of the game following his talk, while donning his overcoat in the office of Superintendent McVay preparatory to a long drive to Columbus.

The baseball player, manager, athlete, lawyer and student was in a hurry to get away but nevertheless had plenty of time to talk with well wishers who came into the office for an informal visit.

Rickey's reference to Thevenow, as well as to Bell, the third sacker, and Jim Bottomley, first baseman, was prompted by a discussion of Cobb, Collins and Speaker, who for years have been mighty figures in the world of baseball.

"It is extremely regrettable," said Rickey, commenting on the passing of this trio from the ranks of the pastime. "Men of this type and caliber," he said, "are not produced every day and although it is a loss to the game when they leave, the circumstances are natural and must be expected."

"You can look to Thevenow as one of the future stars," declared Rickey enthusiastically, "and beside that there are other youngsters coming up who will crowd into the spotlight one of these days."

"Has Hornsby signed a contract as manager for next year? Rickey was asked.

"Well—," Rickey hesitated a second, and then—"I don't know. That matter is being fixed up between Hornsby and Sam Breadon. I imagine he'll return as manager next year."

And he made a smiling reference to what is known as off-season stove league talk.

Before his departure to Columbus, Rickey and his companion, Fred Hunter, scout, spent a few minutes in a lively fanning bee with Bill Powell, former minor and major league star. Rickey and Hunter are close friends and both are chums of Powell's. Hunter roomed with Powell out in Kansas City a good many years ago and "the good old days" were discussed thoroughly before the trio parted.

A number of entertaining incidents in the various fields of sport were related by Rickey in his talk at the high school. He stressed as ...ly particular to any team, baseball, football, or whatever it is, "the desire to win." But as particular and commendable as this is the desire to play fair, he pointed out.

Gradual Abolition Of Draft is Plan Of Minor Leagues

ASHEVILLE, N. C., Dec. 9.—Gradual abolition of the system of major league teams drafting players from the minor leagues is expected to result within the next few years as result of the movement under way today at the annual convention of professional baseball leagues.

Officials of the association were instructed to draw up another agreement, which would allow various minors to refuse or accept the draft by April, 1927. The Texas league already has announced its intention of doing away with the draft.

1925 as do these governmental publications.

"On page 24 of the recent bulletin is a comparison of the average hourly earnings for the industry as a whole in all departments in 1913 as shown by the Sheridan report against those of 1925 as disclosed by the recent survey. This comparison is interesting in that it shows the earnings per hour are now more than twice what they were twelve years ago. The piece work and day wage rates as specified in the agreement have not been doubled in that period, but improved conditions and better facilities have contributed more largely than is generally realized to the earning power of the men, so that they may now earn two dollars in less time and with less effort than were formerly required to earn one.

Comparison of Hourly Earnings.

"Comparison of hourly earnings of pottery workers in 1913 and 1925:

	1913	1925
Mould makers	51c	106c
Batters out	23	56
Mould runners	19	47
Finishers, female	26	52
Jiggermen	45	90
Dishmakers	44	81
Turners	50	94
Handlers	53	95
Casters	39	99
Sagger makers	45	96
Kiln placers, bisque	48	105
Kiln placers, glost	48	104
Kiln drawers, male	32	71
Kiln drawers, female	19	46
Ware dressers, female	16	39
Warehousemen	29	58
Dippers	62	123
Packers	35	85
Decorating kilnmen	31	77

"An interesting feature disclosed by the report is the number of female compared with the number of male employes in the various districts.

"In the 22 plants surveyed in the immediate East Liverpool district there were 50 women employed to every 100 men.

"In the 18 plants in the west outside of East Liverpool there were 62 women to every 100 men and in three Trenton earthenware plants there were 84 women to every 100 men.

"Excepting in the decorating departments, the hourly earnings were fairly uniformed in the several districts, but in the cost of decorating the western firms outside of East Liverpool appear to have a material advantage, partly accounted for by the larger percentage of female labor, and partly, it may be assumed, by a different wage scale.

"In 22 plants in East Liverpool there were 152 male gilders and liners and 79 females.

"In 18 western plants outside of East Liverpool there were 83 male gilders and liners and 238 female.

"This indicates that in East Liverpool 34 per cent of the liners are women against 75 per cent in other Ohio plants. An analysis of the statistics, with the details of which I shall not burden you, seems to show that it is costing East Liverpool for lining labor from 40 to 50 per cent more than it does the potteries more fortunately located, also that the same potteries have an advantage of about 30 per cent in the cost of transferring decalcomania. More power to them.

12 Pressers In Trade.

"A rather striking development disclosed by the recent report is the almost complete disappearance of the printer, the presser and the apprentice in the earthenware potteries. Within the recollection of all of us of the older generation, the decorating capacity of plants was measured by the number of printers employed. Yet in the 46 plants surveyed last year there were 39 in which there was no printer. There were only seven printers in the entire trade. In no plant was more than one engaged—the total being four in East Liverpool, two in Trenton and one in the other districts.

"Pressers, that formerly outnumbered the jiggermen, are now exceedingly rare. In 37 plants no presser was found. There were but 12 in the entire trade. Of these five were in East Liverpool, five in Trenton, and two in other districts.

"There were not enough apprentices employed in the entire industry to warrant separate mention in the report. Consequently, there are no available data for the trade as a whole. Perhaps the appre[illegible] situation at the Laughlin Newell plants is representative. In those three plants, with a capacity of about 70 kilns, there are between sliphouse and warehause only four apprentices, one mould maker, and three dishmakers.

"There are many other curiosities of statistics embraced in the publicatin. There are tables showing the time required for placing and drawing kilns in the different plants, showing a very wide variation. There is a comparison of losses in broken bisque, thirds and lump, and other tables which are interesting, if not quite accurate. These will not be quoted, but are commended for your careful perusal.

Kilnmen on Day-Wage Basis.

"There has been a considerable increase during the year in the number of kilnmen and dippers employed on a day-wage basis. So far as my information goes, there has been some increase in cost to the manufacturers, but not much. There has been some improvement in the quality of the product, but not so much as might have been anticipated. The real advantage lies in the removal of a constant source of irritation. A spirit of cooperation has been established in a department where a spirit of antagonism prevailed under the piece work system that was liable to break at any moment into open hostility.

"During the year the standing committees have functioned with their usual faithfulness and proficiency. Their work was complicated by an exceptional number of new and unique shapes, upon which making and decorating prices were to be established. In this difficult task they succeeded remarkably well, and without serious interruption in operations. The prices fixed were generally fair to both employer and employe. The men did not succeed in their original demands for extravagant prices, but there is no instance on record in which their wages have not been maintained to the level of their earnings on older shapes.

"You have observed from the October bulletin issued by the secretary that the combined sales of 26 earthenware firms for August and September, 1925, were $3,307,000.00, and for the same two months in 1926 they were $3,914,000.00, a gain of more than 18 per cent. No data are available to indicate whether this increase was general throughout the trade, or throughout the year.

"The returns to the questionnaire as to sales and wages paid were disappointingly incomplete, but enough was assembled to leave little room for doubt that the industry as a whole was on the up grade, at least during this fall.

"Yet it must be apparent to all observers that the distribution of our products is in a transition stage. The older avenues and methods are yielding to the newer. Almost anything may happen at any time. Predictions for 1927 are little more than idle speculation. The trend of the domestic potting business for next year is on the knees of the gods."

when a college woman decided to make a profession of journalism she usually had only a rather vague idea that when she was graduated she would make her start by getting a job as a reporter on some newspaper, specializing later on when she found the work for which she was best qualified. Now, as the result of four or five years' activity by Theta Sigma Phi college women are specializing in their training and preparatory work and they have learned that there are many opportunities aside from the ordinary reportorial job—position on trade publications, technical as well as editorial jobs with magazines and book publishers, openings as free lance writers, places with advertising agencies, and numerous others.

Moreover, this society inaugurated the very practical step of bringing the college woman and the job together by opening a register for employment. Every undergraduate was urged to place her name on this register, with a statement of her qualifications and her preference as to kind and place of employment, and then the staff of the national organization of the society undertook to find her the kind of job wanted, where she wanted it. This work is said to have been extremely successful.

General Placement Agency.

It is this sort of work that the general placement agency now being organized by the Panhellenic association will systematize and carry forward on a larger scale. It is hoped that it can be developed until every woman leaving college prepared for a professional or business career will be brought immediately in contact with a job or a promising field for professional practice.

The third line of activity of the association will be to work out a solution of the problem of the adjustment of the home to the job. This is a problem not only of the woman who has a home and wants a job, but of the woman who has a job and wants a home.

Simplification of the task of running a household will be studied, and how work can be eliminatted in the home without destroying or detracting from the fundamentals that go to make up the intimacy and real value of home life. Community nurseries, kitchens, and schools will be considered in their relation to this phase of the problem.

Also there is the possibility of eventually bringing about greater flexability in the economic system—an adjustment whereby everybody who works will not necessarily work the same hours every day and the same days every week. Part-time jobs for women who also have homes to look after come under this head, and likewise the question of women entering into competition with men in seeking employment and the adjustments that will be necessary.

This problem of the home and the job is admittedly a most difficult one. Ever since woman first undertook to step outside the role of housewife to which she was committed by the traditions and practices of centuries, the cry has been raised that it meant the breaking up of the home. It was even heard when women first insisted that they be permitted to learn to read and write! And it probably will be heard a century or two from now.

That a woman can have a career and yet be a mother and the head of a household, however, is proved by the many of the leaders in the Panhellenic movement. Perhaps one whose record in that line is most conspicuous is Mrs. Lillian Moller Gilbreth, president of Gilbreath, Inc., consulting engineers in management.

In the brief space of a little more than a quarter of a century, Mrs. Gilbreth has taken four or five college degrees; organized, developed, and managed a big business; written several books and numberous articles; given time and effort to the affairs of various national and international organizations; and—managed a home and mothered a family of twelve children, all but one of whom are now living!

The Entertaining Angel

By Samuel Merwin

Sadie had said something in her sapient way. . . .. What was it? . . . . Oh, yes! "Girls don't like lame puppies hanging around. They like to be managed. There's a little bit of truth in this sheik and cave-man stuff."

That was it. The thought possessed him now. It was, he knew, even at the moment, a long first step in the worldly education of Julian Reed. Again he knit his brows. Lame puppy! . . Of course! Yes! .. . . Hmm!

As it had happened, no one in the troupe had seen Julian when in the grip of an overmastering idea. They had seen him only during the forlornest confusion of his life. That he understood perfectly. Always from that cold corner of his brain he could look in at himself. And he wasn't just the one kind of person.

He heard Hester's bright laugh. Suddenly it stopped. He didn't turn. He didn't need to know that just then she must have seen the olive car and himself in it.

"I can live out an idea," he was thinking. "I can live out a thought as well as the next man." He wished he could stop trembling. Their voices were very near. A deep breath helped. Another! He must be careful not to over do it. Just steady . . . steady.

He greeted them with a quiet smile. Hester seemed to hesitate an instant.

"Hop in!" said Julian. He found that he could smile. And in a moment her warm little body was close to his own. Jim coolly crowded in beside her. Joe caught on to the running board.

Jim and the crew were setting up the canvas wall about the enclosure. A motor truck roared in at intervals, with folding chairs from a convenient undertaking establishment. Hester and Joe stood on the stage while J. Murry Watt paced the ground in front, holding forth in impassioned oratory, for the young man's benefit, regarding the art of the actor. At times he interrupted himself to put them briskly through one or another of their scenes, for the erstwhile leading man with Modjeska was by no means wholly a spender of time. He did know his theater.

Julian, meantime, perched on a none-to-secure stepladder at the rear of the stage, was hanging the two sets of curtains, which, draped this way and that, provided settings for the various plays and framed the sloping canvas sky at the rear. Jim, all practical and impersonal energy, had set him at it. Only once or twice did he glance at the players who moved about almost at the foot of the ladder. He saw Henry Harper come from the men's tent, minus a collar and with lather on his face, to run through a scene with Joe, and then heard the dry, cackling voice with which Henry could so easily, always, move an audience to laughter. Lester was there, as well, for a time. But what gave interest, even color, to the rehearsal—from the first, and not without a rising bitterness, Julian sensed the fact—was the aptitude of Joe for the work assigned to him. Self-assurance, indeed, was his in plenty. He moved easily and with grace. And his voice, as Jim had pointed out, rang with a natural resonance. Hester seemed positively happy over the promise he gave. And more than once Murry Watt uttered words of encouragement.

1925 as do these governmental publications.

"On page 24 of the recent bulletin is a comparison of the average hourly earnings for the industry as a whole in all departments in 1913 as shown by the Sheridan report against those of 1925 as disclosed by the recent survey. This comparison is interesting in that it shows the earnings per hour are now more than twice what they were twelve years ago. The piece work and day wage rates as specified in the agreement have not been doubled in that period, but improved conditions and better facilities have contributed more largely than is generally realized to the earning power of the men, so that they may now earn two dollars in less time and with less effort than were formerly required to earn one.

Comparison of Hourly Earnings.

"The following quotation from the report embraces figures for only a few occupations. It will be sufficient for the purpose of illustration.

"Comparison of hourly earnings of pottery workers in 1913 and 1925:

	1913	1925
Mould makers	51c	100c
Batters out	23	56
Mould runners	19	47
Finishers, female	26	52
Jiggermen	45	90
Dishmakers	44	81
Turners	50	94
Handlers	53	95
Casters	39	90
Sagger makers	45	96
Kiln placers, bisque	48	105
Kiln placers, glost	48	104
Kiln drawers, male	32	71
Kiln drawers, female	19	46
Ware dressers, female	16	39
Warehousemen	29	58
Dippers	62	123
Packers	35	85
Decorating kilnmen	31	77

"An interesting feature disclosed by the report is the number of female compared with the number of male employes in the various districts.

"In the 22 plants surveyed in the immediate East Liverpool district there were 50 women employed to every 100 men.

"In the 18 plants in the west outside of East Liverpool there were 62 women to every 100 men and in three Trenton earthenware plants there were 84 women to every 100 men.

"Excepting in the decorating departments, the hourly earnings were fairly uniformed in the several districts, but in the cost of decorating the western firms outside of East Liverpool appear to have a material advantage, partly accounted for by the larger percentage of female labor, and partly, it may be assumed, by a different wage scale.

"In 22 plants in East Liverpool there were 152 male gilders and liners and 79 females.

"In 18 western plants outside of East Liverpool there were 83 male gilders and liners and 238 female.

"This indicates that in East Liverpool 34 per cent of the liners are women against 75 per cent in other Ohio plants. An analysis of the statistics, with the details of which I shall not burden you, seems to show that it is costing East Liverpool for lining labor from 40 to 50 per cent more than it does the potteries more fortunately located, also that the same potteries have an advantage of about 30 per cent in the cost of transferring decalcomania. More power to them.

12 Pressers In Trade.

"A rather striking development disclosed by the recent report is the almost complete disappearance of the printer, the presser and the apprentice in the earthenware potteries. Within the recollection of all of us of the older generation, the decorating capacity of plants was measured by the number of printers employed. Yet in the 46 plants surveyed last year there were 39 in which there was no printer. There were only seven printers in the entire trade. In no plant was more than one engaged—the total being four in East Liverpool, two in Trenton and one in the other districts.

"Pressers, that formerly outnumbered the jiggermen, are now exceedingly rare. In 37 plants no presser was found. There were but 12 in the entire trade. Of these five were in East Liverpool, five in Trenton, and two in other districts.

"There were not enough apprentices employed in the entire industry to warrant separate mention in the report. Consequently, there are no available data for the trade as a whole. Perhaps the apprentice situation at the Laughlin Newell plants is representative. In those three plants, with a capacity of about 70 kilns, there are between sliphouse and warehause only four apprentices, one mould maker, and three dishmakers.

"There are many other curiosities of statistics embraced in the publicatin. There are tables showing the time required for placing and drawing kilns in the different plants, showing a very wide variation. There is a comparison of losses in broken bisque, thirds and lump, and other tables which are interesting, if not quite accurate. These will not be quoted, but are commended for your careful perusal.

Kilnmen on Day-Wage Basis.

"There has been a considerable increase during the year in the number of kilnmen and dippers employed on a day-wage basis. So far as my information goes, there has been some increase in cost to the manufacturers, but not much. There has been some improvement in the quality of the product, but not so much as might have been anticipated. The real advantage lies in the removal of a constant source of irritation. A spirit of co operation has been established in a department where a spirit of antagonism prevailed under the piece work system that was liable to break at any moment into open hostility.

"During the year the standing committees have functioned with their usual faithfulness and proficiency. Their work was complicated by an exceptional number of new and unique shapes, upon which making and decorating prices were to be established. In this difficult task they succeeded remarkably well, and without serious interruption in operations. The prices fixed were generally fair to both employer and employe. The men did not succeed in their original demands for extravagant prices, but there is no instance on record in which their wages have not been maintained to the level of their earnings on older shapes.

"You have observed from the October bulletin issued by the secretary that the combined sales of 26 earthenware firms for August and September, 1925, were $3,307,000.00, and for the same two months in 1926 they were $3,914,000.00, a gain of more than 18 per cent. No data are available to indicate whether this increase was general throughout the trade, or throughout the year.

"The returns to the questionnaire as to sales and wages paid were disappointingly incomplete, but enough was assembled to leave little room for doubt that the industry as a whole was on the up grade, at least during this fall.

"Yet it must be apparent to all observers that the distribution of our products is in a transition stage. The older avenues and methods are yielding to the newer. Almost anything may happen at any time. Predictions for 1927 are little more than idle speculation. The trend of the domestic potting business for next year is on the knees of the gods."

when a college woman decided to make a profession of journalism she usually had only a rather vague idea that when she was graduated she would make her start by getting a job as a reporter on some newspaper, specializing later on when she found the work for which she was best qualified. Now, as the result of four or five years' activity by Theta Sigma Phi, college women are specializing in their training and preparatory work and they have learned that there are many opportunities aside from the ordinary reportorial job—position on trade publications, technical as well as editorial jobs with magazines and book publishers, openings as free lance writers, places with advertising agencies, and numerous others.

Moreover, this society inaugurated the very practical step of bringing the college woman and the job together by opening a register for employment. Every undergraduate was urged to place her name on this register, with a statement of her qualifications and her preference as to kind and place of employment, and then the staff of the national organization of the society undertook to find her the kind of job wanted, where she wanted it. This work is said to have been extremely successful.

General Placement Agency.

It is this sort of work that the general placement agency now being organized by the Panhellenic association will systematize and carry forward on a larger scale. It is hoped that it can be developed until every woman leaving college prepared for a professional or business career will be brought immediately in contact with a job or a promising field for professional practice.

The third line of activity of the association will be to work out a solution of the problem of the adjustment of the home to the job. This is a problem not only of the woman who has a home and wants a job, but of the woman who has a job and wants a home.

Simplification of the task of running a household will be studied, and how work can be eliminatted in the home without destroying or detracting from the fundamentals that go to make up the intimacy and real value of home life. Community nurseries, kitchens, and schools will be considered in their relation to this phase of the problem.

Also there is the possibility of eventually bringing about greater flexability in the economic system—an adjustment whereby everybody who works will not necessarily work the same hours every day and the same days every week. Part-time jobs for women who also have homes to look after come under this head, and likewise the question of women entering into competition with men in seeking employment and the adjustments that will be necessary.

This problem of the home and the job is admittedly a most difficult one. Ever since woman first undertook to step outside the role of housewife to which she was committed by the traditions and practices of centuries, the cry has been raised that it meant the breaking up of the home. It was even heard when women first insisted that they be permitted to learn to read and write! And it probably will be heard a century or two from now.

That a woman can have a career and yet be a mother and the head of a household, however, is proved by the many of the leaders in the Panhellenic movement. Perhaps one whose record in that line is most conspicuous is Mrs. Lillian Moller Gilbreth, president of Gilbreath, Inc., consulting engineers in management.

In the brief space of a little more than a quarter of a century, Mrs. Gilbreth has taken four or five college degrees; organized, developed, and managed a big business; written several books and numberous articles; given time and effort to the affairs of various national and international organizations; and—managed a home and mothered a family of twelve children, all but one of whom are now living!

THE ENTERTAINING ANGEL

By Samuel Merwin

Sadie had said something in her sapient way. . . .. What was it? . . . . Oh, yes! "Girls don't like lame puppies hanging around. They like to be managed. There's a little bit of truth in this sheik and cave-man stuff."

That was it. The thought possessed him now. It was, he knew, even at the moment, a long first step in the worldly education of Julian Reed. Again he knit his brows. Lame puppy! . . Of course! Yes! .. . . Hmm!

As it had happened, no one in the troupe had seen Julian when in the grip of an overmastering idea. They had seen him only during the forlornest confusion of his life. That he understood perfectly. Always from that cold corner of his brain he could look in at himself. And he wasn't just the one kind of person.

He heard Hester's bright laugh. Suddenly it stopped. He didn't turn. He didn't need to know that just then she must have seen the olive car and himself in it.

"I can live out an idea," he was thinking. "I can live out a thought as well as the next man." He wished he could stop trembling. Their voices were very near. A deep breath helped. Another! He must be careful not to over do it. Just steady . . . steady.

He greeted them with a quiet smile. Hester seemed to hesitate an instant.

"Hop in!" said Julian. He found that he could smile. And in a moment her warm little body was close to his own. Jim coolly crowded in beside her. Joe caught on to the running board.

Jim and the crew were setting up the canvas wall about the enclosure. A motor truck roared in at intervals, with folding chairs from a convenient undertaking establishment. Hester and Joe stood on the stage while J. Murry Watt paced the ground in front, holding forth in impassioned oratory, for the young man's benefit, regarding the art of the actor. At times he interrupted himself to put them briskly through one or another of their scenes, for the erstwhile leading man with Modjeska was by no means wholly a spender of time. He did know his theater.

Julian, meantime, perched on a none-to-secure stepladder at the rear of the stage, was hanging the two sets of curtains, which, draped this way and that, provided settings for the various plays and framed the sloping canvas sky at the rear. Jim, all practical and impersonal energy, had set him at it. Only once or twice did he glance at the players who moved about almost at the foot of the ladder. He saw Henry Harper come from the men's tent, minus a collar and with lather on his face, to run through a scene with Joe, and then heard the dry, cackling voice with which Henry could so easily, always, move an audience to laughter. Lester was there, as well, for a time. But what gave interest, even color, to the rehearsal—from the first, and not without a rising bitterness, Julian sensed the fact—was the aptitude of Joe for the work assigned to him. Self-assurance, indeed, was his in plenty. He moved easily and with grace. And his voice, as Jim had pointed out, rang with a natural resonance. Hester seemed positively happy over the promise he gave. And more than once Murry Watt uttered words of encouragement.

CHURCH PLANS SPECIAL MEET

Visiting Ministers to Speak Sunday in Church of Christ.

Rev. C. Melvin McKay, pastor of the Pennsylvania Avenue Church of Christ, announced today that special services would be held in the church at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon in connection with installation of the newly elected officers.

Rev. B. R. Johnson, pastor of the First Church of Christ, will speak on the duties officers owe the church, which Rev. E. A. Sims, pastor of the Chester Christian church, will outline obligations the congregation has to the officers. The pastor will preside.

Program of Christmas carols will be given in the church on Sunday evening, December 19. Members of the congregation will take part in the program.

Lucy Gray Died.
Also the World Court.
Writing Backward.
Rest in the Grave.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

Copyright, 1926, by the Star Co.

IN THE President's message there isn't a word about the world court. That's as dead, in the United States, as little Lucy Gray after she started on her trip with the lantern.

THE President's mind is on the farmers. He wants Muscle Shoals developed to produce cheap fertilizer, and the federal agricultural agencies made stronger and wider.

GENTLEMEN planning to run for president on a wet Democratic ticket will be met by the President more than half way, although he doesn't mention them, or the presidency. He intends to enforce prohibition legislation, and favors adequate financing of enforcement.

WARNED by our recent coal troubles and by England's industrial strike calamity, the President wants legislation that will put our coal supply beyond the reach of owners and workers' fights.

THE President wants adequate military and naval preparedness. Everybody knows that an adequate air fleet is included in his program. Pray that the country may have such a fleet in the air, not merely on paper.

THE President wants congress to appropriate, at one session, enough money for [illegible] years. This would allow congress [illegible] think about legislation instead of about money at least half the time. Congress won't like that. Money is the biggest club that a legislator can swing.

A SIX-YEAR-OLD boy in England, otherwise normal, writes backward and cannot write any other way. This interests and amazes everybody. What ought to amaze us is that there are on earth, sixteen hundred millions of human beings, all of whom can be taught to write forward, walk

33 OTHER MEN ARE BROUGHT UP ALIVE; 17 BADLY BURNED

RESCUERS BUSY

Imprisoned Workers are 286 Feet Below Surface.

FRANCISCO, Ind., Dec. 9.—Thirty-six men remained in mine No. 2 of the Francisco Coal Mining company here at 10:30 a. m. today following a dust explosion while the day shift was going down into the pit.

Thirty-three men have been brought up alive. Of these 17 were seriously burned and have been rushed to the Methodist hospital at Princeton, Ind.

Fate of Entombed Uncertain.

The fate of the 36 entombed men was not definitely ascertained although reports were current that a number of them were dead.

Rescue crews were working feverishly to reach the men who are said to be 286 feet below the surface.

J. R. Henderson, manager of the mine, expressed confidence that most of the entombed miners would be rescued in a few hours, although he admitted no one knew the extent of the cave-in.

"There are 125 competent rescue workers mobilized for the rescue work," Henderson said. "We are sending down rescue gangs in shifts of 25 men.

The first body of a victim to be recovered from the mine was that of W. T. Bird, 58, who was killed instantly. Bird was survived by a widow and two children.

Plan Organization Beagle Club at Meeting Tonight

Steps to organize a Beagle club, membership of which will include Beagle dog owners and hunters, will be taken at a meeting to be held in the Carmarda garage building, West Fifth street, at 8 o'clock tonight.

Edwin Wells, jr., Newell, W. W. Beatty and Michael Carmarda, of East Liverpool, are sponsors of the club which will probably be affiliated with the national beagle organization. Four other clubs have been formed in the state of Ohio.

A field trial in which scores of dogs are expected to be entered, will probably be held next fall.

All dog owners and others interested in hunting are invited to attend tonight's meeting.

COUNT SALM'S SUIT POSTPONED

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—The separation suit brought by Count Ludwig Salm against his wife, the former Millicent Rogers, today was postponed until January 17 after the count's attorney had requested time in which to obtain witnesses who he said would testify to Salm's ability to support a family.

WELLSVILLE POLICE CHIEF IS "FIRED"

12 Talesmen Tentatively Seated In McDermott Trial

Prosecutor Has Exercised Last of Its Peremptory Challenges—Defense Has Six Left.

BY PAUL E. BROKAW.

COURT HOUSE, CANTON, O., Dec. 9.—With the state's right to peremptorily challenge potential jurors in the murder trial of Patrick E. McDermott exhausted, 12 talesmen were tentatively seated when court recessed this afternoon.

The prosecution had exercised the last of its authorized four challenges and the defense had six of its original sixteen left.

McDermott, a little wiry fellow with a sloping forehead and semi-receding chin, has displayed an amazing shrewdness in sizing up those who have been called to qualify as his jurors.

On one occasion, after a juror had been tentatively seated, he remarked to Homer Durand, one of his lawyers, that he thought the man was a "Ku Kluxer."

The man, Otto Black, was recalled to the witness chair.

Upon being questioned he admitted that he "had been a member of the Klan, but was now back in his dues."

Attorney Durand exercised the right of peremptory challenge and the man was dismissed.

Skirmishes Between Lawyers.

Skirmishes between opposing counsel over various questions directed at jurors by the defense in an effort to bring out more about their avowed "personal opinions on the case," featured the morning session of the court and gave promise of more wordy spectacles to come.

Prosecutor McClintock won out in some of these preliminary bickerings, for the court tentatively seated two potential jurors over the objection of defense counsel, thus forcing them to resort to the peremptory challenge if they desire the jurors excused.

When court opened this afternoon there were seven men and five women in the jury box.

CHEST CLINIC WILL BE HELD HERE TUESDAY BY STATE HEALTH OFFICIALS

Youngstown and Mt. Vernon Physicians Volunteer Services for Diagnostic Meet at First Baptist Church.

Plans were completed today for the diagnostic chest clinic which will be conducted at the First Baptist church next Tuesday under joint auspices of the state department of health, local health board and the Ohio State Medical association.

Drs. E. E. Kirkwood of the Mahoning county sanatorium, Youngstown, and F. C. Anderson, of Mt. Vernon sanatorium have volunteered their services as specialists. These physicians have devoted years of study to diseases of the chest and are recognized authorities on tuberculosis.

Dr. John A. Fraser, health commissioner, and Mrs. R. H. Leeper, public health nurse, are arranging for the clinic for the benefit of tuberculosis patients.

FOUR JAGS PER CAPITA POSSIBLE FROM LIQUOR STOCKS IN U. S.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9.—Every man, woman and child in the United States could have two quarts of intoxicating liquors, all the way from sparkling champagne to industrial alcohol, if the stocks on hand June 30, were equitably distributed. If a pint produces intoxication that means four jags per capita.

Liquor stocks, including a small quantity of left-over denatured alcohol, in official warehouses amounted to 56,958,637 gallons, according to the annual report of Commissioner of Internal Revenue D. H. Blair, issued today.

Rum, 289,344 gallons.
Gin, 802,433 gallons.
Brandy, 1,133,000 gallons.
High wines, 336 gallons.
Alcohol, 467,560 gallons.
Wine, 23,383,000 gallons.
Champagne and sparkling wines, 1,325,000 gallons.
Industrial alcohol 5,743,000 gallons.

Six Prohibition Agents Killed.

Included in production of alcoholics for the year were 894,000 gallons of rum, 644,000 gallons of brandy and 202,271,000 gallons of industrial alcohol. Production of industrial alcohol

715 Coast Guard Members Convicted Of Liquor Plots

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9.—Conspiracies with rum runners and other serious offenses led to the conviction by general courtmartial of 715 members of the U. S. coast guard in the year ending June 30, according to the annual report of that service made public today.

Out of 727 coast guardsmen placed before general courts only 12 were acquitted. Prison sentences were inflicted upon 112 men and 240 were dishonorably discharged.

SOCIETY WOMAN LEAPS TO DEATH

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—Mrs. Louise Hewitt, 25-year-old daughter of William J. Schiefflin, wealthy retired druggist and prominent in the younger society set, committed suicide today by leaping from the window of her sixth story apartment. She had been suffering from a nervous breakdown, police were told.

Mrs. Hewitt was a descendant of Commodore Cornelius Vanderbilt and of John Jay, first chief justice of the United States. Her husband is a great grandson of Peter Cooper, founder of Cooper Union, and a grandson of the late Mayor Hewitt of New York.

Fines Totalling $400 Assessed for Games of Chance.

WHISKY FOUND

McKinley Hotel Lessee Pays $100 on Rum Charge.

Eight men, seven charged with having punch boards in their possession and one with a dry law violation, were arrested late yesterday afternoon by police in series of gambling and liquor raids on pool rooms, hotels, confectioneries and other places.

Fines of $50 and costs each were assessed by Municipal Judge Hanley against seven pool room owners, one of whom was charged with violations in two establishments. R. H. Canady, lessee of the McKinley hotel, was fined $100 and costs for illegal possession of intoxicating liquors.

Those held on gambling charges were: James Kapotis, proprietor of the Academy pool room, East Fifth street and the Unique pool room, East Sixth street; Ira Riebel, proprietor of the Madison pool room, Mulberry street; John McLaughlin, operator of the Liberty pool room in the Diamond; Chris Anas, proprietor of the National pool room, East Sixth stret; Charles Patterson, Mulberry street; William Kane, Mulberry street and John Davis, proprietor of the Grand pool room in the Diamond. Punch boards were found in each place.

The American pool room, East Sixth street, and the Diamond pool room in the Diamond were also visited, but no punch boards or gambling devices of any kind were found. Several confectioneries and grocery stores were also searched, but there was no evidence of games of chance.

At the McKinley hotel, Second street, the police found a half pint of liquor in a dresser drawer. Four women and two men, who claimed to be from Canton, were found in the hotel and ordered out of town. A charge of keeping a disorderly house, which was filed against Canady, was dismissed after he produced his hotel register.

Theatre Manager Gets Court Order On Shed Removal

A temporary injunction, restraining the city of East Liverpool from removing a shed, covering an outside stairway adjoining the American theatre in Diamond alley, was granted Angel Alix, assistant manager of the playhouse, in common pleas court at Lisbon today. The injunction notice was served on Mayor Ralph Benedum at noon.

The city notified the lessee of the theatre recently that the shed was to be removed and an iron grating placed over the stairway. The Potters Lumber company was to have started work this afternoon when the injunction was served.

RAIDER SAYS HE FOUND SMALL QUANTITY OF LIQUOR IN STORE

Suspected Grocer is Said to Have Been Released Upon Executive's Order Before Officer is Notified That He Has Been Ousted for Second Time in Nine Months.

Chief of Police John Fultz, of Wellsville, "fired" early this year by Mayor W. L. Fogo, and later re-instated by a decision in common pleas court at Lisbon, again was dismissed as head of the police department by the mayor, it was reported, following an alleged dispute in police headquarters shortly before noon today.

The action of the mayor, it is said, followed the arrest of James Pugia, Twelfth street grocery store owner, by Fultz last night on a charge of possessing intoxicating liquor.

Fultz asserts he found a quantity of liquor in a pint bottle at the Pugia store and Pugia was ordered in for a hearing at 11 o'clock this morning.

Pugia, according to reports, was dismissed by Mayor Fogo, and Fultz was "fired" from his post as police head.

Pugia In Court.

When Pugia was ordered in police headquarters before Mayor Fogo this morning, the latter, it is reported, asked for the evidence.

Pugia then, it is claimed, declared: "there wasn't that much in that bottle last night."

Mayor Fogo then, it is alleged, said to Pugia, "You're dismissed."

The evidence, in the pint bottle, left sitting on a nearby desk, was picked up by Fultz and put in his pocket despite objections, it is said, of Mayor Fogo.

Turning to Fultz, according to reports, he said to the police officer: "You're done, your authority is through.

Demands Written Notice.

The police chief demanded written notice of dismissal with the reasons for his dismissal.

The mayor is said to told Fultz that he "would do that after while."

Fultz asserted at 2 p. m. that he is still working as chief of police.

The mayor, it is claimed, charged Fultz with having arrested persons who testified against him in his removal trial.

Fultz asserted to the mayor that he would arrest anyone, if provided with names.

Newspapermen's efforts to reach Mayor Fogo following the clash were in vain.

Decision of the appellate court in the first dimissal case, carried up by the city, is expected at Steubenville next week.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9.—President Coolidge today renominated Hywell Davies of California as a member of the United States board of mediation for a five-year term.

Akron Man Held On Murder Charge When Wife Dies

AKRON, O., Dec. 9.—Irvin Reese, 37, is held on a first degree murder charge here today, following the death of his wife, Mrs. Viola Reese, from wounds inflicted, it is alleged, by Reese Sunday night, as the woman was leaving Wesley Temple Methodist church.

The shooting, according to officers, climaxed a domestic quarrel. Mrs. Reese was shot near the door of the church as she emerged after attending the Sunday night services.

Six Persons Die When Caught in Blizzard in Spain

MADRID, Dec. 9.—Two women and four children belonging to a band of gypsies lost their lives today when the tribe was caught in the mountains near Cuenca by a blinding blizzard. Unable to find shelter, they were frozen to death.

DU PONT URGES SUPER HIGHWAY

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9.—A super highway, stretching from coast to coast, was proposed today by Senator DuPont (R) of Delaware.

The highway would pass through municipalities of less than 2,500 populations, strictly avoiding the "big towns." Leasing of the unusued portions of a 500-foot wide right of way, set aside for future needs of military and post roads, would pay for the construction.

GENERAL WARE INDUSTRY ON UPGRADE IN FALL, BUT TREAD OF POTTING BUSINESS FOR NEXT YEAR IS ON KNEES OF GODS, SAYS W. E. WELLS

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—The general ware industry "as a whole was on the up grade, at least during the fall" but "the trend of the domestic potting business for the next year is on the knees of the gods" W. E. Wells, secretary-treasurer of the Homer Laughlin China company and chairman of the labor committee of the United States Potters' association told members of the association at their annual meeting which closed yesterday at the Waldorf-Astoria hotel.

"It must be apparent to all observers that the distribution of our products is in a transition stage," the report says further. "The older avenues and methods are yielding to the newer. Almost anything may happen at any time. Predictions for 1927 are little more than idle speculation."

The report of the committee, touching upon labor conditions in the general ware industry during the past year, briefly reviewed the negotiations between the National Brotherhood of Operative potters and the manufacturers with regard to the two-year wage scale which became effective October 1.

"The year 1926 has been at least as free from labor controversies of major importance as any other year," the report says. "It has been a year distinguished by the smooth working of the wage agreement."

The complete reports follows:

Peace in Industry.

"A scarcity of material from which to construct a labor report is a fortunate condition, as indicating that comparative peace has prevailed throughout the current year, but it is unfortunate in reflecting some degree of unemployment. That condition has obtained since the last report of your committee was submitted. The year 1926 has been at least as free from labor controversies of major importance as any other year of the long period during which we have dealt with the brotherhood in recognition of their equal right to a voice in wage adjustments. It has been a year distinguished by the smooth working of the wage agreement. The labor committee has not been called upon to function in any emergency. Its only activity was that of participating in the formality of negotiating a new agreement to supersede the one expiring on October first last.

"The annual convention of the brotherhood was held as usual at Atlantic City early in July. The discussions throughout the sessions, extending for more than a week, were largely devoted to the long list of proposals submitted by the various locals for increased wage rates and easier working conditions, which they hoped to have embodied in the new agreement.

"It may be assumed the officers of the brotherhood and other conservative delegates realized that trade conditions did not warrant a wage advance in any department, and that it would be futile to present demands of that character to our association. Consequently, it was currently reported that many of the more extreme proposals were rejected by their general price list committee, or on the floor of the convention. Nevertheless, the rank and file of the delegates succeeded in having passed twenty-three propositions, some of which were harmless, and others quite radical. These propositions were presented, in the usual printed form, to our association on July 19. A copy of the brotherhood communication will be made a part of the permanent records of the association.

Wage Scale Discussions.

The labor committee discussed the situation at a meeting held at the office of the chairman on July 23, concluding unanimously that any concession that would increase payrolls was out of order, and that all proposals seeking such concessions should be denied. The committee also considered the suggestion of some of our members that a demand be made for a wage reduction in some of the higher paid departments. Such action appeared to be warranted by the fact that our selling prices on leading staples had been forced down to the point of cost, or below, by aggressive competition on foreign goods. Even upon this basis, many of the potteries were short of business. There was

Buyology

Not all of us are authorities on biology. But all of us may easily master the principles and practices of buyology. It is at once a science, an art; the business of spending money to best advantage.

One's inherent good taste takes care of the artistic side—the fashion element. Scientific merchandising may safely be left to the store that proved its proficiency. The selection of gifts and of things for dressing up the person and the home for Christmas makes buyology most important right now.

Prices are so reasonable and stocks so large and varied that buyology is once more a pleasant as well as an essential profession.

FOUNDATION GARMENTS AND THE MODERN MODE

The mode for the new season, in corsettes, includes models expressive of youth.

The designers of Bien Jolie Foundation garments have evolved a group of corsettes exactly fitted to the needs of modern women.

The art of corsetry has known many changes since the heroine of mediaeval romance cultivated a "gentyle body and middle small" by means of a tightly laced gown and the modern prototype of the "privie coat by art made strong," though it may lack the splendour of furred red velvet and cloth of gold, ensures for its wearer a grace and comfort that our ancestresses never knew.

The active, athletic woman of today, with her trim silhouette and tailored lines, requires something different from the "whalebone prison" of past centuries. The rigidity and constriction of the old-time corset have vanished to make way for perfect support and restraint so subtle as to be impossible of definition, a gentle modeling of the entire figure, achieved by perfection of cut rather than by elaboration of boning.

The new Bien Jolie Corsettes are exquisitely fashioned of materials that are as supple as they are durable. There are plain and brocade satins and other fancy brocades. In flesh, peach and black.

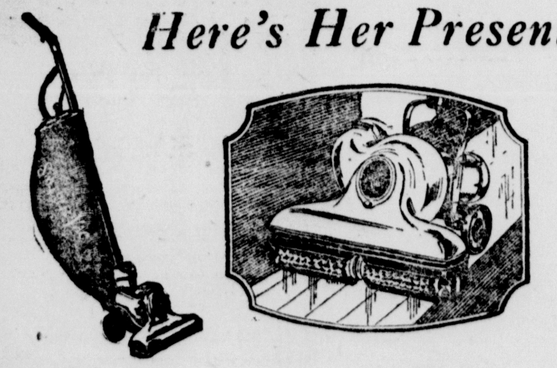

Supreme skill in design and cut, meticulous care in every detail of manufacture, and discriminating taste in choice of materials have indeed made the Bien Jolie Corsette one of the most notworthy achivemnts of modrn corsetry.

There is a model for practically every form and our expert corsetiere will be glad to advise you and fit you with the corsette you need.

Sizes 32 to 48. Priced from $3.00 to $15.00.

PRETTY GIRL LESSER FIGURE IN DEATH PLOT

Peggy Cavanaugh Material Witness in McDermott Case.

HELD IN JAIL

"Pat and I Are Not Lovers," She Declares.

BY BONITA WITT.

COURTROOM, CANTON, O., Dec. 9.—Again the woman pays.

With eyes riveted on well dressed Patrick Eugene McDermott, brought into court charged with the murder of Don R. Mellett, editor who tried to rid Canton of bootleggers and thugs, a lesser figure seems overlooked.

A girl, pretty and red-headed, stares through the bars in the drab Stark county workhouse. All because she went on an auto ride with Pat McDermott.

Locked up for three months as a material witness, questioned by a grand jury, Peggy Cavanaugh, a Cleveland waitress, has been in this prison, waiting, waiting.

An Unpleasant Prospect.

Two of those months it looked as if she'd have to wait for a long, long time—as McDermott was captured only a few weeks before his trial. He had been hiding in Cleveland.

The jaunty Pat, a dapper, pleasant-looking youth, was a customer at the restaurant which employed Peggy. He frequently chatted with her. The two became good friends.

Then, one night last July, Pat asked Peggy to accompany him on a motor trip to an adjoining city, Akron, where he wanted "to see a fellow on business."

Several days later Peggy was arrested by detectives.

The prosecution has charged that McDermott went to Akron to collect money it is alleged he was promised for the murder of Mellett.

Officials assert Peggy went along not knowing the nature of the trip and hold her merely as a material witnes.

"Pat and I lovers? Absolutely not!" says Peggy, with a toss of her bobbed locks. "I have a real sweetheart in Cleveland. Pat and I are only friends. I wish the reporters would stop calling us lovers!

"Gosh, I'll never feel sorry for anyone again. Pat used to come into the restaurant and tell how his mother used to beg him to come to see her. I'd urge him to go to his home in Pennsylvania because I knew when he was there he wouldn't drink. Pat's an awfully nice kid, but easily led.

"Boy Friend' Angry.

"Here I tried to be nice to him and help him, and look at the mess I'm in now. My 'boy friend' is awfully sore at Pat and he doesn't think I ought to feel sorry for him. Yet sometimes I just can't help feeling sorry, he was such a nice fellow and he treated me just fine. Maybe I'll be friends with him if he should gain his freedom, but maybe I won't.

"I know he never dreamed that I might get into trouble the night he asked me to go auto riding. Pat was a good friend of mine and he wouldn't have taken me along if he had known how our first date would turn out. He always treated me with respect.

"I knew Pat a long time, but, honestly, he never told me a thing about the Mellett murder. I didn't even know there had been a murder until the police arrested me. If I'd suspected anything I never would have gone.

"It's pretty bad having to stay here because of a chance auto ride with a friend. If I had been a sweetheart in whom he confided, I might feel differently about it, but it's pretty tough when I have a 'boy friend' of my own who is peeved at me because I went riding with Pat."

MELLETT CASE IN NUTSHELL

On July 16 Don Mellett, crusading Canton, O., editor was shot down at his garage doors, one bullet piercing his brain. There were few clews except that Mellett had made repeated attacks on Canton's underworld and bootleggers, who Mellett charged, were under police protection.

Two days after Ora Slater, Cincinnati detective, was called in he started trailing Pat McDermott, Cleveland, O., as a suspect.

Steve Kascholk, now known as the "informer," told the prosecution he came to Canton with Pat and was hired to "beat up" an editor. He said he became afraid and quit before the shooting.

McDermott fled from Cleveland after police learned he had made a trip to Akron, after the murder accompanied by Peggy Cavanaugh, a Cleveland waitress.

C. B. McClintock, prosecutor of the case, charges McDermott went to Akron to collect money promised him. Miss Cavanaugh asserts she knew nothing of the nature of the trip.

Then McDermott disappeared for three months. Many thought him dead. Detective Slater, however, brought about his capture by gaining the confidence of McDermott's relatives at Nanty Glo, Pa. McDermott was taken while visiting his mother there. It later developed that during the entire three months he had been hiding in a Cleveland apartment.

Two other men were indicted for the murder at the same time McDermott was. They await trial.

HAD SUFFERED FOR YEARS WITH RHEUMATISM

A sufferer from acute rheumatism for many years, a Winchester, N. H., man at last found that he could always get rid of the pain, and relieve the swelling and stiffness by a simple home treatment.

"After trying various remedies," he writes, "Sloan's Liniment was recommended to me, and it stopped the pain."

What is the reason for these remarkable results?

Simply that Sloan's doesn't just deaden the nerves. It stirs up your own forces to get rid of the conditions that are causing the pain.

Apply lightly without rubbing, and at once you'll feel the comforting warmth as fresh, healing blood begins circulating through the affected spot. The stiff, swollen tissues relax, the inflammation goes down, the pain stops, and soon you feel normal again. Get a bottle today and have it on hand. All druggists—35 cents.

EAST LIVERPOOL—AMERICA'S POTTERY CENTER

THURSDAY, DECEMBER 9, 1926.

Call For Allies In White Plague War

The City Federation of Women's Clubs today again appealed for East Liverpool allies in the war against the white plague, financed through the sale of Christmas Seals.

Indicative of the call to arms in this crusade to wipe out tuberculosis is the 1926 health message which shows two musicians flanking a central figure holding a shield, white, on, which is stamped in red the double-barred cross which is the symbol of the National Tuberculosis and Health association and its state and city auxiliaries.

East Liverpool seeks $2,250, of which 80 per cent will be retained for local health purposes, through the seals which are sold separately or in perforated sheets of 100—as government postage stamps are—for a penny a stamp or more if the buyer wishes to contribute more.

The money raised by the annual sale of Christmas seals is used to promote health work and the co-operation in it of citizens' committees, official authorities and the medical profession. Hospital clinics, public health nursing work, health camps for underweight children, open-air schools and information offices to show people how to protect themselves against tuberculosis are all included in the work of the Tuberculosis and Health association.

Such seals on your Christmas packages and mail show that you have taken part in a piece of good work and help to advertise the work to others.

Historic Debt Parallel

A little French town has been celebrating the arrival of Benjamin Franklin 150 years ago, when he went to borrow money to finance the American revolution. French newspapers have taken occasion to draw a historical parallel.

France, they remind the world, cheerfully lent the American colonies the money they needed, and then gave them liberal terms of payment, cancelling six years' interest. They suggest that there is a great contrast in the severity the United States has shown, in demanding payment from France in the case of her World War loans.

If there is a contrast, it is probably the opposite to what the French critics represent. When that six-year moratorium on the American Revolutionary debt expired, the French demand for payment was so insistent that the Colonies were obliged, with great difficulty, to meet the payments by borrowing money in Holland at the end of the war.

America lent France billions for the mere asking, in the recent war. Then, though there was a moderate interest rate specified, this country never asked for it until eight years after the war. During these eight years, France has never paid a cent of interest and never offered to pay any. And France is now fighting a settlement which cancels a far larger proportion of the interest on her World War loans than she concelled on our revolutionary loans.

As for "spending the money in a common cause," that is a pretty good parallel. The old French loan was made to the American colonies by a French king who regarded them as allies in his war against England. America lent France money when France was an ally in our war against Germany. If the scales are not even, which country has been the more generous?

Legal Sport

After reading the news accounts of a recent notable murder trial, Heywood Broun writes in the New York World:

"The trouble with criminal practice in this country is that such extraordinary emphasis is put upon the doings of the lawyers. In all the important cases the issue as to the guilt or innocence of the men on trial is submerged wholly to the question of which contending attorney will win the game. They act, these lawyers, as if they hoped to get their 'H' or 'Y' by carrying off the verdict. It would be a good idea to set up goal posts in the court room and clear a space so that the winning counsel might snake-dance a little while before tearing them down. All that is needed in an American murder trial is a cheering section. And of course there should be arm bands and banners, frankfurters and peanuts."

Undoubtedly American criminal trials are conducted more like sporting events or stage dramas than dignified and dispassionate legal proceedings. There is so much attention paid to personality that abstract justice is often lost sight of. There is too much browbeating of witnesses. Lawyers assume the importance that should belong to the judges. It makes a good show; but is that what courts are for?

Western Education

Is culture, like empire, destined to take its way forever westward?

"I thing more people are going to college in California than elsewhere in the United States," says an eastern educator. "They are not leaving home to do it, either. They have ample facilities for higher education right at home. Everyone is interested in education, and it is talked about among all classes of people."

He seems to mean education, too—not athletics.

Who says a university education doesn't pay? The steer that won first prize at the Chicago stock fair was reared at the Oklahoma Agricultural College.

My Favorite Stories
By IRVIN S. COBB

DO YOU CALL THESE FUNNY?

Nearly always there is pathos in stories dealing with the poor, even such stories as are intended to be humorous. Only here the other day I was reading inan English paper an anecdote of a child from a desperately poverty-stricken home who had been carried for treatment to a London hospital.

A nurse put into the waif's hands a long glass of milk, and the child asked:

"How far down do I drink before I have to stop."

The little tale reminded me of one which was meant to be funny, I suppose, but which made my eyes moist the first time I heard it.

As the yarn runs a widow lived with her only son in a tumble-down shanty. One night after she had put him to bed a terrific downpour started. The water came through gaps in the warped shingles of the roof. One leak, directly above where the boy lay, spouted a stream directly down upon his small body.

The mother tried vainly to divert the flow away from him. Then an inspiration came to her. The night was stormy but it was not cold.

So she lifted the front door down off its hinges and propped it flat over the little fellow so that the drops splashed upon it instead of on him. From under his shelter he peeped out and asked:

"Mother, what do poor people do on a night like this without any door to put over them and keep off the rain?"

NEW YORK DAYBYDAY
By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Dec. 10.—Thoughts while strolling: Collegiates on the loose. Yelling like Comanches. What's a radio evangelist? Fred Stone's daughter. A noticeable restraint in women's frocks. Skimpier. Whatever became of souvenir spoons?

And why do chefs wear those white caps? Crowds sweeping to a fight at the Garden. Who'll have a Hortoa? Wish I could get interested in that Hall-Mills murder. Revues that make skits of Pullman car smut. Chinese lucky stones. The big black cat near the Hippodrome.

Another reigning ingenue. Two dimples and a lot of luck. Those chubby proprietors of Tenderloin chop houses. Ashen women selling birth control tracts. The prick of a banjo in a hoofing school. Fattish women whose hair is streaked with many colors "sampling" beauty parlors.

A happy line of movie extras. Milk white beards. Motherly old ladies. Lisping girls. Cowboys. Tall angular men. Dwarfs. And an Indian with a lop eared yellow pup. Movie magnates arriving at their Circassian walnut sheathed suites. In imported limousines.

Hot house girls, wide eyed with ambition, awaiting them. Seeking economic independence and names in lights. Earl Carroll's roof bungalow. The milk white broilers sizzling on rotisserie window spits. While street gamins look hungirly on.

French weeklies with the gaundy covers. Delicatessen dealers with white coat sleeves too long. Salads. Sliced cold pork. Onions. Pimentos. Dark upstairs rooming houses. Aproned women. Liver spotted faces. And the odor of stale grease.

A goldfish for $25. Baby wails. Chauffeurs picking their teeth. Slim little girls who stand shyly in doorways. Overcoats fastened at the throat with big brass pins. Toothless old ladies whose faces seem to fold up. So wags a world.

A gentleman who mixes his own gin gave a rather elaborate party in one of the decorative bazaars the other evening. He carried in advance numerous bottles of his concoction and "spiked" the gingerale generously. His guests drank one, two and three—and sat patiently waiting for an answer. The host himself was as much mystified. Finally he went into an anteroom and took a copious swig direct from the bottle. It was pure water. Discharged servants had several days before left him the surprise.

A Broadway bootery heralds: "Medusa wore them on her head. I put them on your feet"—which is the extravagant way of announcing reptilian effects of smart footwear. I also notice bags of ostrich skin—a diminutive sort of alligator skin and the slight lumps I assume to have been left when the plumes were plucked. Snake skin effects are also noticed in cane handles and in coverings for cigarette cases.

The passing of "Old Joe" the Broadway photographer removed a picturesque figure. He had $10,000 in the bank but would never pay more than 15 cents for a meal. More than 20 years ago he became obsessed with the idea that bodily bathing washed off the sparks of life and he never bathed after that. He lived a recluse among yellowing theatrical clippings, a few pigeons and his memories. He was once a bon vivant and favored patron of old Delmonico's. His sister had been the wife of the Brazilian envoy to Germany and he was a first nighter of distinction. He clung to Broadway to the last, being removed from one of its hotels to the hospital where he died.

HASKIN'S LETTER
By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

Liquefying Coal.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—Liquefying coal, which makes possible the production of synthetic gasoline and other petroleum products, has been accomplished, thus recording another miracle in the program of modern science. Two German chemists, working along entirely different lines of experimentation, are said to have achieved substantially the same result.

One of them, Dr. Friedrich Bergius, has developed his process until it is now on a commercial basis and two plants for "berginizing" coal have been established that have a combined capacity of 1,000,000 barrels of gasoline and other motor fuels per year. Dr. Franz Fischer, the other chemist, while he is able to turn out gasoline that is just as synthetic as any of the gin or liquor that floods America in these prohibition days, has not as yet succeeded in getting his costs down to a point where his products can be marketed in competition with those of natural petroleum.

Many other chemists, in this country as well as abroad, are experimenting with the same end in view and it is promised that before the world's supply of petroleum is exhausted, the world will be assured of an ample supply of synthetic motor fuels that will cost little if any more than the fuels now used.

In fact, this experimenting has been going on for many years.

Dr. Bergius began his work more than thirteen years ago and it is claimed that he spent at least $6,000,000 to attain his end. For several years he had a staff of 150 assistants and employees working constantly under his direction. Dr. Fischer has been engrossed with the problem almost as long, and his experiments are said to have necessitated expenditures almost as heavy.

Few chemists have the financial resources or can get the backing to make it possible for them to carry on experiments on such a huge scale. Possibly that is why the Germans have succeeded where to date the others have not been able to report similar achievements.

There is no chemical formula for coal in general, as there is for water, alcohol, sugar, and various acids, because no two coals are alike. Bergius first collected samples of coal from all parts of the world and after he had studied them until he had learned all he could about coal, he decided to make coal in his laboratory, duplicating as far as possible the geological processes by which nature transforms wood into coal. He succeeded in producing several different kinds of coal, similar to those mined in various parts of the world, and after two years of such experiments he attacked the problem of making coal take up more hydrogen, which would transform it into liquid oil.

He first attempted to drive hydrogen at very high pressure into hot lumps of coal in a closed steel tank, but his product was nothing but coke because he had used too much heat. He saw that a way must be found to prevent overheating so that the hydogen would be taken up by the coal rapidly before coking resulted.

Accordingly he experimented with powdered coal, mixed with oil until it was a paste-like mess, and kept the temperature down to 800 degrees Fahrenheit. When he opened his tank he found a liquid that upon analysis proved to be motor oil.

In the commercial process as finally developed Bergius uses the cheapest grade of coal, and since he uses it in powdered form he buys screenings, which cost little, or cheap lignites or semicoals of no great value. Very little oil is required, and that is now taken from the oil produced by the plant itself. The mass in the steel containers is mechanically stirred while the hydrogen is forced in, and only a few hours are required to transform the mass into gas, liquefied coal, coal residue, and ashes. A dozen different products are condensed by careful cooling of the liquified coal. Pure hydrogen, which is expensive, is not required for the process, water-gas containing sufficient hydrogen for Bergius' purpose. The gas which is given off in the high pressure tanks is collected and sold for domestic or industrial uses, thus becoming a cost-reducing by-product.

Dr. Fischer in his experiments adopted the principle of making gasoline and fuel oils by combining carbon monoxyde gas with hydrogen. Carbon monoxide gas is generated from coal by the process used by every gas company. Fischer forced it and hydrogen into a steel container under high pressure and temperature,

$750 VERDICT IN TWO CLAIMS FOR $70,000

Shegog-Pachal Suits Outgrowth of Auto Accident.

Mrs. Sarah Shapiro Defendant in Federal Court.

Two damage claims totalling $70,000, growing out of an accident on lower Broadway last June 2, in which Thomas A. Shegog, ceramic engineer, and Miss Helene Pachel, secretary of the Canadian Clay company, were injured when struck by an automobile driven by Mrs. Sarah Shapiro, Mulberry street, were heard by a jury before Federal Judge D. C. Westenhaver, Youngstown.

Shegog, who sued for $50,000, was given a judgment for $750, while Miss Pachel's suit for $20,000 resulted in a verdict for the defendant. Attorney George C. Davidson represented Mrs. Shapiro, while the law firm of Anderson, Lamb and Marsteller, Youngstown, was counsel for the plaintiffs.

The accident occurred when Shegog and Miss Pachal were crossing Broadway at the Pennsylvania railroad crossing. Miss Pachal charged that she was knocked to the street, one wheel of the car driven by Mrs. Shapiro passing over her right foot. Shegog was dragged along the front of the car several feet, he alleged, then dropped to the street. The petition charged that Mrs. Shapiro was careless and negligent in the operation of the machine.

Shegog, who resides in East Third street, was a ceramic engineer for one of the Sebring potteries for several years and recently became local representative of the Canadian Clay company. Miss Pachal, since the accident, has married and is now residing in Canada. Inasmuch as both plaintiffs were British subjects the case was filed in federal court.

Redwood

A good example of what Redwood's Tepee Tonic will do is embodied in the following statement from Mrs. Minnie Wood, 1427 E. 30th St., Cleveland, Ohio. She says: "Before I took Tepee Herb Tonic I had both kidney and stomach trouble and I was just about as nervous as I could be. I had a severe pain in my back that took the life right out of me. Even though I didn't do much work I felt tired and worn out.

"Tepee Herb Tonic proved to be a wonderful help. I am now so much stronger that my housework does not tire me. I have a splendid appetite and enjoy my meals."

If you don't feel well try Redwood's Tepee Tonic. It has relieved others and it will also relieve you.

Restrictions On Coasting

Judging from the number of accidents so far reported as an aftermath of the season's first heavy snowfall, East Liverpool officials should emulate the example of the Chester administration relative to restrictions on coasting.

Believing that attendant dangers can be minimized by regulations governing the winter sport, the West Virginia town's council has designated Fifth street for sledding purposes. Police have been instructed to prohibit coasting on other thoroughfares. This action was prompted by one near accident, in which a sled was carried under a moving freight train, but the coaster escaped injury.

So far four persons have been injured in the East Liverpool district—two in the city proper and two in Chester. Two boy coasters were run down by an automobile at the intersection of Avondale street and Bradshaw avenue, one of the dangerous points, Monday night, while in the Chester mishaps a boy and a girl were the victims, each suffering a fractured leg.

Police should post guards on coasting tracks or prohibit the winter pastime on certain streets, especially on thoroughfares crossing street car tracks. Otherwise, more coasting accidents are inevitable.

Mexican Oil Troubles

The Mexican government wants to have foreign titles to Mexico oil lands, acquired since the adoption of the new Mexican Constitution in 1917, exchanged for 50-year leases. This is done because the new constitution forbids the ownership of such property by aliens. Nothing has been done about it so far, but the Mexican government plans to act on the matter starting Jan. 1, 1927. The idea is to get all Mexican land ultimately back into Mexican hands.

Naturally many American owners, who acquired their titles in good faith, object to that. It is not human nature to submit cheerfully to having a permanent title changed into a limited title.

It develops, though, that important British and Dutch oil interests, which are the chief competitors of American interests in Mexico, are acquiescing. They accept the situation, apparently, in the assurance that they can get out their oil in less than 50 years. Possibly oil men, who usually clean up an oil field in this country in a few years, can do likewise.

Poor Child Brides

Child wives find unhappiness oftener than happiness, says a women's protective association, which has made a study of the question of "school girl brides."

The evil is more extensive than is commonly realized.

In one American city it was found that 518 girls of 14 to 18 had received licenses to marry in the last three years. Of 39 of these who were married under the age of 16, it was learned that 14 are already divorced or separated from their husbands.

"The hasty, ill-considered youthful marriage, motivated only by emotional instability or passing acquaintance," the investigators report, "is likely shortly to end in failure. Unfortunately family conditions of broken homes and misunderstandings are contributing factors to premature marriages, and rarely provide the training in home-making which is essential to marital adjustment."

Such marriages, they add, "weaken and cheapen the institution of marriage itself," a truth that hardly needs driving home to the American public, in view of a sensational case that has attracted much attention recently. Even the nauseating features of such cases, and the rather questionable taste of some of the matter printed in connection with them, may serve a good purpose if they help to impress on immature boys and girls, and upon their parents, the folly of such youthful unions.

"America The Beautiful

Women of the National Federation of Music clubs are offering a prize for the best tune for "America the Beautiful" written by a native American composer. The purpose is to push this song into first place among American patriotic airs.

Neither "America" nor "The Star-Spangled Banner" is altogether satisfactory, explains Mrs. Frank A. Seiberling, who is directing the contest.

"We propose to have set to suitable music a poem by an American woman which carries an appeal as wide as our nation itself, and idealizes the deep sentiments which are the foundation of true Americanism. If we are successful, we intend to ask congress to make it America's own."

The words of "America the Beautiful" are unquestionably noble in sentiment and lovely in expression. The song has been criticized as "too literary to be popular," but perhaps that objection does not matter if the tune is sufficiently popular. Then the literary folk can love the words and everybody can love the music.

The tune to which the song is usually sung is generally regarded as beautiful and appropriate, and has been gaining steadily in popularity. But if a superior one can be written before the whole nation becomes devoted to the present tune, so much the better.

COMBINING PLEASURE WITH BUSINESS.

A stranger with agreeable manners was hired as collector for a kirk in Scotland. His job was to solicit funds for building a new bell tower.

Before starting the campaign, the specialist, glancing over the list of names that had been handed him, asked the minister:

"How many of the members are teetotalers?"

The preached thought at least half of the number did not indulge in intoxicants.

"Then check off the names of the non-drinkers," said the collector.

In two days he reappeared with a nice comfortable bun on, as the expression goes, and a considerable sum in contributions.

"Surely you haven't made the entire rounds of the parish in so short a time?" said the minister.

"Oh, no," explained the expert as he smothered a hiccough, "I called personally on the fifty per cent who drink, and wrote letters to the rest of them."

NEW YORK DAYBYDAY

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—There are any number of brave little magazines in New York inspired by high ideals and struggling rather hopelessly for recognition. They represent rebellious and impossible dreams plunging along to stir commonplace minds.

Genius often flickers on their pages to be rewarded with a pittance. Poets write verse in the ante-rooms in the home of peace from badgering landladies. Learned but rejected essayists come with hats in hand to offer their wares.

Most of the editorial rooms are in mildewed rooms of abandoned houses. The exchequer cannot keep pace with the dreams but somehow publication continues—sometimes a week or even a month late. They cannot be howled down.

To one of those editorial rooms the other day came a woman with a cough and a poem. She had the appearance of having trudged several weary miles. She was asked for the price of postage in case of rejection and with a despairing gesture she revealed her empty purse.

Feverishly scribbled manuscripts, postage collect, pour in from out of pocket contributors. One poem which caused a bit of favorable comment recently was written in heavy pencil across the ink of a letter. Clean paper was evidently not obtainable.

The courage of these journals in attempting to present the labors of unsung genius is heartening. And their work is not always in vain for quite a number of men and women have been able to find successful recognition through them. That is as it should be.

The automobile is responsible for the passing of the grave frock and Prince Albert coats. Men might wear them riding in leisurely horse drawn carriages but somehow they do not fit in with automobiles.

Floating up from the depths of a cellar cabaret on Broadway the other night passers by were started to hear a rich voice singing:

Jerusalem, Jerusalem.
Lift up your gates and sing.
Hosanna in the highest,
Hosanna——

The first night the Statute of Liberty torch was lighted in the New York harbor more than one thousand birds rushed out and hurled themselves against it only to drop bruised and broken into the sea. Since that time there is no record of a bird darting out against the flaming torch. They learned the lesson that birds of gay plumage northward never learn.

Someone has recalled how New York bartenders went on strike at appearance of the cash register. Before that a certain percentage of receipts as a "knockdown" was considered legitimate. With cash registers bartenders ceased to wear diamonds.

Every small town in those days had men holding down obscure clerkships who suddenly blossomed out as proprietors of their own stores. It was generally believed the money was miserly hoarded after years of "tapping the till," and probably it was.

There are, it has been estimated, 15,000 lonely bachelors in the boarding houses of the three boroughs. They have their dinners and usually go to their rooms or perhaps break the montony now and then at a neighborhood movie.

HASKIN'S LETTER

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

New Panhellenic Movement.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—An ambitious movement of great importance to women engaged in professional and business occupations, and to younger women in colleges and universities who are fitting themselves for smiliar careers, has been launched in Washington with the second meeting of the Women's National Panhellenic association.

It purpose is to study every phase of the problem of women in the professions and in business, to compile statistical data, to develop new jobs and new activities for women, and to establish a national placement agency that will deal in a practical way with all the angels of the employment question.

The Panhellenic association is composed of sixteen honorary Greek letter societies, all college organizations, that cover twelve fields in which women are engaged—law, medicine, education, home economics, journalism, physical education, music, drama, business, public speaking, chemistry, and fine arts. It was formed in June of last year, largely upon the initiative of Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, assistant attorney general of the United States since 1921.

Dr. Louise Stanley, director of the bureau of home economics of the department of agriculture, became actively interested and was elected the first president of the association. Mrs. Willebrandt was chosen president at the meeting this year. Scores of prominent professional and business women throughout the United States have been enlisted in the movement and have promised to devote time and efforts, and the fruits of their experience, to make it a success.

Back of the movement is the idea that the time is near at hand when practically every woman will have some form of economic activity outside her home life, whatever that may be, and when the girl who is planning her future will no longer debate the question whether she shall go in for a career, or a job, or devote herself to domesticity. This tendency is not destructive of the home, according to the the leaders of the movement, but the home will be adjusted to the new economic order of things.

Eventually, it is contended, a veritable economic revolution may be brought about such that every husband and every wife will work, but they will work shorter hours than prevail in business and the professions at the present time and both will thus have more time for the home, for social activities, for recreation, for study, and the like.

Organized on Three Lines.

The work of the Panhellenic association is being organized on three lines. The first is for the undergraduates—the girls and young women in colleges and universities—and be largely in the nature of vocational guidance, assisting the undergraduate to choose the profession or job which she wants to undertake and to work out the best possible courses of preparation and training.

The second line will consist of research in opportunities for and the status of women in various professions and vocations. Opening up new opportunities and new jobs for women is regarded as especially important in view of the fact that there will be a constantly larger number of women seeking their place in the economic sun.

Something of what is to be accomplished in this direction is illustrated by what has already been done by Theta Sigma Phi, the honorary journalistic society, which was the first of the organizations to undertake anything of the kind, according to the report of Ruby A. Black. Formerly

TORSO MISSING

Bootleggers Blamed for Brutal Crime Two Weeks Ago.

TOLEDO, O., Dec. 10.—Mrs. Flora Folke, of this city, today identified dismembered portions of a body found two weeks ago at Erie, Mich., as that of her son, Fred Steckley, a federal prohibition operative, who was attached to the Detroit office.

Steckley had been working near Monroe, Mich., where several murders recently have been attributed to bootleggers, according to Mrs. Folke.

She made the identification through scars and birthmarks on the limbs and head of the body, the torso of which still is missing.

DAWES SHARES WITH BRITON NOBEL PEACE PRIZE FOR 1925

Streseman and Briand are Given 1926 Awards.

LOCARNO POINT

Tears Well in Eyes of German Statesman's Wife.

STOCKHOLM, Dec. 10.—The Nobel peace prizes for the year 1925 have been awarded to Charles G. Dawes, vice-president of the United States, and Sir Austen Chamberlain, foreign minister for Great Britain, it was announced today.

The awards for 1926 were made to Dr. Gustav Stresemann, foreign minister for Germany, and M. Aristide Briand, foreign minister for France.

The Nobel Institute in announcing the awards stated that Vice-President Dawes was given the prize for his work in rehabilitating Germany.

The prize awarded Sir Austen Chamberlain is understood to be for his services in bringing France and Germany together in conferences which led up to the Locarno pacts.

M. Briand and Herr Streseman were awarded the 1926 prize for their co-operating in effecting the Locarno pact.

BERLIN, Dec. 10.—Tears welled in the eyes of Frau Kaethe Stresemann today when she was informed that her husband had been awarded the 1926 Nobel peace prize.

15,000 Men Given Places in Federal Dry "Army and Navy"

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—The government's prohibition enforcement "army and navy" will consist of approximately 15,000 men for the next fiscal year, according to tactical plans announced today by Gen. Lincoln C. Andrews, the enforcement chief.

In the allocation of forces for the new year, Andrews disclosed that the "army" will consist of approximately 4,727 men, and the "navy" or coast guard, of 9,913 officers and men.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKETS

NEW YORK, Dec. 10.—Industrial and motor stocks moved forward confidently in the early trading today under the leadership of United States steel, which exhibited an unusually firm tone for the period just prior to the publication of its monthly unfilled tonnage report. The low-priced motor shares, led by Hupp, Pierce Arrow and Dodge, sold higher, while the railroad "coalers" were active at Thursday's closing prices, with the exception of Mid-Continent oil stocks moved lower.

Call money renewals were posted at 4½ per cent. Commodity markets were slightly reactionary, with cotton and grain fractionally lower.

Lehigh Valley moved up 2½ to a new high at 138-8, while Atchison was boosted 2½ to 160; Atlantic Coast Line 2, and New York Central 2.

Buying of Mid-Continent oil was based on reports that the directors would soon restore the dividend on the common shares. Specialty stocks were under profit taking. Mercantile stocks continued to give a good account of themselves, with Montgomery Ward in the lead.

Crucible steel spurted to 81; in anticipation of an early announcement regarding an extra cash dividend.

TWO MEN HURT IN AUTO CRASH

Nick Stewart's Car Plunges Over Calcutta Road Embankment.

Nick Stewart, of the Hookstown road, near Chester, treasurer of the Rosenberg Dairy Products company, Wellsville, suffered a laceration to his forehead, while O. O. Allison, Chester, also employed at the same place, received a minor injury to his leg when a sedan driven by Stewart went over an embankment on the Calcutta-East Liverpool road, near the J. A. Bryan resident, at 6:30 o'clock last night.

Stewart was enroute south when he met C. H. Walker, St. Clair avenue, driving another sedan, coming north. Stewart's car skidded on the icy road, crashed into the Walker machine and then plunged over the embankment, overturning on its side.

Miller's ambulance was summoned, and Stewart was removed to the City hospital where he was attended by Dr. Albert J. Michels. He was discharged today. Allison returned to his home.

The McElravy wreck car removed the disabled machine, belonging to the dairy company, to a garage. Two tenders were demolished and the front axle bent.

Now every NEW EDISON is a FULL VOLUME Instrument

THOMAS A. EDISON has given owners of the New Edison all the advantages of his marvelous FULL VOLUME invention for the insignificant cost of a mere accessory. Your New Edison is just as modern as any phonograph; in fact, it is a distinct advancement—two phonographs in one. Living room and ball room volume! Variety, versatility, untiring charm! Your New Edison is twice as entertaining, twice as useful.

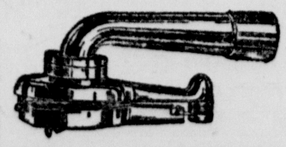

The transformation from modulated Re-Creation to FULL VOLUME is made as easily as changing a record. You're playing a snappy dance number for the bunch. Eager young feet are just "rarin' to go"—but you've found out before that the usual phonograph music hasn't volume enough to drown out the shuffling of feet—then you remember the DANCE ATTACHMENT—it takes just two shakes to slip it on in place of the regular reproducer. Oh boy! Hear that orchestra zipping it up, get that saxophone duet, listen to the traps, and can't that fellow pick a mean banjo?

You actually forget all about the Edison—you've got the orchestra right in your home. Let joy be unconfined. You can't lose this music. That's the combination of Edison tone quality and FULL VOLUME Re-Creation. Just this simple inexpensive attachment transforms your New Edison into a NEW-er music maker.

You can scarce believe it until you hear it. Demonstrations in our store every day. Come in now and hear it.

SOCIETY

Albert J. Manton County Member of Wesleyan Committee

Albert J. Manton, 835 Orchard Grove avenue, has been chosen a member of the "Committee of Eighty-Eight," an organization designed to boost Ohio Wesleyan University in Ohio's 88 counties. Manton is to represent Columbiana county. He is a senior.

According to Hurst R. Anderson, assistant alumni secretary in charge of the plan, the committee will seek to co-ordinate and perfect Ohio Wesleyan's contacts with its alumni. The organization is similar to one which has proved successful at the University of North Carolina.

Manton has been invited to attend a banquet at Delaware tonight when final organization will be effected. Dr. John W. Hoffman, president of the university, and Herman M. Shipps, executive secretary, will speak.

Helen Gould Club Meeting.

The Helen Gould Literary club met last evening at the home of Mrs. Sidney Porter in Newell. Response to roll call was a Christmas poem. Miss Ruth Heddleston gave a Yuletide story, after which Mrs. Aubrey H. Dornan told of "Christmas in Other Lands."

Following the program, gifts were exchanged. Refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. John E. Golding, covers being arranged for 18 guests.

The next meeting of the club will be held January 4, at the home of Mrs. Harry B. Spore, Grant street, Newell.

Gifts for Boys: Boxing Gloves $3.25 to $4.50; Footballs, 95c to $12.00; Basketballs $4.00 to $17.00; Volley Balls $3.50 to $7.00. The Smith News, E. 6th St. Phone 975.

Smith and Thomas Russell.

A three-course luncheon was served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. James Scully.

Special guests were Mesdames Smith and Russell, and Miss Mary Fitzgerald.

The club will meet in two weeks at the home of Mrs. Walter Williams in Vine street.

Entertain at Dinner.

Mr. and Mrs. William Klasgye of the Lincoln Highway entertained a group of friends at a six o'clock dinner Monday evening, honoring Albert Welsbord, of Passaic, N. J. The table was prettily decorated in keeping with the season, covers being arranged for 12 guests. The hostess was assisted in serving by Mrs. Charles Vervin.

Mrs. Raymond Miller rendered vocal selections.

Round, square dancing, Danceland, tonight.

Church Brotherhood Meeting.

The Brotherhood of St. John's Lutheran church was held last evening at the home of Charles Hercules in Erie street. Adolph Stossmeister presided. Dr. J. G. Reinartz conducted the devotionals.

"Character Building" was the topic. C. W. Hellyer gave a short address, after which general discussion took place. The Brotherhood sang "America," "Song of the Brotherhood," and "Star Spangled Banner." Frank Buxton rendered a vocal colo, accompanied by Mrs. Buxton, and piano selections were given by Misses Mildred Hercules and Jean Hassel.

Luncheon was served by Mrs. Hercules, assisted by her daughter, Miss Mildred, Mrs. Frank Buxton and daughter, Miss Sara.

The next meeting will be held January 12, at the home of Walter Stier in Vine street.

Cincinnati Club Entertained.

At the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Hall on Thompson avenue last evening, members of the Cincinnati Five Hundred club were entertained. Four tables of 500 were in play, at the close of which trophies were awarded Mrs. P. E. Ross, Miss Alma Howell, Mrs. John Miller, P. E. Ross, Clarence Graham and A. G. Wynn.

Refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by her sister, Miss Bertha Sharpe and Mrs. Allan Moor.

Special guest was James Heckathorne.

The next meeting will be held in two weeks at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Wynn, Fawcett street.

Hodson's Christmas Cards

AUTO DAMAGE SUITS FILED

Toronto Woman and R. C. Williams Seek $850.

Two suits for damages growing out of automobile accidents have been filed in municipal court.

Mrs. Mary Allen, Toronto, is asking $500 judgment against Edward F. Arnold, 222 West Third street, as the result of a head-on collision on Pennsylvania avenue, near the clay bank stop, on the evening of November 2. Mrs. Allen says that while her husband, Leonard Allen, was driving her Franklin sedan, he was struck by a Maxwell touring car driven by Arnold and traveling in the opposite direction. Cochran & Crawford represent the plaintiff.

The Steubenville, East Liverpool & Beaver Valley Traction company is named in a suit for $350 damages, brought by R. C. Williams, 351 Ogden street, as the result of a crash which occurred on Wells avenue, Wellsville, near Silver switch, on October 21, 1926. Williams claims that he was driving east on the Wellsville-East Liverpool road and his machine was struck by a street car going in the same direction as he attempted to cross the tracks, just west of the switch. Cochran and Crawford also filed this action.

The Iron City Fuel company of Pittsburgh has brought an action to collect $750 from Frank Carson, coal dealer. The money, it is claimed, is due on a note given by Carson on July 20, 1926. Brookes & Thompson are attorneys for the plaintiff.

Donald Johnson, R. F. D. No. 2, Wellsville, has sued Dory C. McIntyre, also of R. F. D. No. 2, Wellsville, for $500 alleged to be due on a note given Nov. 26, 1919. The money, the plaintiff charges, was spent in the purchase of household furnishings. The suit was filed by Attorney Charles Boyd.

Miscellaneous Shower.

Following the regular choir practice in the First Baptist church last evening, Mrs. Brady Rollins, formerly Miss Margaret Hall, was surprised with a miscellaneous shower. Informal social hours were spent with music, after which refreshments were served by Mesdames Ray Thompson, Ruth Strause, W. F. Lones, Ruby Pickard and Miss Ora McElroy. Covers were arranged for 20 guests.

Mrs. Bert Brown Hostess.

Members of the Wood-Bees club were entertained last evening at the home of Mrs. Bert Brown in Commerce street, Wellsville. Two tables of bridge were in play. Trophies were awarded Mrs. Kathryn Smith and Miss Margaret Bell.

Neville Institute Cantata.

A Christmas cantata, "Santa Claus' Advise," will be presented at 7:30 o'clock Monday evening, under the auspices of the Neville institute, in the Odd Fellows' lodge room in Mulberry street.

Symphony Club Date Changed.

The regular meeting of the Symphony club has been changed from Tuesday evening until Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. Floyd Kerr, Virginia avenue, East End, on account of the Civic Music club concert.

Dancing, Eagles Thursday Night!

Eagles' Dancing Party.

An informal dancing party will be held in the Eagles' temple, Broadway, tonight between the hours of 8:30 and 11:30 o'clock. DeMar Miller's orchestra will play.

East End Catholic Club Party.

A card party will be featured at 8 o'clock tonight at the house-warming and reception to be held by the East End Catholic club, Palissey street and Pennsylvania avenue, East End.

L. T. L. Meet Friday.

Dancing, Danceland, tonight. 25c and 50c.

First Results Disappointing.

The first results were disappointing in that no gasoline or petroleum-like liquid was found in the container, but instead an oily mixture, which Fischer called synthol and which contained a number of alcohols, one of them being menthol, or wood alcohol. With alcohols derived from this synthol he found he could drive an automobile, and he claimed the fuel to be superior to gasoline because it did not "knock."

Dr. Fischer continued his experiments and at the recent international conference in Pittsburgh he was able to announce that he had at last succeeded in synthetizing from carbon monoxide and hydrogen practically all the oils, motor fuels, and liquids and solid compounds ordinarily derived from petroleum. Ultimately he expects to succeed in making these petroleum products on a commercial basis. He also makes the interesting prediction that the time will come when gas companies will make gasoline during their dull season in the summertime when there is not the demand for gas that there is during the cold months.

Aside from the efforts that are being made to liquefy coal, numerous chemists and engineers are exnerimenting with low temperature coking processes with the idea of perfecting processes for the utilization of bituminous coal to the maximum degree—extracting all its varied by-products and developing what will be the perfect coal fuel.

This perfect fuel will be better than anthracite, it is predicted, and will be like carbonized cakes of solid heat. It will be black, which will be its chief resemblance to coal. It will be smokeless, and it will be perfectly combustible, leaving no clinkers and little ashes. Being made in uniform sizes, the maximum quantity can be transported or stored in the minimum space.

In making it the principal by-product is coal tar, which is used in making innumerable things, ranging from dyes and medicines to perfumes and explosives, but so much of a ton of coal is turned into the tar that the present market can not absorb it. This means that the so-called perfect manufactured coal fuel can not be commercialized until the present uses of the tar have been greatly extended.

But that this problem will be solved is not doubted by scientists. Possibly a low cost method of "cracking" the tar into motor fuel will be evolved. Perhaps some solution as yet unthought of will be worked out.

OPEN WARFARE OVER SENATE PLACES LOOMS

BRIBERY PROBE

Retaliatory Contests Against Southern Senators.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9.—Two years of open warfare over senatorial election contests appeared inevitable today as a result of the senate's action in ordering an inquiry into bribery charges raised against Senator Arthur R. Gould (R.) of Maine.

Incensed by the action of Democrats in forcing an investigation into the private life of Gould, Republican leaders were said to be planning a series of retaliatory contests against Democratic senators recently elected in southern states. In all these elections, Republican leaders said, but six per cent of the total voting population participated while in two of the states, large expenditures of money were reported in the primaries.

The Gould inquiry meanwhile will be prosecuted without delay. The senate elections committee, ordered to conduct the investigation by a vote of 70 to 7, will meet this afternoon to adopt a program. Indications were that Senator Ernst (R.) of Kentucky, would name a sub-committee to hold public hearings on the charges, at which both Gould and his accusers will be given a chance to speak.

Three Questions to Decide.

The committee will have three questions to decide:

1—Whether Gould was guilty of paying $100,000 a decade ago to J. K. Fleming, former premier of New Brunswick, in return for expected favors to a railroad which the Maine senator then represented.

2—Whether the senate has the power to investigate the previous private life of a member to find grounds on which to deny him a seat in the senate.

3—Whether a criminal act, having no convention with a senatorial election, can constitute sufficient grounds either to exclude a citizen from the senate or to expel him as a senator.

Friends of Gould, drawn principally from the New England group of senators, will contend that Gould is innocent of the charges, but that even though he were guilty, the senate has no right to deny him a seat. They will argue that under the doctrine of state's rights, the election of Gould completely vindicated him as the voters knew of the charges prior to the election.

Those opposing the seating of Gould, however, will argue that an act of bribery cannot be countenanced by the senate even though committed a decade ago.

Snicker doodles

A Tested Recipe by
Winifred S. Carter

½ cup Crisco
1 cup sugar
2 eggs
½ cup seeded raisins
⅛ cup currants
⅛ cup nuts
1 teaspoon soda
1 tablespoon hot water
2½ cups flour
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon clove
½ teaspoon mace
1½ teaspoons cinnamon
¾ cup sour milk

Cream Crisco and sugar together. Add unbeaten egg yolks and mix well. Add raisins, currants and nuts, cut fine. Add soda, dissolved in hot water. Mix and sift flour, salt and spices and add alternately with the sour milk to the first mixture. Fold in one stiffly beaten egg white. (Save other white for frosting.) Pour into well greased muffin pans and bake in a hot oven (375 degrees F.) 15 to 20 minutes.
This recipe makes 18 medium sized cup cakes.

FROSTING

1 egg white
2 tablespoons sweet cream
Confectioners' sugar
¼ teaspoon mace

Add cream to unbeaten egg white and mix well. Add sugar, a little at a time, until frosting is the right consistency to spread. Add mace and mix well.

(All measurements level)

Crisco is by no means limited to cake making. I find that I can always depend on Crisco for flaky pie crusts, fluffy biscuits, dainty desserts and for all frying.

Women's Allure

no longer imperiled under hygienic handicaps—new way offers true protection; discards like tissue

FRESH, charming, immaculate under ALL conditions. Sheer gowns worn without a second's fear, any time, any day!

If you seek this added charm, stop employing old-time "sanitary pads," insecure, uncertain.

Eight in 10 better-class women now employ "KOTEX" . . . a new way, 5 times as absorbent as ordinary cotton pads.

Absorbs and deodorizes at the same time, thus ending ALL danger of offending.

You discard it as easily as a piece of tissue. No laundry. No embarrassment.

You ask for it without hesitancy, at any drug or department store, simply by saying "KOTEX."

In fairness to yourself, try this amazing way. Costs only a few cents. Comes twelve in a package.

NO BOOSTERS' CLUB MEETING

Rutledge Denies Call for Bond Issue Rally.

R. B. Rutledge, president of the Chester Boosters' club, issued a statement today in which he declared that no meeting would be held tonight under the auspices of the club in the Masonic temple for the purpose of discussing the proposed $60,000 school bond issue.

His statement follows: "The Boosters' club has not taken any action either for or against the proposed school bond issue which will be voted on next Tuesday, consequently there will be no meeting this evening."

The proposed meeting which was announced yesterday was to give taxpayers an opportunity to express their opinions on the question.

BOND WINNER IN COURT TEST

Deposed State Auditor is Given Bill of Particulars.

John C. Bond, deposed state auditor, appeared yesterday before Judge H. K. Black in court at Charleston and demanded a bill of particulars of the 54 counts of embezzlement and larceny and got an agreement to furnish the information without a formal court order.

The formal demand for particulars, a 26-page document, was the subject of a lively argument in which Mr. George, prosecutive attorney, Attorney Frank C. Burdette and Assistant Attorney General R. A. Blessing took part. It asked whether the alternate embezzlement and larceny counts in indictment No. 1 referred to drafts or warrants alleged to have been drawn without authority, and if so for the name of the payee, the date and number of each warrant and the indorsements. Mr. George in offering it declared there was no desire to delay trial.

Mr. Burdette pointed out that the indictments itself was drawn under a statute permitting the naming of a series of alleged embezzlements within a period of six months.

Blessing argued that from the governor's hearings on the same charges Mr. Bond had full information of the details. Asked by Judge Black how the court had that information, Mr. Blessing said it was a matter of public knowledge that Mr. Burdette's uggestion that the particulars would be forthcoming if Mr. Bond would make affidavit that he did not have the information resulted in speedy argument whereby the formal demand was withdrawn and the prosecutor promised to furnish the details as to the warrants involved in each count.

"WHAT SHALL I ANSWER WHEN GOD RISES UP?"

Query of O. A. Newlin in Revival Sermon.

Unrepentant Sinners Will Have Nothing to Say.

How unrepentant sinners will have nothing to say to God in the judgment was disclosed in an impressive sermon by Rev. O. A. Newlin, Winona Lake, Ind., evangelist at the First United Presbyterian revival last evening. "To those accepting Him now by confessing Jesus Christ," he said, "the meeting will be mutually joyous."

"Three things are certain to every living person," he said, "and none can be evaded or passed by, death, the judgment and the certainty that one's sins, great and small, will be found out."

In the face of these three facts he held Job's 6,000-years-ago interrogation to himself, a double-barrelled query to be particularly apropos to every one at this time, "What then shall I do when God rises up? And when he visiteth, what shall I answer?"

In no uncertain terms he declared that one would have nothing to reply in this crucial moment. "You will be like Adam after he had sinned with not a thing to say," he pointed out. "Now is the time to do something which will enable you to talk then. If you accept God now through Jesus Christ you then will be enabled to speak. And happily."

Following a song service Director John C. Ussher sang "Seek Ye the Lord" in which the choir finally joined. Miss Adda McLain was the accompanist.

Emphasis was laid on the fact that but five more services of the present campaign remain, Thursday and Friday evening and the final three meetings on Sunday. That of tonight will be known as "Everybody's Night when other churchmen and those not allied anywhere are expected to attend.

"The ice and slush should be about gone by tomorrow evening, asserted Pastor Davison. "So we can stress our invitations to those whom we wish to attend at these remaining gatherings." He announced also a combined meeting of the session and trustees at the conclusion of the prayer service in the Sunday school room which followed the discourse of Rev. Mr. Newlin.

"Though there are said to be 30,000 promises in the Bible, my text is not one of them but a question of man to himself though there are queries of various kinds enumerated in it: king to subject, subject to king, children to parents, parents to children, master to slave and slave to master yet Job put this one to himself.

"So all ask this question to themselves. Those who had their sins nullified by acceptance of God through Christ by way of repentance and the subsequent new birth will find it a pleasure to meet God as obedient children delight to greet their parents. Adam found joy in meeting his Maker until he had sinned, then he dodged and tried to hide from Him. But he was found. He had to meet Him. There was no escape. And he had nothing to say. For he had sinned. So will it be to all meeting the Almighty with their sins unforgiven.

AVOID UGLY PIMPLES

A pimply face will not embarass you much longer if you get a package of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. The skin should begin to clear after you have taken the tablets a few nights.

Cleanse the blood, bowels and liver with Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the successful substitute for calomel; there's no sickness or pain after taking them.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do that which calomel does, and just as effectively, but their action is gentle and safe instead of severe and irritating.

No one who takes Olive Tablets is ever cursed with a "dark brown taste," a bad breath, a dull, listless, "no good" feeling, constipation, torpid liver, bad disposition or pimply face.

Dr. Edwards spent years among patients afflicted with liver and bowel complaints and Olive Tablets are the immensely effective result. Take nightly for a week. See how much better you feel and look. 15c, 30c, 60c.

What Are You Doing For Your Puny Child?

One Boy Gained 11 Pounds in 7 Weeks and Is Now Strong and Healthy.

For weak, frail, under-developed children—and especially those that have rickets, and need a sure builder that promotes the growth of teeth and bones, Cod Liver Oil is the one medicine supreme—nothing helps like it.

But it is nasty and repulsive and evil smelling and nearly always upsets children's stomachs—so now up-to-date chemists advise McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets.

Children love them as they do candy, because they are sugar coated and easy to take. One boy gained 11½ pounds in seven weeks, and is now healthy and happy—thousands of other children have grown strong and robust.

Sixty tablets for 60c at Mathews Med. Store and all druggists—but be sure and insist on McCoy's—the original and genuine.

Give them to the sickly, frail child for 30 days, and if they don't help—wonderfully, your druggist is authorized to hand you back the money you paid for them.

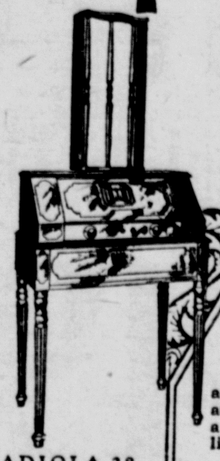

Mexico Tries Fraternizing.

In order to promote a friendly feeling among the Indian boys of the various tribes in Mexico an assembly of representatives of the various tribes is being held frequently by the federal department of education. They will be given special training adapted to their needs and ability during the assemblies but the main idea is to make one tribe acquainted with the other.

Tax on "Personal Liberty."

In the province of Tabasco in Mexico, those who drink or smoke in public must pay a tax for the privilege, the money thus raised being devoted to fighting locusts which are a pest in that district. If a policeman sees a man smoking or showing the effects of liquor, he is privileged to ask him to show his tax receipt.

BIG DOUBLE DEMONSTRATION
GAIN-A-DAY WASHER and WONDER IRONER
BY FACTORY DEMONSTRATORS

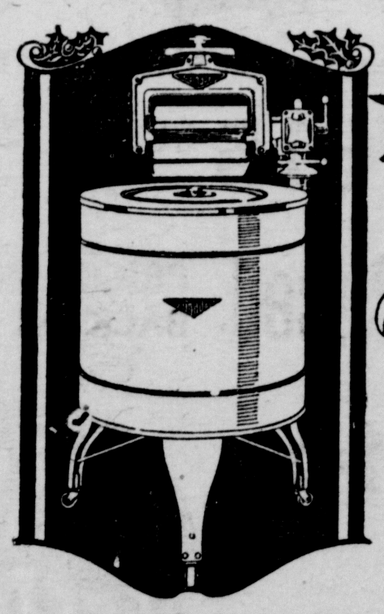

Mr. Keisling, a Factory Representative and Experienced Demonstrator, will be here both Friday and Saturday, Dec. 10 and 11, to demonstrate the Simplicity, Superiority and Dependability of the New Gain-A-Day Washer. At the same time Miss Edith Meyers, also a factory representative and thoroughly experienced demonstrator will be here to show the merits of the new Wonder Automatic Ironer—how you can easily and perfectly iron the most difficult pieces.

We invite you to bring anything you would like to see washed or ironed with you and see how easy wash day can be made. We claim for both the Gain-A-Day Washer and Wonder Ironer to be most practical in construction—Simple in operation—Dependable in service. They take the repulsive, laborious drudgery out of wash day and make it a day of interesting pleasure andsatisfaction by the ease with which dirty, unsightly, obnoxious clothing are quickly transformed into pure, clean, wholesome, smooth, desirable wearing apparel.

We consider ourselves exceptionally fortunate in securing the services of two such capable and efficient factory representatives and being able to bring them both to our store at the same time should prove especially interesting to every one as it affords the opportunity of two demonstrations with only one visit.

We trust you will avail yourself of the information to be obtained from this double demonstration of Gain-A-Day Washer and Wonder Ironer. Ask all the questions you can think of pertaining to the scientific principles of washing and ironing electrical devices.

Everybody welcome. Remember the time—Tomorrow and Saturday, Dec. 10 and 11.

Two Scrimmage Sessions at "Y" Gym Last Night Provide Plenty of Action; More Work Scheduled Today and Tomorrow.

TWO squads of prospective Columbiana County Amateur Basketball league performers went through the paces last night at the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium under the watchful eye of Coach William Powell, director of the quint that will wear the colors of the East Liverpool Elks in the cage race that is scheduled to start next week.

Enough material for two full squads with a few left over reported last night for workout and as many were present the night before.

"Bus" Crawford and Smith Anderson, two other members of the outfit, were unable to report for last night's workout.

Clark, Wain, Wilson and McDevitt were used at forwards, with Canne and Howard at the pivot posts. McConville, Hamilton, Reese, Hogue and Salsbury performed at the guards.

No signals were used and no effort was made to carry out any predesignated mode of performance. The present workouts, according to Powell, will serve to work out the stiffness, improve "wind," and give the "shots" an opportunity to limber up their wrists and arms for future marksmanship.

The squad will drill again at noon today, it was planned, with another session tomorrow afternoon.

INSIDE Ggolf

By CHESTER HORTON, Maker of 51 Golf Champions. "Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans.

The second reason you bring your right hand up to the left in the grip is because it puts the hands together, so they work as one, and to make sure of this you should plainly feel the palm of the right hand pressing against the thumb of your left hand. If the right palm falls away from the left thumb, when the grip is taken, the position of your right hand is wrong—it is loose, and the right hand and wrist are pointing away from the shaft. With your right hand thus brought up, you will find it at the top of the back swing, directly under the shaft, where it should be. It then comes down to the ball underneath the shaft, and hits just as the clubhead goes through, as it should. If the right arm is out at the top, it will shove outward in the down swing, taking possession of the action, and will force the clubhead away outside the line, from where it comes in and across the ball for a slice.

RIGHT HAND UNDER SHAFT AT TOP.

"Huddle" Invades Court Game

Seven Conference Contests Dated on Wooster Grid Card

WOOSTER, Dec. 10.—The 1927 football schedule for the Wooster college team calls for seven Ohio conference games and the usual opener with Ashland at Wooster on October 1.

For the first time in many years Wooster and Denison will not meet. It was impossible for the two teams to arrange a satisfactory date. It is hoped that the two schools will play again in 1928. Heidelberg at Tiffin replaces Denison.

The schedule calls for Case, Mount Union and Oberlin for the home games and Reserves at Cleveland, Ohio Wesleyan at Delaware and Akron at Akron for the other out of town games.

Wooster's schedule:
October 1. Ashland at Wooster.
October 8. Mt. Union at Wooster.
October 15. Heidelberg at Tiffin.
October 22. Case at Wooster.
October 29. Ohio Wesleyan at Delaware.
November 5. Reserve at Cleveland.
November 12. Oberlin at Wooster.
November 19. Akron at Akron.

SPORTS DONE BROWN

THE post season argument as to which grid eleven was the outstanding one—the national champion—of the campaign of 1926 is now on in full blast. Name you own candidate.

I offer, however, seven teams for consideration.

Quite obviously a team must be scored upon to be defeated. The seven toughest elevens in the country to score against were:

Alabama.
U. of Pennsylvania.
Northwestern.
Carnegie Tech.
New York University.
Notre Dame.
Lafayette.

And at the same time these teams ran up scores against the opposition which warranted the victories they scored against their opponents.

Alabama University, playing a majority of the powerful elevens of the south, if not all, scored 212 points while permitting its opponents to score just 20. A total of three touchdowns was registered against the Tuscaloosa team. Vanderbilt, Mississippi A. and M. and Georgia each crossed the goal line once. Eewanee was the only opponent to prevent the Alabama team from registering a touchdown or more.

Pennsylvania permitted its opponents just the same number of points—20—while piling up 204. John Hopkins score one touchdown against the Penn team and Cornell one. Illinois and Cornell booted field goals. Two touchdowns permitted in a single season is a proud achievement for any team.

Northwestern permitted its opponents to score three touchdowns and a total of 22 points. Notre Dame, Chicago and Iowa each crossed the goal line once. Carlton scored a field goal. Meanwhile Coach Thistlethwaite's team piled up 178 points against its rivals, which included Notre Dame, Purdue, Chicago and Iowa.

Carnegie Tech had been overlooked, perhaps, until it pounced on Notre Dame but the Steffen's men permitted but 23 points to be tallied against them all season. W. and J. whipped them 17 to 6 early in the season and New York U. has nosed out a victory 6 to 0. The Tech team, over the entire campaign, scored 187 points.

New York University, plowing through the season without a defeat until nicked by Nebraska, permitted its rivals to tally just 25 points while scoring 172. Chick Meehan's team held scoreless Carnegie Tech—the team which later scored 19 points against Notre Dame. Nebraska scored 15 of the 25 points. Fordham and West Virginia Wesleyan tallied the rest.

Fight Results

ORMISTON, WANTED IN AIMEE M'PHERSON CASE, FOUND

NEWSPAPERMAN TRAILS HIM TO HARRISBURG, PA.

DENIES HIDING

Admits Identity, But Will Fight Return to California.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Dec. 9.—Kenneth Ormiston, arrested here by Chicago Detectives Charles Bonnelly and Harry Ellwood, in connection with the Aimee McPherson case in Los Angeles, left here today for Los Angeles, having waived extradition.

Donnelly and Ellwood arrived here from Chicago last night to make the arrest, Ellwood having been on the trail of Ormiston for some time, it was said.

When arrested in the apartment which he has occupied in Harrisburg, Ormiston ,who was using the name of "Fred Lininger," immediately admitted his identity. He told police that he had been making his living by writing and soliciting subscriptions for radio magazines.

Plans "Last Ditch" Fight.

CHICAGO, Dec. 9.—Kenneth Ormiston will make a "last ditch" fight in Chicago against extradition to Los Angeles, Edward H. S. Martin, his attorney, announced today.

Disagreeing with reports that Ormiston planned to return voluntarily to Los Angles from Harrisburg, Pa., Martin said he was coming of his own volition to Chicago where the legal battle would begin.

CHICAGO, Dec. 9.—Kenneth G. Ormiston, fugitive radio operator wanted in Los Angeles in connection with the Aimee Semple McPherson case, has been located in Harrisburg, Pa., according to a copyrighted story appearing in the Chicago Herald-Examiner today.

Ormiston was found last night living in a two-story apartment fronting on the Susquehanna river. He resided there under the name of "Fred Lininger."

When the Herald-Examiner reporter, accompanied by two Chicago detectives, walked in on Ormiston, he smiled and quietly admitted his identity.

"Yes, I am Ormiston," he said, "but this is only the beginning. There will be a long, hard fight before I go back to California. Also I feel that District Attorney Asa Keyes is not very anxious to have me go back for trial."

The former Angelus Temple radio announcer is under indictment in California charged with subornation of perjury and conspiracy to defeat justice.

Amazes "Uninvited Guests."

Ormiston amazed his "uninvited guests" when he explained how he has made a living since he fled from California. He stated he has been writing articles for radio magazines and that recently he sold an article which is soon to appear under his own name in a magazine having nation-wide circulation.

Ormiston declined to discuss any of the thousands of stories which have linked his name with that of Aimee McPherson. But he was quite willing, according to the reporter, to talk about anything and everything else.

When the reporter, having traced him for several months, knocked last night on the door of the Front street flat, it was Ormiston who opened. He made no attempt at deception when he was addressed as "Mr. Ormiston."

"Come in," he said.

Sergeant Carson of the Harrisburg force was called to Ormiston's flat as soon as his identity was established.

Writes for Living.

Ormiston sat on the edge of a folding bed, and in front of him on an infirm table stood his typewriter with a sheet of manuscript in it.

"I have to write for a living," he explained.

Then he said:

"Would you gentlemen mind showing me your credentials, so I may know whom I am talking to?"

He glanced at the cards and said he was satisfied.

"There are some few things I shall not care to discuss with you," he went on, "but on other subjects I shall be glad to give you whatever information I can."

Ormiston willingly put on his hat and overcoat and went out with the reporter and the officer as their "guest."

"I really can't understand," he said, "why it has taken so long for you people to find me—or rather for somebody to find me, considering the great number who have been trying. For the fact is that I have made no particular effort to hide."

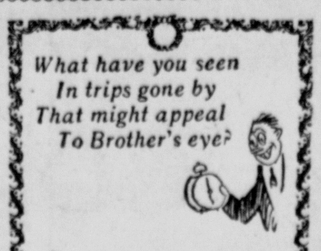

Aimee Not Concerned.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 9. — Aimee Semple McPherson attaches "no significance whatsoever" to the fact that Kenneth G. Ormiston has been found in Harrisburg, Pa.

She so declared herself here today when informed the former radio operator of her Angelus temple had been located.

"I am not in the least concerned about or interested in Mr. Ormiston's whereabouts," the famous evangelist said.

Mrs. McPherson added she was too busy with the Christmas program of her temple to be bothered about "matters that did not concern her in the least."

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKETS

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—Short covering and speculative buying of the high-priced industrial and specialties accounted for the moderate rally during early trading on the stock exchange today. A few of the railroad shares, principally the stocks of the "coal roads" participated more actively in the transactions in this period. Lehigh Valley topped its best previous price record at 98, and Reading sold a point higher.

During the year, 150,522,000 gallons of cereal beverage was produced, the industry centering in New York, which accounted for 43,000,000 gallons, Chicago, 17,000,000 gallons, and Pittsburgh 10,000,000 gallons.

Six prohibition agents were killed and 50 injured in performance of duty in the 1925-1926 year.

Blair's report showed that 72,723 persons were arrested by federal agents or on federal information and that the treasury collected $5,231,130 as the result of enforcement operations.

More than $5,388,000 worth of property was destroyed by dry agents. Seizures included 12,227 distilleries, 130,000 fermenters, 1,247,000 gallons of distilled spirits, 14,220,000 gallons of malt liquor, 193,000 gallons of cider, 5,935 automobiles and 187 boats and launches.

DOHENY'S WIFE AND SON TAKE WITNESS STAND

E. L. Doheny, Jr., Carried $100,000 Cash for Fall.

Waiving all immunity, Mrs. Doheny told of her part in the $100,000 loan made by Doheny to Fall, which the government contends constituted a bribe.

Fall gave a demand note for the money, she declared. The note was torn in half and her husband gave her the part containing the signature. This was done, she said, so that Fall would not be pressed for the money in event that anything happened to her or to her husband.

Tells About Loan.

"Did you know about the loan to Mr. Fall?" asked Frank J. Hogan, chief defense counsel.

"Yes."

"Who told you?"

"My husband. He said Secretary Fall needed it to buy a ranch, and I said I would be glad to let him have it."

"Did you know about the physical details of the loan?"

"No, but when, on November 30, I suggested we have Ned (her son) in for dinner, my husband said 'Ned has gone to Washington. I've made the loan.'"

"Did you see the note for this loan?"

"Yes, when Ned came back."

"When it was in its entirety?"

"Yes."

"Were you present when it was torn?"

"Yes."

"Will you state why it was torn?"

"We were getting ready to leave for California. My husband was looking at the note. Suddenly he said: 'If anything should happen to me and this note were found in my wallet, the executors would press immediately for payment, and Mr. Fall would be worse off than ever. I shall tear off the signature and give it to you and keep the body myself. Then, if anything should happen, you will know and Mr. Fall will not be embarrassed.'"

"Did you keep the signature?"

"Yes."

"Where?"

"In a deposit box in the Security Trust and Savings bank of Los Angeles."

Police Raid Hotel

o'clock when Chief of Police McDermott, Captain Conley, Patrolmen Roth, Smith, Lister, Haley and McFarland and Special Officer Curran, met at city hall and were given search warrants.

Chief McDermott went to the Diamond pool room, Captain Conley to the Unique and Academy pool rooms, Patrolman Lister to the American, Patrolman Haley to the National pool room, Patrolman McFarland to the Liberty, Patrolman Roth to the Madison pool room in East End, Patrolman Smith to the Kane establishment and Special officer Curran to the Patterson place.

100 Punch Boards Seized.

Nearly 100 punch boards were confiscated, many never having been used. Two boards known as "The California Gold Mine," in which cash prizes of $20, $10 and $5 were offered, were seized in two places. Other punch boards offered candy and other merchandise. Police seized no merchandise.

According to Chief McDermott, the punch boards were placed in the establishments about two weeks ago by a salesman for a Chicago house, who promised "big returns." Each board, the chief said, explained where the lucky numbers were located on the board and these numbers which called for cash prizes of $20, $10 and $5 could be removed before the boards were placed on sale. On a 5,000-hole card, the dealer collected $500 and paid out $170, making a profit of about $330. By using the secret key the dealer, police say, could punch out several of the large prize winning numbers before placing it on the counter.

Another Liquor Charge.

The seven men nabbed in the raid pleaded guilty to the gambling charges when they were given their hearings this morning and paid fines totalling $400. Canady also paid his fine on the liquor charge.

One other alleged liquor violator was arrested early this morning when Harry Martin was taken into custody by Patrolman McFarland near the high school building. Three half pints of whisky were found in his possession police say. He pleaded guilty when he faced Judge Hanley and was fined $100 and costs.

Today's police court session netted more than $700. Besides those apprehended in the raids, several others held on charges of being drunk and disorderly drew the customary fine of $10 and costs.

POTTERS FACE FOREIGN FIGHT

European Competition Serious Problem, Says Burgess.

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—(Special to the Review-Tribune).—The American ceramic industry faces serious competition from European pottery manufacturers, William Burgess, Trenton, first vice president of the United States Potters association, reported at the opening session of the annual convention at the Waldorf-Astoria hotel here yesterday afternoon.

Burgess has been making an intensive study of the tariff situation as it affects American general ware manufacturers. Greater attention will be given to the question during the coming year than ever before, manufacturers decided.

Thomas Anderson, Coshocton, was elected president of the association at the closing session; Joseph M. Wells, second vice president, and Charles F. Goodwin, East Liverpool, secretary-treasurer.

It was explained yesterday that of the nearly 600 kilns represented in the association, 150 are now engaged in the production of an ivory body, and that more are to go into this line. This will include the National China company, Salineville, Ohio, and the Dresden Pottery company, East Liverpool, Ohio.

The W. S. George Pottery company began the production of an ivory body at the No. 4 plant at East Palestine this week.

Rescue Cars Ordered.

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 9.—An explosion rocked the No. 2 mine of the Francisco Coal company near Princeton, Ind., early today, while 50 to 60 men were at work there, according to word received at the U. S. Bureau of Mines here.

Rescue cars were ordered to the scene by the bureau at once.

General Ware Industry

a further reason in that the net reduction in wages in the last five-year period was not in reasonable ratio to the larger decrease in the cost of commodities over the same years. There were still other sound arguments that need not be recited here that seemed to justify a demand for downward revision. Nevertheless, the committee decided against filing such a demand, largely for the reason that many of the operatives were working on short time, their earnings were curtailed correspondingly, and any reduction in the wage scale would constitute a further hardship, which the committee was unwilling to sanction.

"The conclusions of the committee were submitted to a general meeting of the association held at our headquarters in East Liverpool on July 28. The recommendation that we yield nothing and ask nothing excepting the renewal of the existing scale was unanimously approved, and the usual motion was passed conferring full power upon the committee to negotiate a new agreement.

"The resulting conference with the Brotherhood representatives was convened at the Chalfonte hotel, Atlantic City, on August 11. The sessions extended over three days, during which the 31 members of the Brotherhood committee were given the opportunity to present at considerable length their arguments in support of all of their propositions, and of some extraneous things. They were informed in the beginning that nothing would be granted involving a wage concession, but, since they were delegated by the locals to present their claims, they were entitled to their day in court, and got it. Their arguments were presented in a dignified and courteous manner. It must be said they made the most of a hopeless case. The outcome was a decision without a dissenting vote to renew the 1924 agreement for a period of two years following October 1, 1926, with the usual provision for a re-opening in the event of pronounced changes in labor, living or market conditions.

New Edition of Wage Scale.

"A few resolutions were adopted for the appointment of sundry joint committees, etc., all of which are embodied in the copy of the 1926 agreement.

"The last edition of the vage scale was published in September, 1920. It was decided in conference to publish a new edition that will be up to date, including all the changes in and additions to the agreement that have been enumerated in the supplements for the last six years. This revised edition should be in your hands within a few weeks. The supplement nuisance being eliminated will be good news.

"The tabulation of the results of the study of our industry made by the United States bureau of labor statistics during the summer and early fall of 1925 was published in July of this year as Bulletin 412 of the Department of Labor. It covers 164 pages, and is entitled "Wages, Hours and Productivity in the Pottery Industry." Copies of the bulletin, presumably, have been mailed to all the firms that were examined. Additional copies may be obtained upon request.

"The immediate value to the industry of this publication may not be apparent, but it is very much worth while as pegging at this point by an authoritative, governmental department the status of wages and working methods and conditions in the industry. The Sheridan survey of wages, conditions and earnings for the year 1912 and 1913 did not add much to our knowledge of conditions prevailing at that time, but the publication covering the results of that survey is now become an historical document of real value pegging conditions as they stood when that survey was made. Our association does not possess records readily available that so clearly reflect the difference in wages and labor conditions between 1913 and

NAME DR. HOBBS KIWANIS CHIEF

Rev. O. A. Newlin Speaker at Noon Luncheon.

Dr. W. A. Hobbs, physician, was elected president of the Kiwanis club for 1927 at the annual election of officers at today's noon luncheon meeting in Larkins Annex, Market street. He will succeed Clarence C. Cline.

Charles W. Hendershot, real estate and insurance agent, was named first vice-president, while John Newell, Chester, was the club's selection for second vice president. C. C. Ashbaugh was chosen treasurer and Clarence Cline, trustee. The board of directors includes: Joseph Finley, Harry Hoffman, Harry Keys, Charles T. Larkins, Frank Swaney, Cyril Taylor and Russell C. Heddleston. The latter is a life director.

The speaker was Rev. O. A. Newlin, of Winona Lake, Ind., who is conducting a series of revival meetings at the First United Presbyterian church. He was introduced by James Anderson.

"Men must practice team work if they are going to accomplish anything," said the evangelist. If you wanted to write a history about the United States during the past 25 or 40 years you could write it around a group of approximately 25 men who have been the nation's leaders. In any community you will find a group of about 25 leaders who do the thinking and the rest follow their example.

"We are moving so fast that no one can tell what we are coming to during the next 10 years. If we look back over developments during the last decade you can readily see great things are to happen in the future. You men are in the center of a great industry and should be on the alert for the opportunity which may bring your city or community into renown over-night."

HONOR SEVEN LEGIONNAIRES

E. Liverpool Men Get County Voiture Offices.

Several East Liverpool legionnaires were honored with official positions in the Columbiana County Voiture No. 273, La Societe des 40 Hommes et 8 Chevaux, at a meeting held in the Salem American Legion home last night.

Myron Griffith, Greenford, was elected chef de gare of the order; William J. Glass, East Liverpool; chef de train; S. J. Adams, Wellsville, correspondent locale, and W, S. Foulks, East Liverpool, commissaire intendent. Other officers are:

Cecil Pearce, East Liverpool, conductor; Paul Heckert, Salem, guard de la porte; John Litty, Gus Seckler and Alex Chalfant, Salem, guard de la prisoners; J. V. Householder, P. T. Blankenship and H. J. Kaufman, members of the executive committee.

East Liverpool was selected over East Palestine as the place for the January meeting at which officers will be installed. Lunch was served by a committee of the Salem members.

Ex-service men from East Liverpool, Lisbon, Leetonia, Wellsville and East Palestine attended the session.

Physicians Say it May be Necessary to Perform Third Operation on Ferdinand.

BUCHAREST, Dec. 9.—King Ferdinand's condition has taken a more serious turn.

Physicians stated today that it may be necessary to perform a third operation on the king. Dr. Hartmann, who had planned to leave for Paris after the second operation yesterday, has deferred his departure.

The king does not realize how serious his condition is, but members of his family have been advised that he may take a critical turn at any moment.

A bulleting issued at noon stated: "His majesty is beginning to feed more abundantly. His temperature is 97 1-2 and his pulse 64. His general condition is satisfactory."

Dr. Hartmann announced he would return to Paris tomorrow if there are no new complications.

Five Months to Live.

The official communiques continue optimistic but it is learned that the death of the king would not surprise his physicians, who give him five months as the outside limit of his life.

The second operation which was performed yesterday will make the king a permanent invalid, it is stated, and has seriously taxed his heart.

A diseased liver and other complications are giving the physicians considerable worry, and it is stated that it will take at least three days for the crisis to pass and at least another week to determine the permanent results of the operation.

The government is prepared for any eventuality.

Queen Marie has made up her differences with teh government and is expected to play an important part in any government that may follow the death of the king.

In the event of the death of the king it is reported that Queen Marie will either become queen regent or will replace Prince Nicholas in the regency council for Prince Michael, which is now provided.

The government is so soundly entrenched that there is but slight chance of any disturbances, if the king dies, and the chances of Prince Carol returning are nil.

Miss Allison's Ring Is Found Thru Ad In Review-Tribune

Miss Alvera Allison, 1057 Pennsylvania avenue, is a firm believer that Review-Tribune classified ads bring results.

Miss Allison lost a diamond ring between the Union clothing store and the Buffalo confectionery. She inserted an ad in Tuesday night's paper, and a few minutes after the edition was on the streets, received a telephone call from Mrs. H. Benty, 752 St. Clair avenue, stating that she had found the ring.

GEORGIA HOLDS LAD BELIEVED ERDMAN OLSON

Await Definite Word in Wisconsin Murder Inquiry.

PHOTOS MAILED

ALMA, Ga., Dec. 9.—The youth arrested here on suspicion that he may be Erdman Olson, wanted in Prairie du Chien for the murder of Clara Olson, will be held until definite word is received from Wisconsin authorities, Sheriff Walter Johnson said today.

Johnson has sent photographs of the youth who gives the name of John Pittman to Prairie du Chien, and he is awaiting further instructions. Pending these the youth will be held on a blanket charge.

The Olson suspect declared he is a native of Baltimore and worked for a time in a Miami, Fla., restaurant. He was arrested on a farm near here. Pittman denies ever having been in Wisconsin.

GRAND JURORS MEET JAN. 3

Panel for Petit Veniremen is Also Drawn.

The January term of common pleas court will open at Lisbon on Monday, January 3, when the biggest docket ever known in Columbiana county will be up for disposal. On Tuesday the names of 40 persons were drawn from the jury wheel by Sheriff George Wright and Clerk Frank Ballantine to serve on the grand and petit juries.

For some years it has been the custom in the court here for the grand jury members to begin their work on the opening day of court, but the members of the petit jury began their work the beginning of the second week, the opening week being devoted to the hearing of motions and demurrers by the trial judge. Owing to the enormous docket Judge W. F. Lones will open the term with the petit jury on the job.

Those drawn to serve on the grand and petit juries are: Grand Jury—E. G. Votaw, Cora McClain, A. W. Stiver, Salem; Charles Fuhrman, Columbiana; Gus Alexander, Ftlix J. Savage, Ralph T. Couch, Ann McNicol, Minnie Trotter, T. E. Lewis, East Liverpool; Stewart Patterson, H. S. Burnett, Eva Moore, Lisbon; Jacob J. Koch, Eva May Rupert, New Waterford.

Petit jury—George Goppert, Lloyd S. Gilmore, Bertha M. Cheeks, Harry J. Price, Orlando H. Steele, Robert Corns, Clinton C. Cline, John C. Carnahan, Joseph Betz, Robert Cartwright, East Liverpool; R. M. Wilson, Negley; Walter Abrams, Elkton; Luella Garrand, Morris Brinker, Columbiana; Charles H. Adams, New Waterford; W. F. Heastand, North Georgetown; John Mundy, N. J. Earl, Dora Hunter, Salineville; W. E. McIntosh, Wellsville; Mrs Ida Bedell, Anna Tucker, Ruby Donahey, Salem; H. J. Fraser, East Palestine; C. J. Halverstadt, Leetonia.

SALARIES OF DRY AGENTS REDUCED

Prohibition agents in the West Virginia district will suffer a reduction in wages. John D. Pennington, newly appointed commissioner of the West Virginia district, has notified several of his agents throughout the state of the reduction, which is not being met with much favor. Under the new ruling, agents will receive no less than an average of $50 a week, which, according to statements of several is not sufficient.

Complaints protesting against the drastic economical measures being taken by the new chief will be filed with H. N. Bradley, in charge of J. Walter Bee and Joseph J. Doerr, who come under the ax of the new administration.

Mr. Bradley is at present in Keyser, in conference with District Attorney Arthur Arnold. He will go to Pittsburgh to confer with J. D. Pennington before returning to Wheeling the last part of the week.

Special Offer To Victims of Chronic Indigestion

You can be so distressed with gas and fullness that you think your heart is going to stop beating.

Your stomach may be so distended that your breathing is short and gaspy.

You are dizzy and pray for quick relief—what's to be done.

Just one tablespoonful of Dare's Mentha Pepsin and in ten minutes the gas disappears, the pressing on the heart ceases and you can breathe deep and naturally.

Oh! What blessed relief; but why not get rid of such attacks altogether? Why have chronic indigestion at all?

Especially when Jesse D. Holloway or any druggist anywhere guarantees Dare's Mentha Pepsin, a pleasant elixir, to end indigestion, acute or chronic or money back.

No More Piles

Thousands Bless Dr. Leonhardt, the Physician Who Discovered This Common Sense Remedy

If you think that the surgeon's knife is the only method of escape from the misery of piles, it's because you have not heard of the new treatment known as Dr. Leonhardt's HEM-ROID.

This Doctor's treatment is internal. By experimenting for years he discovered the exact cause of piles and then went further and compounded a remedy that would remove the cause.

Dr. Leonhardt wants every sufferer to benefit by his discovery and so that there will be no doubting or delay, C. G. Anderson and all druggists are authorized to sell HEM-ROID with guarantee that it will do as stated or money back.

On that honorable basis every sufferer should secure a package of Dr. Leonhardt's HEM-ROID today.

The ENTERTAINING ANGEL

By SAMUEL MERWIN — Copy by Samuel Merwin Released Through Central Press Assn

SYNOPSIS.

Julian Reed is wandering southern California in his little roadster. At luncheon in a small restaurant he meets, by chance, a charming, rather wistful young woman. She has missed connections with a troupe of vagabonding actors and he offers to drive her to the troupe's next stopping place, La Jolla. She accepts his offer. Julian meets Watt, the chief of the "Wayside Theatre"; Sadie, an ex-chorus girl, and the rest. Julian comes to the rescue of the troupe financially. Sadie is attracted to him. She tells him how Hester risked everything to try for the leading role in a movie of a play written by "Robert Johns," failed and joined the troupe as a last resort. Julian falls in love with Hester but when she learns of his financial help to Watt, is angry and will have nothing to do with him. Watt offers him a half interest in the enterprise for $4,000 and he accepts. Then he goes to Hollywood. While there he buys a snappy roadster and new clothes. In the meantime Watt gives a dinner to the troupe, introducing a new member, a college boy, Joe Maybury. He, too, loves Hester. She knows he is much younger than she but to her he is the symbol of youth and his love helps restore her faith in herself. The other members of the troupe understand and pity her. Hester and Joe ride together on the back of one of the trucks all the way in to San Diego. Julian awaits the troupe there. At last they come and he is warmly greeted by al but Hester and Joe. At last he sees Hester but she barely nods to him and when he approaches her she walks away. He has brought her a beautiful bracelet, but when she snubs him he tries to give it to a passing sailor for his girl, and failing that he thrusts it upon Sadie.

Because of his clumsiness in helping with the scenery Joe names Julian "Marceline" after an old clown who tries to help but is in everyone's way. Unintentionally at first he calls Julian Marceline to his face which angers him very much. Sadie suggests that Julian "fire" Joe.

Julian decides that he can't do that.

Julian has a talk with Hester, telling her he considers her wonderful. She doesn't know how to answer him and wishes he'd go.

Jim Wilde, stage manager, tells Julian that Lester, the young leading man, is leaving the troupe and that Hester and Watt think Joe may be trained to fill his place. It is decided that he will be given the chance and Julian and Jim go to find Hester and Joe in Julian's car.

CHAPTER TWENTY-ONE.

Sadie looked after them with eager curiosity, as they drove away.

"What I've been thinking"—thus spoke Jim, as the car sped down the road — "is that the whole program hangs on controlling Murry, somehow. His vanity makes it pretty difficult. But now you . . ."

". . . . . you could do it."

"I don't quite . . . ."

He watched Julian in some anxiety, while that elusive and prodigal young man was brining himself up to the point of speech.

"I'm absolutely no good at business."

"What we need, of course, is a business manager with a little real authority. I'm not sure that Murry mightn't put up with it, at that, if we played him up harder in the billing. He'd love a little real publicity. And in the end he wouldn't mind making a little money. If we could only get control out of his hands and flatter his vanity at the same time! You know . . . . . kick him upstairs. As things stand now, every one of our problems leads straight back to him. We'll never succeed while he runs the troupe. Never!"

"I don't care about the four thousand," said Julian. His brows were knit. Jim hadn't before seen this look of rather puzzled determination on that sensitive, unaccountable face; and didn't know now that it found its origin in a wish on Julian's part to compel himself to face the facts. Jim was practical, and knew little of the struggle, in an imaginative personality like Julian's, between dream and actuality. . . . "No, I don't care about that. You know what I mean. . . . I'd just as soon let the four thousand go."

"Oh, yes!" He seemed really eager about it. "I mean, I wouldn't want Mr. Watt's wasting it to eat into the profit-sharing part of it for all you folks. No, it wouldn't be right to insist on your paying it back. But I supose we would have to stop somewhere."

Jim was still staring. Was this fellow made of money? . . . . He grunted. "Him! Try stopping Murry just once! Try it! He's a madman. There's just one way . . . . Throw him down and sit on him."

The two, Hester and Joe, stood far down the beach, just above the curving line of flotsam left by the surf. Their mouths moved, but no sound reached the two men on the rocks. Hester made an animated little figure, barely half the size of the youth before her. She danced about like a sprite, all gayety. Then, in a sudden timidity, after an engaging little curtesy, she extended one hand toward Joe. He caught it ardently. She pushed him away, correcting him. It was the final scene of "Better to Have Loved and Won." Again he tok the shyly extended hand, with something of the stiff British dignity demanded by the role. Then, with what appeared to be a burst of merry laughter, he drew her to him and bent over as if to kiss her.

But Hester slipped away and ran along the beach. He pursued. She dodged and ran back. She was almost as swift as he, and much quicker. She twisted and turned, running and dodging like a frightened fox. But finally he caught her, swung her around, picek her up in his arms and kissed her. Then he ran a little way along the surf stopped, and made as if to throw her into the spume of an inrushing wave. Julian faintly heard a scream. He saw Joe kissing her again. Her little arms were tightly clasped about the boy's neck.

He felt Jim's eye on him now, but could only stand rigidly, whitely there.

"I'll go for them," said Jim.

Julian found his voice. "I'll wait in the car," he said, and walked swiftly back. Hester hadn't seen him.

He turned the car about. He couldn't bring himself to watch them, as they approached over the rocks. His nerves were a jingle, but a wholly new clear thought was finding a place in his imagination. There had been something curiously primitive in that little scene . . . . the woman fleeing, yet wildly eager to be caught, eager to be kissed, eager even to scream.

How to Get Rid of Rheumatic Pain

NO MATTER how long you have suffered, or how severe the pain, you can get rid of the agony without dosing, and without taking powerful drugs into your system. The great penetrating power of Mustang Liniment is nothing short of marvelous and wherever used, nothing has been found to take its place. No smarting or burning, yet the pain goes in a jiffy, and sore, stiff muscles become limber and flexible. Your druggist will supply you with Mustang Liniment—start using it today.

RHEUMATISM!

What is it—anyway?

THAT awful agony of swollen joints and inflamed muscles—that miserable pain and torturous suffering, we call rheumatism—what is it?

Here's what it is: It is the result of waste products and impurities in the blood! Impurities that get the upper hand because the system is starving for want of healthy, rich, red blood!

But you just cleanse your blood and build up the red-blood-cells and watch the rheumatism vanish! Why, S. S. S. will aid Nature put so many millions of red-blood-cells in your system that the impurities that cause your rheumatism are driven out—they can't stand pure, healthy blood.

S. S. S. conquers rheumatism! The rich, red, fighting blood that S. S. S. helps Nature build brings ease and comfort to every sore, swollen tissue in your body.

And this great S. S. S. goes right on helping Nature build more and more red cells until your whole body is tingling with life and vibrating with vim, vigor and vitality. You feel like yourself again.

S.S.S.

Get S. S. S. right now—build up your blood to where it is pure, red and healthy. S. S. S. is the sure way.

SCHOOL BOND MEET CALLED

Boosters' Club Plans Taxpayers' Rally Friday.

Proposed bond issue of $60,000 for the improvement of three school buildings in Chester, to be voted on at a special election next Tuesday, will be discussed at an open meeting tomorrow night under the auspices of the Boosters' club in the Masonic temple, First street.

Officials of the club today issued an invitation to all taxpayers in the city to attend the meeting which will be held at 7:30 o'clock.

R. B. Rutledge will preside.

WATER SYSTEM IS COMPLETED

The new $45,000 water system has been completed by the Pittsburgh-Des Moines Steel and Piping company, and was accepted by the members of the Holliday's Cove city council at a special meeting held in the city building.

With the completion of the water system, Holliday's Cove is now given first-class water protection in case of fires, and individuals are likewise afforded the opportunity of securing running water in their homes. The contract, which was let in late September to the Pittsburgh-Des Moines Steel company, was for the construction of pipe lines 4-6-8 inch, equivalent to five miles of piping. The water supply will be purchased from the Weirton Steel company, whose filtered water supply now is furnishing Weirton township.

The supply of water which in the future will be available for use in Holliday's Cove will equal that of any city in the Ohio valley. Between 105 and 110 pounds pressure will be available for use at all times.

With the completion of the water supply, a need in Holliday's Cove for many years, the building program for this progressive community is expected to increase rapidly. The building program has been hindered considerably in the past by lack of fire protection, which is now available. Citizens have expressed satisfaction in the construction of the new water system, which was in use for the first time on Tuesday, December 7.

WOOL PRODUCTION TO BE INCREASED

A campaign to stock West Virginia farms with 3,000,000 sheep is under way by the Wool Growers' association in co-operation with the Eastern Wool Growers' federation.

Increasing the sheep production will insure an annual revenue of $30,000,000, association officers say. Present wool production from the 600,000 head of sheep now in West Virginia brings approximately $6,000,000 into the state.

The aim of the association is not only to get more wool produced but market it in a modern way that will assure the consumer wool of highest quality, while guaranteeing the producer top prices.

WEIRTON MAN IS ELECTROCUTED

Paul Caiva, 33 years old, was instantly killed yesterday morning when he stepped on a charged wire while working in the yards of the Weirton Steel company.

The body was taken to the Hartnick funeral parlors.

Coroner George A. Arner, of Chester, conducted an inquest in the case last night and returned a verdict of "accidental death."

He is survived by two brothers who reside in Detroit, Mich.

CLASS PLAYLET HERE TONIGHT

Large crowd is expected to attend the production of "Arnold Goes Into Business" this evening under the auspices of the senior class of the high school in the Lincoln theatre.

Matinee is scheduled this afternoon for children.

CHAPTER TWENTY-TWO.

But a pause came. The final scenes of the piece had to be played at the rear of the stage. Feeling the silence, Julian turned.

Murry Watt was looking at him, and now advanced to the steps that gave down from the front of the stage to the lower forestage just above the ground.

"My dear friend," he said, smiling in his expansive way, "I fear we shall have to trouble you."

"Oh, certainly!" cried Julian and descended the stepladder; hurrying to remove it. But he stumbled at the ladder, threw it off balance. It appeared about to fall on Hester. Julian sprang ineffectually after it, but Joe, quicker than he, caught it.

"Snappy work, Marceline!" he said, guardedly, and then carried the ladder offstage at the side. Julian hesitated, while the slow color rose in his cheeks. He saw Sadie, standing on the ground, had parted the side curtains and was looking at him. She had to move aside for Joe to pass. Hester, unaware of her momentary danger, had run down the front steps to speak to the director.

"Snappy work, Marceline."

Julian moved, quickly then, after the boy. He leaped to the ground. They were hidden there from those on the stage and in front. Joe was setting down the ladder on the ground. He turned, and found Julian standing rigidly before him.

"Just one moment!" said Julian, in a low, deliberate voice. "Just one moment!" Sadie hardly a yard away, felt a curious touch of unreality in him. He had never looked more the sensitive poet. "He's acting," she thought. "He's all nerved up to this, making himself do it. The poor boy;"

Joe chuckled in frank insolent amusement. Then he would have brushed by. The arrogance of the undisciplined young actor, flushed with discriminating praise, shone in his eyes. But Julian blocked the steps.

"Just one moment!" Sadie could have cried out. Was he going to utter that meaningless phrase a fourth time? Already, if he had healthy anger to show, he had waited too long. That kind of thing must be instant to be sound. Heaven knew Julian had authority enough. Money is authority. Why didn't he use his real strength?

WELLSVILLE FIRE TRUCK-PUMPER BIDS CONSIDERED

SIX PROPOSALS SUBMITTED TO FOGO, ASHLEY

Report Will be Made to Council on December 14.

Legislation Necessary Before Contract is Available.

Six bids, received from as many different firms, on a new fire truck and pumper, combined, are being considered today by the city's board of control, including Mayor W. L. Fogo and Safety-Service Director George P. Ashley preparatory for a report to council at an adjourned meeting on Tuesday Dec. 14.

Decision on the kind of truck needed to meet the requirements of the municipality will be made by the board of control and their proposal will be submitted to council.

The solons then will be asked to enact legislation for a bond issue amounting to $12,500, which it is decided, will be necessary to purchase the equipment.

With preliminary legislation out of the way, solons will authorize the board of control to enter into a contract for the machine

The adjourned meeting was planned by council at the request of Director Ashley who pointed out Tuesday night that he had had insufficient time in which to carefully examine the bids.

PERSONALS

Mrs. Bernard Hartman, of the Lisbon road, has returned from a ten-day visit with her sister, Mrs. H. P. Moss, in Crafton, Pa. She also spent several days with her daughter, Mrs. Rogers Geiser, of Evanswood, Pa.

Mrs. M. R. Shingler, of Main street, was a Pittsburgh visitor yesterday.

Mrs. E. M. Hartford, Maple avenue, is confined to her home by illness.

Condition of Mrs. George Hough, Maple avenue, who recently returned from the Salem Clinic hospital, is reported to be improving.

Mrs. C. O. Ball, Commerce street has concluded a visit with relatives in Huntington, W Va.

More Emotional Religion Needed Says Evangelist

Stressing the need of more emotional religion, Rev. H. A. Frye discussed the subject, "What Must We Do to Be Saved?" at last night's revival meeting in the First Evangelical church.

His subject for tonight will be, "Gambling With Destiny." The Nazarene church orchestra will render special music.

"The answer to the text question 'What Must We Do to Be Saved?' is contained in the 31st verse," said the evangelist. "It it—'Believe on the Lord, Jesus Christ.'

"Some people never like a revival because it is unusual. The earthquake in Paul's and Silas' day came in answer to prayer.

"The event seriously effected the jailer so much so that he was about to take his life. But Paul said 'do thy self no harm for we are all here.' The jailor asked the question of the text, 'what must I do to be saved?'

"There is an idea among men today that it is a mark of weakness for a man to cry in church. The very opposite in true. It's a mark of real manhood.

"We need more emotional religion in the Evangelical church.

"There is implied the thought in our text that we ought to be saved. There is also implied the possibility of being saved, but we must believe. First we must believe that He can save; second, that He will save, third, that He does save.

"Before we can believe we must do what is commanded in Isaiah 55, 6-7- "Seek ye the Lord while He may be found, call upon Him while He is near. Let the wicked forsake his way, and the unrighteous man his thoughts, and let Him return unto the Lord, and He will have mercy upon him.'

"You never got to Jesus until you step out of the old ways. It's more than turning over a new leaf. To turn over a new leaf does not get rid of the old account. For every successful bookkeeper knows that you always carry forward the old account upon the new page unless its been paid for.

"A lot of folks would like to become christians but they won't forsake their own way.

"Conversion is not a change of opinion concerning Christ. But it is a change of attitude in your heart toward Christ."

Will Serve Supper.

Members of the seating committee of the A. M. E. church will entertain at a chicken supper, from 4 to 8, on Saturday evening in the Knights of Pythias lodgerooms. Mrs. C. A. Spires is chairman of the committee.

PLAN BRANCH OF SALVATION ARMY IN CITY

Campaign for $2,060 Will be Staged Here.

CHURCHES TO AID

Citizens Help is Sought in Yule Relief Work.

In an effort to effect the establishment of a permanent Salvation Army station here, officers and local representatives of the mercy organization are perfecting the plans for a $2,060 campaign which will be put on before Christmas.

The work is being undertaken at the invitation of the Wellsville Ministerial association.

One thousand dollars of the quota, which, if reached, will insure the success of the project, will be used as a relief fund during the year. This provides for a hall and one worker, at present, to handle affairs of the army here.

C. J. Vogel will direct the drive as campaign manager, and under his direction a number of teams will canvass the city for the budget fund.

Citizens have been urged to report cases of need and their proposed offerings to Major Hughes—phone Main 1339—not later than December 20, in order that the army's relief work might be made more efficient through avoiding duplication of baskets and gifts.

If co-operation is obtained in this, officials essert, every needy family in the city will be reached through the distribution point that will be established here for the purpose.

INTER-ALLIED CONTROL BOARD QUITS GERMANY

PLAN ACCEPTED

Briand and Stresemann Approve League's Report.

GENEVA, Dec. 9.—Foreign Minister Briand of France and Foreign Minister Stresemann of Germany after a conference today accepted the league of nations experts' report providing for the recall of the inter-allied military control commission from Germany on January 15.

This commission will be replaced by the league's investigation plan, which has been accepted by Germany.

A meeting of the ambassadors' conference was scheduled for this afternoon in Paris to confirm M. Briand's and Herr Stresemann's decision.

The agreement reached today will permit Herr Stresemann to return to Germany, claiming a victory and may avert a serious political crisis, inasmuch as the nationalists had threatened the goverinment if it did not secure the withdrawal of the inter-allied military control commission.

It is understood that the meeting of the ambassadors' council will receive assurances from Germany regarding charges which have been made that Germany is violating some of the provisions of the Versailles treaty with regard to armaments.

Coolest Just After Sunrise.

Scientists have now declared that the coldest time of the day or night, not counting actual changes in atmospheric conditions, is the hour just after sunrise. This is due to the fact that when the sun first strikes the earth it causes the evaporation of a chilling moisture which is plainly felt by humans and animals.

Dancing Feat a Record.

Alfredo Fernando, the well known Italian dancing master, has just set a new record for marathon dancers to aim at. He has danced 130 hours, or nearly six days and nights without stopping. No one has come forward to contest his record.

PENNSY NAMES R. B. MELLON TO BOARD PLACE

Pittsburgh Man Succeeds Late George H. McFadden.

BANK PRESIDENT

Associated With Civic and Charitable Projects.

The board of directors of the Pennsylvania Railroad at yesterday's meeting elected Richard B. Mellon, of Pittsburgh, as a member of the board to serve in the vacancy resulting from the death of the late George H. McFadden, of Philadelphia.

Mr. Mellon is president of the Mellon National bank, of Pittsburgh, and is identified with many expansive financial and industrial interests in the city and elsewhere.

He was born in Pittsburgh in 1858. In addition to his business connections he is widely known for his association with educational, civic and humanitarian executions including Technology, Tuberculosis League of Pittsburgh and Children's Hospital of Pittsburgh.

EPWORTH FIVE PLAYS FRIDAY

Locals to Clash With Ceramics on M. E. Court.

After getting a good start this season by winning their first game last Friday with the East Liverpool Acmes, the Epworth League basketball team will play the East Liverpool Ceramics on Friday night, Dec. 10, on the Methodist Episcopal church court here.

The Ceramics boast a strong organization, composed chiefly of former high school performers, including Reese, Howard, Kilmer, McConville, Heddleston, McGraw, Roberts and McVay.

The Epworth Leaguers are unusually strong this season with each players on the roster as Grindle, Heakin, Springer, Connell, Weekley, DeTemple, Duty, Bell, Wallace, Smith, Wolfe, Fogo, McRea, assistant coach Hyatt and Manager Geren.

A preliminary game between two girls' teams is being arranged.

MISSION MEET FRIDAY NIGHT

The Woman's Missionary society of the First United Presbyterian church will convene on Friday evening, Dec. 10, in the church parlors.

The leader will be Mrs. Charles Boyd. Devotionals will be in charge of Mrs. Belle Booth.

In answer to roll call, members of the society will respond with Scripture verses on "Prayer."

Mrs. M. McKim will discuss "The Possibilities of Prayer."

A Christmas poem will be read by Miss Mary Imbrie.

Mrs. H. B. Andrews, Mrs. R. W. Ustick and Mrs. Bainbridge will be the hostesses.

MURPHY WILL NOT RESIGN

Congressman Denies Rumor of Retirement.

In a letter to a Cadiz newspaper, published recently, Congressman Frank B. Murphy, of Steubenville, formally denies rumors that he will retire from congress after the expiration of the 70th congress.

"I have not yet reached the place in my career," asserts Congressman Murphy, "where I have decided to retire, but feel that the longer I have remained as the representative of the people of the 18th district, the better service I shall be able to render."

Murphy calls attention to the influence wielded in legislative matters by the state of Pennsylvania by the continued service of their congressmen. Stephen G. Porter, of Pittsburgh, he points out, is the chairman of the foreign relations committee; Mr. McFadden is chairman of the banking committee; Mr. Graham is chairman of the judiciary committee; Mr. Vare is a member of the appropriations committee; Mr. Butler is chairman of the naval affairs committee; Mr. Morin is chairman of the military affairs committee.

"These chairmanships," he explains, "have all come about through continued service in congress and it is pleasing to note that Ohio has adopted the plan to keep their men in congress long enough to get the place in legislative influence to which their people are entitled."

ENTERTAINING ANGEL

Joe was plainly on the brink of outright laughter.

"What's got into you?" he asked; then, with some impatience, raised a hand to put this curious human obstruction aside.

Julian struck the hand away. They locked straight at each other. Joe wasn't laughing now. And still Julian waited.

To Sadie the situation was taking a serious aspect. "My God!" she thought. "He isn't going to try to fight him!"

At last Julian spoke.

"Don't use that name again," he said, breathlessly.

Again silence fell.

"Don't be silly!" said Joe then, and stepping around to the rear of the stage vaulted up and called, "All right, Hester!"

Julian stood only a moment. Before Sadie could collect her thoughts to speak or move, he was walking swiftly away. He listed the canvas wall and went outside. The canvas fell behind him. Sadie stood a little while, trying to think out the small incident. Her pretty mouth bent into a twisted smile. Then, uncertainly, she went out after him.

He was sitting in his car.

"Will you let me sit with you, Julian?" she asked.

He nodded quickly, a thought too quickly for Sadie. She hesitated, a little hurt; but then threw off her mood before it could shadow her thoughts, and stepped lightly up into the car. She couldn't help snuggling up to him.

"I saw it, you know," she said, covertly and even somewhat anxiously studying him.

"What? . . . Oh!"

"I was right there."

"You heard what he said?"

"Yes." She wanted deeply to help him, but couldn't hit at once on the way. "That boy was fairly asking for a good hard call," she remarked. How could she make it clear to him that he'd gone at it all wrong? He'd let Joe, really, get away with it. Jim, now, would have leaped down his throat. There wouldn't have been any doubt regarding his meaning. A few quick crisp phrases would have made that clear. Oh, Jim could be crisp! Instantly the stronger nature would have dominated the young and weaker one. There wouldn't have been a question as to who was boss. . . .

"I'm afraid you were too gentle with him," she added, still groping for some true approach to this unworldly mind.

"Gentle?" Julian was surprised. "I thought I made myself clear. You heard what I said? Of course it was foolish to lose my temper."

Sadie nodded. "Yes. I heard it. But I'm afraid you'd have to treat that boy pretty rough before he'd even know you meant it."

It was no good. He'd never understand.

"I wanted to hit him."

Sadie ran a slim finger around the frame of the little clock on the cowl board. This wouldn't do either. A situation was developing, and pretty rapidly. No doubt about that. Some kind of clash there would be. Sooner or later. Probably some queer kind that one couldn't foresee. Joe's arrogance would surely grow. Let him taste the favor of a few audiences, a little real laughter, and applause, and nature would do the rest. His head would be turned over night. Sadie had seen it happen a hundred times. The audiences would like him. They didn't know anything about technique, but responded instantly to a pleasantly exuberant personality, and that Joe surely had.

He was the "manly" type, and yet appealingly a boy. He'd be handsome in costume and paint. Oh, they'd fall for him. And after that there'd be no heading him. . . . On the other hand, Julian, in his unfortunately round-about way, meant business.

For the first time, the thought occurred to her that a nature like his might prove dogged. There were signs enough. He wasn't weak. She knew that now. And he wasn't a coward. He simply didn't know how to go about things in this very earthy world. . . . Yes, he'd go through. Wrongly, of course, but through. And his sensitive heart would be broken. She stole another glance at him. His profile, she felt, was beautiful. And he lived in the clouds. It was wonderful, and rather terrible. Sadie's emotions, always near the surface and always demanding instant expression, brought her to a little shiver. She couldn't endure this silence any longer. She'd have to do something. Why didn't he take her into his arms and kiss her. It was the only way she knew to be kind to a man, just give whole-heartedly of herself. But he just sat there, gloomily.

She straightened up in the seat. This wouldn't do. And she didn't know how to handle the exquisite timidity that he stirred in her breast. He didn't even seem to know that she had stopped kissing him. It was broad daylight, but Sadie didn't care about that. Emotion, passion was the only reality she had ever known. . . . Desperately then, because she couldn't have sat much longer without screaming, she spoke her practical mind. Spoke it honestly.

"Has it ever occurred to you, dear that we might lose Hester?"

"Lose her?"

"The troupe, I mean. If anything happened to Joe right now. In the state she's in. And, Julian, we can't afford to let her go. She's the one person in the troupe that people talk about, that they really come to see.

BLACKSTONE AT CERAMIC

Great Magician Opens Three-day Engagement Here.

Blackstone, the world's greatest magician, who will hold the boards of the Ceramic theatre for three days, will open his engagement tonight.

This season's program embraces a score of new features, some of them of world-wide fame, and never heretofore shown in this city.

Among them being the famous Hindoo Rope Mystery, which has been performed in India as a religious ceremony for more than five centuries, but never before shown outside of India. Blackstone obtained the secret from an aged Hindoo fakir whom he befriended. "Broadcasting a Woman," will be shown for the first time in this city. This illusion has caused more discussion as to its performance than any illusion in history. It is thrilling.

Other new features are "Can a Man Walk Away from His Shadow?" Blackstone proves that he may. "Alice in Wonderland," is as baffling as it is beautiful. It is a veritable fairyland brought to life. "The Mystery of the Carryall" is a Chinese effect. Two seventy-foot baggage cars are required to transport the vast quantity of effects used in the performance. A veritable menagerie is carried with the company, and ranges from camels to domestic animals.

After a young man has made his first ringing speech he should buy the ring.—Cincinnati Times-Star.

The Name Tells a True Story.

The very name, Foley's Honey and Tar Compound, tells why, without opiates of chloroform, it is so quickly effective in stopping coughs and in healing the distressing cause. Because it alone combines the curative virtues of pure Pine Tar and other healing ingredients, together with the mollifying demulcent effects of clear fresh Honey. From 651 E. 46th St., Chicago, comes this: "A stubborn cough worried me, kept me awake nights, and resisted other cough medicines, but quickly yielded to your good Foley's Honey and Tar Compound. My druggist recommended it." Ask for it. Sold everywhere.

MEN'S BANQUET HERE TONIGHT

Rev. B. R. Johnson, East Liverpool, Will be Principal Speaker.

Rev. B. R. Johnson, pastor of the First Christian church of East Liverpool, will be the principal speaker at a banquet to be given to the men of the Christian church of Lisbon in the dining room of the church on Friday evening the banquet to be served by the ladies of the church at 6:30 o'clock. Rev. P. W. Macaulay, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Lisbon, will also make an address on the occasion. All of the men of the church, and those who are friends of the church are invited.

This is the first banquet to be served to the men of the church, but it is proposed to make it an annual affair. There will be a musical program with the Masonic quartet, composed of Harry March, Ross Gilbert, Frank Pritchard and Edgar Kirk, as entertainers, with Gus Mefort, violinist, Leroy Kesler, pianist, and D. H. Jackson, as soloist.

Program Arranged For District Meet Of Odd Fellows

The third meeting of District 28, Scarlet Decree members, I. O. O. F. will be held with Concordia lodge, Lisbon, on Friday evening. Degree work was a feature of the two former meetings held at East End, East Liverpool, and Irondale lodge, but at this meeting no degree work is scheduled. An interesting program has been arranged however, and several prominent men in Odd Fellowship will be here to speak.

The meeting will be presided over by Willard E. McCoy, chairman of the district meet, and speakers expected are Col. Herbert A. Hughes, of Zanesville, present Grand Master of Ohio, and representative to the Sovereign Grand Lodge of Ohio, and Henry A. Armstrong, of Hazelton, N. D., Past Grand Master of North Dakota.

The lodges included in this district are Iris lodge, No. 125, Wellsville, East Liverpool Lodge, No. 379, of E. Liverpool, Star of Promise lodge, No. 435, Salineville, Irondale lodge, No. 523, Irondale, Pennova lodge, No. 880, East End, East Liverpool, and Concordia lodge, No. 88, Lisbon.

VISIT PLANNED BY LODGE MEMBERS

Odd Fellows and Rebekahs from Lisbon and over Columbiana county, will go to Youngstown on Saturday to attend the Odd Fellows celebration there on the occasion of the visit of Ernest B. Bradford, of Washington, D. C., Grand Sire of the Sovereign Grand Lodge, I. O. O. F., the highest officer of the lodge in the world. Mr. Bradford will speak during the evening to the Odd Fellows at the Stambaugh auditorium. A 3 o'clock in the afternoon there will be a parade.

It has been announced that the assemble place for the subordinate lodge will be the Trinity M. E. church, the Rebekahs to assemble at the First Baptist church, and the Patriarch Militants at the Odd Fellows Temple.

DAMAGE SUIT IS INSTITUTED

Alden Edgar West, 10, son of Frank West, of Columbiana, has commenced an action in the common pleas court here against the Bixler Baking company of Youngstown, for $725 damages. The Youngstown company, it is stated, delivers bread and other baked goods in Columbiana each day by truck, and on the 9th of last June as young West was riding his bicycle down South Main street, the Bixler truck it is alleged backed out from the curb in front of the Frederick building, and collided with the boy and the bicycle.

It is claimed that the lad was badly injured about the back and legs, ligaments and nerves being torn, twisted and lacerated, to the extent that he has not yet recovered.

SALEM ATTORNEYS GIVEN JUDGMENT

Galen Scattergood, as administrator of the estate of the late W. W. Scattergood of Salem, failed to appear in common pleas court Thursday when the case of Metzger & McCarthy of that city against him as administrator was called for trial, so Judge W. F. Lones directed the jury to return a verdict in favor of the plaintiffs for $354.21 and costs. The law firm of Metzger & McCarthy filed the action some time ago against the estate to recover judgment against the Scattergood estate for the amount for which judgment was rendered, claiming that it was due them for work and labor along the line of their profession.

JUVENILE GRANGE OFFICERS NAMED

COURT SESSION DATES LISTED

Clerk of Courts Frank Ballantine was advised today by Secretary of State Thad H. Brown of the times for opening the terms both of common pleas court and the court of appeals in Columbiana county during 1927.

The terms of common pleas court will open on January 3rd, April 11, and September 19. The terms of the court of appeals will open on April 4 and November 14th.

New Cumberland

Among those from out of town who attended the supper in the community house given by the women of the Presbyterian church Friday evening were: Dr. and Mrs. Park McMullen and Miss Watson, Senator and Mrs. W. FARM BUREAU TO HOLD MEET

Annual Session Will be Held Saturday in Lisbon.

M. D. Lincoln, executive secretary of the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation, will speak at the annual meeting of the Columbiana County Farm Bureau, to be held at the opera house at Lisbon on Saturday, December 11. Lincoln's address will be delivered at 11 a. m. Mrs. H. W. Lawrence, member of the executive committee of the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation, will speak in the afternoon. Warren P. Wherry, secretary of the Manufacturers' association, Youngstown, will speak on "Tax Reduction." This also is scheduled for the afternoon. Other features of the meeting will include discussions on legislation, taxation, the seed potato situation and other topics of interest to the farmer.

Officers for the ensuing year will be elected. Dinner will be served by the women of the Presbyterian church in the city hall. The meeting will begin promptly at 10:30.

The annual meeting of the County Farm Bureau is the event looked to with interest by the farmers of the county. It is usually largely attended. Policies for the organization for the ensuing year are formed at the meeting. The meeting is open to the public. John M. Kerr, of Wellsville, is president of the association and J C. Pottorf, of Salem, is secretary.

Invocation.
Remarks—President J. M. Kerr.
Reading of minutes.
Miscellaneous business.

AUTHORIZED TO RETAIN COUNSEL

Charles G. Burton of Salem, who was named several days ago as receiver for the Silver Manufacturing company, of Salem, by Judge W. F. Lones in the common pleas court, has been authorized by the court to retain Gardner Abbott, of Cleveland, and R. W. Campbell of Salem, as his attorneys in the receivership. Receiver Burton was allowed $250 per month to apply on his receivership fees.

The affairs of the Silver Manufacturing company, one of the oldest concerns in Salem, passed into the hands of a receiver through an action filed in the court by the Midland bank, trustee, of Cleveland, against the Silver company.

ELKRUN GRANGE PLANS CONTEST

Entertainments Will be Held During Winter Season.

The members of Elkrun Grange have inaugurated a contest for the winter season with the men and women of the grange lined up on opposite sides, and with a banquet dinner to the entire grange membership facing the loser in the contest, which calls for the best entertainments during the season. W. A. Morris has been chosen as captain of the men, and Mrs. Mary A. Finney, of the women.

On next Saturday evening in the Grange hall the men will open the contest and an elaborate program is being arranged for the opening night. The complete program will not be announced in advance, but there will be a male quartet, duet, solos, readings and stunts, and an address by R. M. Patterson.

On an evening during the holiday season the women of the Grange will provide an evening of entertainment, and on Saturday evening, January 22, the men will again put on a program, the ladies to close the contest on the second Saturday in February with what promises to be an elaborate entertainment. Women of the Grange will serve lunch on Saturday evening, the opening night of the contest.

Homer Williams, south of Lisbon. Denver Williams, former master of the Clarkson grange, and a third party yet to be named, will serve as judges in the contest. The banquet to the winners will be served in Grange hall soon after the close of the contest in February.

LISBON MASONS HOLD BANQUET

The annual rabbit supper given by the New Lisbon chapter, F. & A. M. in the Masonic temple banquet hall Tuesday evening was attended by more than 100 Masons, there being visitors present from neighboring lodges. Following the supper there was a regular meeting of the lodge when the following officers were elected: G. A. Hemstead, W. M.; R. L. Hendricks, S. W.; W. L. Virden, J. W.; W. R. Phillips, treasurer; G. C. Porter, secretary; J. H. Thurston, S. D.; James A. Armstrong, J. D.; and W. J. Fraser, tyler.

The date for the installation of the new officers has nnot been fixed as Hon. J. B. Ruhl, of Cleveland, formerly of Lisbon, former grand master of thes tate of Ohio, has been invited to come and serve as installing officer. The date will be named by Mr. Ruhl.

Three Divorce Suits Filed Yesterday in Common Pleas Court

Mrs. Laura Whittington, aged 20 years, of East Liverpool, is represented in court by her next friend, Bessie Cullison, in an action filed against her husband, Arnold Whittington, asking for a divorce. Whittington is serving time in the Mansfield State reformatory.

The young couple were married in New Cumberland, W. Va., in the spring of 1924. She says the defendant has failed to provide the necessaries of life either for her or their child, and tells the court that she has been compelled to rely upon friends for the same. She asks for a divorce and the custody of the child.

Sharon M. Quigley, of East Palestine, has asked the common pleas court to give him a divorce from his wife, Margaret, who is now living in Cleveland. The husband, in his petition, states to the court that his wife is a minor, and he suggests that the court appoint a guardian for her to represent her in the action.

They were married, it is stated, in Beaver, Pa., on January 3rd, 1925, and their daughter, Jane Ann, is near 18 months old. Quigley charges his wife with gross neglect of duty and wilful absence since five months after their marriage. Soon after they were married, he tells the court, she left him after a quarrel, but returned after remaining away six weeks. In June 1925, however, she again went away and has since been absent.

Mary Bartholow, who is not yet of legal age, has filed an action in the common pleas court through her next friend, Ella T. Allen, asking for a divorce from Ralph E. Bartholow. Wednesday she will appear in court and ask Judge Lones for temporary alimony with which to care for her child during the pendency of the suit.

They were married on January 2, 1925, at New Cumberland, W. Va., and lived in Salem township. Early in September, the wife states, her husband threatened to shoot her and ordered her from their home, and later told her to go back to her parents. She asks divorce, alimony and the custody of the child.

CURTIS WERNER CITED TO COURT

Curtis E. Werner of East Liverpool, has again been notified to appear in the common pleas court to show cause, if he can, why he should not be punished for contempt of court.

Werner, it is claimed, has failed to carry out the orders of the court in fulfilling the agreement as to allmony to be paid to his former wife, Floretta, entered into April, 1924, at the time Mrs. Werner was given a divorce.

He has not fulfilled his part of the contract, and he has been notified to appear before Judge Lones in the common pleas court on next Monday morning at 10 o'clock. Werner sued his wife for divorce almost three years ago, and when the case was heard the decree was entered by the court in favor of the wife on her answer and cross petition, on grounds of wilful absence. In September, one year ago he was haled before the court to answer to a contempt charge in not carrying out his alimony agreement.

EL PASO IS ONLY CITY OF 110,000 HAVING BUT 100 FRAME DWELLINGS

EL PASO, Texas.—No other city in Texas and only a few in the United States as large as El Paso can boast a population of 110,000 persons with only slightly more than 100 frame buildings within its limits.

And while El Paso, being a resort city, is swarming with apartment houses and family hotels, it contains more than 17,000 residences.

The reason for the absence of frame houses in El Paso is directly due to the inability many years ago to get lumber and the availability of brick in plenty. The predominance of brick buildings further was augmented in 1917 when the city council passed an ordinance banning erection of frame structures within the city limits.

Perhaps this rigid legislation has re-acted unfavorably on Texas lumber-men but it certainly has been profitable to the city in reduction of annual fire losses.

El Paso stands seventh in the United States in low annual fire loss. During the last nine years annual toll has averaged approximately $150,000.

In addition to what it saves property owners, the ordinance has saved the city large sums of money in maintenance of a large fire department. Seven fire stations with a personnel of 95 employes and 12 apparatus serve El Paso and the upper and lower Rio Grande valley over an area of probably 20 square miles. And until recently the El Paso department has answered calls in Juarez, Mexico across the river.

The frame houses now in the city were erected either before the ordinance was passed or were taken into the city by annexation. The small number of frame structures slowly is dwindling as fires consume a number of them each year and brick and stucco edifices replace them in compliance with the ordinance provisions.

Strobel Hits Ball At .441 Clip In 31 Games During Year

Stickwork on Get-away Stretch Enables "Hen" to Finish Above .400; Eddie Bayley, Runner-up, in 34 Contests, Finishes With .398; McShane Leads Katies With .392.

HENRY STROBEL, known to all and sundry as "Hen," veteran diamond performer of the Northside, who has played on about every club in and about East Liverpool in his day and generation, topped the batters of the City Industrial League for 1926 with a mark of .441 for 31 games, according to figures announced today by T. T. Jones, official league statistician.

However, Strobel was in three contests less than "Eddie" Bailey, the active field leader of Turk-Nash who, in 34 engagements, finished with an average of .398. The veteran made 29 bingles in his 68 chances with the bludgeon while his younger rival laced out 45 safe drives in his 113 times at bat.

Both players sagged a bit during the second half of the league race. In the initial period Strobel had swatted at a .485 clip with his 16 hits in 33 tries; in the final dash of the clubs he annexed 13 safeties in 35 efforts for a .571 mark.

Bayley was a .420 swatter during the spring and early summer weeks with 29 clouts for his 69 times at the plate; in the concluding open air argument of the competing clubs his swinging efforts netted 16 wallops which no one could get from the 44 essays that were his as he faced the pitcher. His secondary figure accordingly was .364

Both of these outstanding exponents of swat for the season lambasted the horsehide pellet above .400 at the outset of the year's race and both dropped into the .300 class during its terminating days. Though always the gardener was in fewer engagements than the infielder he had the higher standing in both the divided interims of the six-sided struggle for team supremacy. They loomed at the July half-way with Strobel .485 and Bayley .420; as September morns ended the succeeding interval of play the count stood Strobel .371 and Bayley .364. A margin of .65 points separated the two in the earlier days of activity and seven points prevented a tie between the two in the latter occasions of struggle. Together these totaled .441 and .391 respectively for the schedule's consummation.

Strobel's big lead at the outset enabled him to make the .400 class as a finality while Bayley missed it by two points. What strobel would have done had he not been injured at a Klondyke game in early August, which caused him to hesitate with the stick for a contest or two or had he not assumed the leadership of the Victor Motor aggregation in the final meetings of the season, can hardly be conjectured. With the duties of "boss" upon him basehits flew from his belaying weapon during the two appearances of his management. But his ability to smite the ball plus a rare capacity at walking silhouetted him for the year as one of the organization's stars.

In even more resplendence was the constant performance of E. Bayley, who, failing in 1925, to show his old batting form came back with a capability that made him one of the year's sensations at bat. However, his responsibility in the final rush for the flag told somewhat on him also.

Despite the showing of both H. Strobel and E. Bayley, neither one led his team with the bat during the second half. On the Turk-Nash club the clouting leader was Dewey Morgan, the team's third bagman, who hit the ball in 15 games at a .381 clup, 17 more points than E. Bayley's .364. E Mundy of the same club swatted at a .380 pace for that period, but he was in but six games. Likewise Deshler, in nine games of that interim, drove the ball at a .304 pace.

Strobel's .371 for the added section of play was overshadowed by Buzzard's .500 in five games; Robinson's .389 in 13; Sainor's .388 in 15; C. Coleman's .376 in 16 and Davis .467 in 13 games of that period. All in all for both to worm themselves through and above such competition characterizes their work as accomplishments at once creditable and commendable.

No less remarkable and almost equaling the record of the two league leaders was that made by that other diamond veteran hereabouts, "Ralph Red" McShane, long the star middle gardener, frequent club director and ever a member of the board a strategy of the K. T. K. club. In 29 contests, two less than those in which H. Strobel engaged and five short of E. Bayley's contests he swatted at a .392 clip for the season. In addition, a feat which the two topping him did not have, he fielded perfectly. He equaled Strobel in doubles, both having four had one more triple, 3 to 2, but failed to connect with a homer which Strobel and E. Bayley did. The latter had had four triples and ten doubles, thus eclipsing both.

McShane went the entire season without an error. In the final clash of his team with Chester which, because of a lack of players on his club, was forfeited to the West Virginians an exhibition game followed in which "Red" essayed to cover first. Then he muffied an assist, but the miscue was not counted as such contests are not in the official records. In the first half McShane hit exactly .400, but fell in the second to .345 with 11 bingles in 29 chances. His grand mark accordingly reached .392.

Standing out also was the smashing proclivities of Catcher Robinson, of Victory Motor, who, out of the game more than a year, returned in the second half, led his club with the bludgeon and almost duplicated McShane's all-around mark with .389 while also fielding perfectly.

(Additional league records will be announced in succeeding issues).

LODGE CAGERS DOWN TO WORK

Coach Powell Pleased With First Night's Results.

Elks' club basketball candidates went through the paces last night at the Y. M. C. A. under the direction of Coach "Bill" Powell in their first workout preliminary to the opening of the Columbiana County Amateur Basketball league next week.

Enough players to form two squads reported to Powell for duty and the cage mentor declared himself well pleased with the results of the first workout.

Another drill is scheduled for tonight at 8 o'clock.

Columbiana Five Working Out for League Campaign

Former Miller Brothers Stars, Ex-Highs on Squad.

COLUMBIANA, Dec. 9.—Practice sessions are well under way for Columbiana's amateur basketball team, one of the eight entries in the county amateur circuit which will open next week.

The Columbiana team will be made up of players from the Miller Brothers and Central Market tearms of last year and also players from last year's high five.

Among the candidates working out are Hoover, Kyser, Harvey, McFadden, McMaster, Crumbacher, Stephens, Messersmith, F. Miller, Nichols, Clunerman, Barber and Flickinger.

Hawkins, Anderson, Graham and Robinson, members of the Miller quint will report within the next few days or so.

An effort is being made to arrange two or three preliminary games.

HEYDLER BACKS JUDGE LANDIS

Will Support Commissioner for Second Term.

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—John A. Heydler's statement, in which he declared that he would "whole heartedly and determinedly support Baseball Commissioner K. M. Landis for re-election," no matter whether he, Heydler, was a club owner, player or private citizen, was taken today as indicating that the judge was certain of being returned to his office without compromise. His re-election may come up for consideration at the joint meeting of the major leagues in Chicago next week.

It was taken for granted that Heydler was speaking for the entire National League and, with the support of Charles A. Comiskey, of the Chicago American League club, the return of Landis for another term seemed to be a formality.

INSIDE GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON,
Maker of 51 Golf Champions.
"Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans.

In the first place, in taking a correct grip, bring the left hand well up on top of the shaft. This probably means that you bring it up more than you have been doing. Let the first three knuckles show plainly to your eye. Now with the right hand, bring it up to the shaft but, instead of having the wrist point directly away from the shaft, bend the wrist inward—toward the shaft—until you can plainly see the first two or three knuckles of this hand, too. Then observe that the V's are actually parallel. The reason you do this, first, is because this so places the hands that when you hit the ball both wrists will be turned against the ball, or across it, in such position that there can be no give in the wrists. That's an important detail in hitting and is one reason why little details of grip are important to be in with.

Gradual Abolition Of Draft is Plan Of Minor Leagues

ASHEVILLE, N. C., Dec. 9.—Gradual abolition of the system of major league teams drafting players from the minor leagues is expected to result within the next few years as result of the movement under way today at the annual convention of professional baseball leagues.

Officials of the association were instructed to draw up another agreement, which would allow various minors to refuse or accept the draft by April, 1927. The Texas league already has announced its intention of doing away with the draft.

NAME CARTLEDGE ATHLETIC HEAD

STEUBENVILLE, Dec. 9.—Announcement was made here yesterday of the appointment of Charles Q. Cartledge, Steubenville high school coach to the position of supervisor of athletics in city schools for a period of three years, beginning at the termination of Cartledge's present contract, September, 1927, at a salary of $3,600 for the first year; $3,800 for the second and $4,000 for the third year.

BROMBY TO TRY COURT AGAIN

Mount Cagers Seek Services of Star Guard.

ALLIANCE, Dec. 9.—Mount Union plays the first game of her schedule of eighteen when she meets the Kent State Normal quintet at Alliance, December 9. The Mount team will be minus the services of "Lefty" Miller and "Bo" Labor, captains of Mount's last two Championship teams and members of all three. Hall and Mills regulars of last year, have been lost by graduation. Colin Bromby of East Liverpool, and "Shrimp" Orin, regulars of the first championship squad of 1924-25 may start. Neither men played last year. Bromby was forced out of the game by a trick knee, and Orin was not in school. Coach Robert D. Wright has one sub of last year's squad upon whom he may call, Parker Orr. These three men are the only letter men in school. Captain-elect George Wilcoxin, was lost to this year's squad when he entered Ohio State this fall to take up the study of medicine.

No other coach in the Ohio conference has the proposition to face which "Bob" Wright does. There is a record of three successive Ohio conference championships to maintain, and a record of thirty-three unbroken conference wins to uphold with only one sure regular of two years ago around which to build a team. Wright must of necessity draw from the sophomore class for material with which to complete a team.

RICKARD PLANS DEMPSEY FIGHT

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—Tex Rickard's receipt of a message from Jack Dempsey, informing him that the ex-champion will return east soon after the first of the year, prompted the promoter today to lay plans for Dempsey's appearance in the ring at Madison Square Garden next March. Rickard re-iterated his preference for a bout between Dempsey and one of the survivors of the elimination series, rather than a return match between Dempsey and Tunney without preamble.

"I think it would be better for all concerned, Dempsey included, to meet some good man before he tackles Tunney,' said Rickard. "Dempsey may find that he needs to get at least one fight under his belt in order to come up for his title effort in the proper condition."

Thevenow Is Coming Star, Avers Rickey

Regrets Passing of Cobb, Collins and Speaker; Says Hornsby Will Probably Manage Cards Next Year; St. Louis Club Director Talks at School.

BARRING unforseen occurrences, accidents or other tribulations which might befall the average ball player, young Tommy Thevenow, shortstop of the St. Louis Cardinals, who contributed quite a few valuable base clouts as well as a number of brilliant plays to the success of the Cards in the championship series will, one of these days, be one of the bright stars of the game.

This is the prediction of Branch Rickey, business manager and vice president of the Cardinals, who last night delighted a large audience at the high school with an informal talk, rather than a stereotyped address, on the general subject of athletics.

Rickey discussed Thevenow and other players of the game following his talk, while donning his overcoat in the office of Superintendent McVay preparatory to a long drive to Columbus.

The baseball player, manager, athlete, lawyer and student was in a hurry to get away but nevertheless had plenty of time to talk with well wishers who came into the office for an informal visit.

Rickey's reference to Thevenow, as well as to Bell, the third sacker, and Jim Bottomley, first baseman, was prompted by a discussion of Cobb, Collins and Speaker, who for years have been mighty figures in the world of baseball.

"It is extremely regrettable," said Rickey, commenting on the passing of this trio from the ranks of the pastime. "Men of this type and caliber," he said, "are not produced every day and although it is a loss to the game when they leave, the circumstances are natural and must be expected."

"You can look to Thevenow as one of the future stars," declared Rickey enthusiastically, "and beside that there are other youngsters coming up who will crowd into the spotlight one of these days."

"Has Hornsby signed a contract as manager for next year? Rickey was asked.

"Well—," Rickey hesitated a second, and then—"I don't know. That matter is being fixed up between Hornsby and Sam Breadon. I imagine he'll return as manager next year."

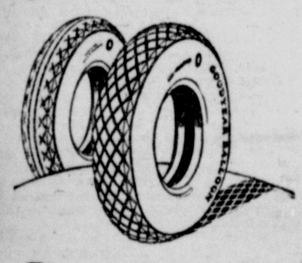

And he made a smiling reference to what is known as off-season stove league talk.

Before his departure to Columbus, Rickey and his companion, Fred Hunter, scout, spent a few minutes in a lively fanning bee with Bill Powell, former minor and major league star. Rickey and Hunter are close friends and both are chums of Powell's. Hunter roomed with Powell out in Kansas City a good many years ago and "the good old days" were discussed thoroughly before the trio parted.

A number of entertaining incidents in the various fields of sport were related by Rickey in his talk at the high school. He stressed as usually particular to any team, baseball, football, or whatever it is, "the desire to win." But as particular and commendable as this is the desire to play fair, he pointed out.

AUTO CLUB MEN AT STATE MEET

Rutledge and Diehl Return From Bluefield, W. Va.

R. B. Rutledge, Chester, president, and E. M. Diehl, secretary of the Hancock County Motor club, have returned from Bluefield, W. Va., where they attended the annual meeting of the West Virginia Automobile club. The former was re-elected a member of the board of trustees.

The organization went on record as favoring the plan of distribution of automobile license plates now in effect in Ohio, and will urge the legislature at its next session to enact legislation providing for local stations. The association also approved the uniform national traffic code which was drafted at a conference called recently by Secretary of Commerce Hoover. Six states have already adopted this code.

The state highway commission will be urged to complete the marking of the main highways in the state with the uniform federal marking system adopted last year.

South Dakota Site For Summer White House is Offered

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—An 80,000-acre tract of land in the Black Hills of South Dakota, and a lodge containing 80 rooms, were offered yesterday to President Coolidge as a site for next summer's White House.

A delegation of South Dakotians, headed by Senator McMaster and W. C. Lust, of the state chamber of commerce, called at the White House and proffered the estate, which is known as Custer Park, and lies about 30 miles from Rapid City.

The president is interested in it, but did not commit himself.

1925 as do these governmental publications.

"On page 24 of the recent bulletin is a comparison of the average hourly earnings for the industry as a whole in all departments in 1913 against those of 1925 as disclosed by the recent survey. This comparison is interesting in that it shows the earnings per hour are now more than twice what they were twelve years ago. The piece work and day wage rates as specified in the agreement have not been doubled in that period, but improved conditions and better facilities have contributed more largely than is generally realized to the earning power of the men, so that they may now earn two dollars in less time and with less effort than were formerly required to earn one.

Comparison of Hourly Earnings.

"The following quotation from the report embraces figures for only a few occupations. It will be sufficient for the purpose of illustration.

"Comparison of hourly earnings of pottery workers in 1913 and 1925:

	1913	1925
Mould makers	51c	106c
Batters out	23	56
Mould runners	19	47
Finishers, female	26	52
Jiggermen	45	90
Dishmakers	44	81
Turners	50	94
Handlers	53	95
Casters	39	90
Sagger makers	45	96
Kiln placers, bisque	48	105
Kiln placers, glost	48	104
Kiln drawers, male	32	71
Kiln drawers, female	19	46
Ware dressers, female	16	39
Warehousemen	29	58
Dippers	62	123
Packers	35	85
Decorating kilnmen	31	77

"An interesting feature disclosed by the report is the number of female compared with the number of male employes in the various districts.

"In the 22 plants surveyed in the immediate East Liverpool district there were 50 women employed to every 100 men.

"In the 18 plants in the west outside of East Liverpool there were 62 women to every 100 men and in three Trenton earthenware plants there were 84 women to every 100 men.

"Excepting in the decorating departments, the hourly earnings were fairly uniformed in the several districts, but in the cost of decorating the western firms outside of East Liverpool appear to have a material advantage, partly accounted for by the larger percentage of female labor, and partly, it may be assumed, by a different wage scale.

"In 22 plants in East Liverpool there were 152 male gilders and liners and 79 females.

"In 18 western plants outside of East Liverpool there were 83 male gilders and liners and 238 female.

"This indicates that in East Liverpool 34 per cent of the liners are women against 75 per cent in other Ohio plants. An analysis of the statistics, with the details of which I shall not burden you, seems to show that it is costing East Liverpool for lining labor from 40 to 50 per cent more than it does the potteries more fortunately located, also that the same potteries have an advantage of about 30 per cent in the cost of transferring decalcomania. More power to them.

12 Pressers In Trade.

"A rather striking development disclosed by the recent report is the almost complete disappearance of the printer, the presser and the apprentice in the earthenware potteries. Within the recollection of all of us of the older generation, the decorating capacity of plants was measured by the number of printers employed. Yet in the 46 plants surveyed last year there were 39 in which there was no printer. There were only seven printers in the entire trade. In no plant was more than one engaged—the total being four in East Liverpool, two in Trenton and one in the other districts.

"Pressers, that formerly outnumbered the jiggermen, are now exceedingly rare. In 37 plants no presser was found. There were but 12 in the entire trade. Of these five were in East Liverpool, five in Trenton, and two in other districts.

"There were not enough apprentices employed in the entire industry to warrant separate mention in the report. Consequently, there are no available data for the trade as a whole. Perhaps the apprentice situation at the Laughlin Newell plants is representative. In those three plants, with a capacity of about 70 kilns, there are between sliphouse and warehause only four apprentices, one mould maker, and three dishmakers.

"There are many other curiosities of statistics embraced in the publicatin. There are tables showing the time required for placing and drawing kilns in the different plants, showing a very wide variation. There is a comparison of losses in broken bisque, thirds and lump, and other tables which are interesting, if not quite accurate. These will not be quoted, but are commended for your careful perusal.

Kilnmen on Day-Wage Basis.

"There has been a considerable increase during the year in the number of kilnmen and dippers employed on a day-wage basis. So far as my information goes, there has been some increase in cost to the manufacturers, but not much. There has been some improvement in the quality of the product, but not so much as might have been anticipated. The real advantage lies in the removal of a constant source of irritation. A spirit of co operation has been established in a department where a spirit of antagonism prevailed under the piece work system that was liable to break at any moment into open hostility.

"During the year the standing committees have functioned with their usual faithfulness and proficiency. Their work was complicated by an exceptional number of new and unique shapes, upon which making and decorating prices were to be established. In this difficult task they succeeded remarkably well, and without serious interruption in operations. The prices fixed were generally fair to both employer and employe. The men did not succeed in their original demands for extravagant prices, but there is no instance on record in which their wages have not been maintained to the level of their earnings on older shapes.

"You have observed from the October bulletin issued by the secretary that the combined sales of 26 earthenware firms for August and September, 1925, were $3,307,000.00, and for the same two months in 1926 they were $3,914,000.00, a gain of more than 18 per cent. No data are available to indicate whether this increase was general throughout the trade, or throughout the year.

"The returns to the questionnaire as to sales and wages paid were disappointingly incomplete, but enough was assembled to leave little room for doubt that the industry as a whole was on the up grade, at least during this fall.

"Yet it must be apparent to all observers that the distribution of our products is in a transition stage. The older avenues and methods are yielding to the newer. Almost anything may happen at any time. Predictions for 1927 are little more than idle speculation. The trend of the domestic potting business for next year is on the knees of the gods."

when a college woman decided to make a profession of journalism she usually had only a rather vague idea that when she was graduated she would make her start by getting a job as a reporter on some newspaper, specializing later on when she found the work for which she was best qualified. Now, as the result of four or five years' activity by Theta Sigma Phi, college women are specializing in their training and preparatory work and they have learned that there are many opportunities aside from the ordinary reportorial job—position on trade publications, technical as well as editorial jobs with magazines and book publishers, openings as free lance writers, places with advertising agencies, and numerous others.

Moreover, this society inaugurated the very practical step of bringing the college woman and the job together by opening a register for employment. Every undergraduate was urged to place her name on this register, with a statement of her qualifications and her preference as to kind and place of employment, and then the staff of the national organization of the society undertook to find her the kind of job wanted, where she wanted it. This work is said to have been extremely successful.

General Placement Agency.

It is this sort of work that the general placement agency now being organized by the Panhellenic association will systematize and carry forward on a larger scale. It is hoped that it can be developed until every woman leaving college prepared for a professional or business career will be brought immediately in contact with a job or a promising field for professional practice.

The third line of activity of the association will be to work out a solution of the problem of the adjustment of the home to the job. This is a problem not only of the woman who has a home and wants a job, but of the woman who has a job and wants a home.

Simplification of the task of running a household will be studied, and how work can be eliminatted in the home without destroying or detracting from the fundamentals that go to make up the intimacy and real value of home life. Community nurseries, kitchens, and schools will be considered in their relation to this phase of the problem.

Also there is the possibility of eventually bringing about greater flexability in the economic system—an adjustment whereby everybody who works will not necessarily work the same hours every day and the same days every week. Part-time jobs for women who also have homes to look after come under this head, and likewise the question of women entering into competition with men in seeking employment and the adjustments that will be necessary.

This problem of the home and the job is admittedly a most difficult one. Ever since woman first undertook to step outside the role of housewife to which she was committed by the traditions and practices of centuries, the cry has been raised that it meant the breaking up of the home. It was even heard when women first insisted that they be permitted to learn to read and write! And it probably will be heard a century or two from now.

That a woman can have a career and yet be a mother and the head of a household, however, is proved by the many of the leaders in the Panhellenic movement. Perhaps one whose record in that line is most conspicuous is Mrs. Lillian Moller Gilbreth, president of Gilbreath, Inc., consulting engineers in management.

In the brief space of a little more than a quarter of a century, Mrs. Gilbreth has taken four or five college degrees; organized, developed, and managed a big business; written several books and numberous articles; given time and effort to the affairs of various national and international organizations; and—managed a home and mothered a family of twelve children, all but one of whom are now living!

Sadie had said something in her sapient way. . . .. What was it? . . . . Oh, yes! "Girls don't like lame puppies hanging around. They like to be managed. There's a little bit of truth in this sheik and cave-man stuff."

That was it. The thought possessed him now. It was, he knew, even at the moment, a long first step in the worldly education of Julian Reed. Again he knit his brows. Lame puppy! . . Of course! Yes! . . . . Hmm!

As it had happened, no one in the troupe had seen Julian when in the grip of an overmastering idea. They had seen him only during the forlornest confusion of his life. That he understood perfectly. Always from that cold corner of his brain he could look in at himself. And he wasn't just the one kind of person.

He heard Hester's bright laugh. Suddenly it stopped. He didn't turn. He didn't need to know that just then she must have seen the olive car and himself in it.

"I can live out an idea," he was thinking. "I can live out a thought as well as the next man." He wished he could stop trembling. Their voices were very near. A deep breath helped. Another! He must be careful not to over do it. Just steady . . . steady.

He greeted them with a quiet smile. Hester seemed to hesitate an instant.

"Hop in!" said Julian. He found that he could smile. And in a moment her warm little body was close to his own. Jim coolly crowded in beside her. Joe caught on to the running board.

Jim and the crew were setting up the canvas wall about the enclosure. A motor truck roared in at intervals, with folding chairs from a convenient undertaking establishment. Hester and Joe stood on the stage while J. Murry Watt paced the ground in front, holding forth in impassioned oratory, for the young man's benefit, regarding the art of the actor. At times he interrupted himself to put them briskly through one or another of their scenes, for the erstwhile leading man with Modjeska was by no means wholly a spender of time. He did know his theater.

Julian, meantime, perched on a none-to-secure stepladder at the rear of the stage, was hanging the two sets of curtains, which, draped this way and that, provided settings for the various plays and framed the sloping canvas sky at the rear. Jim, all practical and impersonal energy, had set him at it. Only once or twice did he glance at the players who moved about almost at the foot of the ladder. He saw Henry Harper come from the men's tent, minus a collar and with lather on his face, to run through a scene with Joe, and then heard the dry, cackling voice with which Henry could so easily, always, move an audience to laughter. Lester was there, as well, for a time. But what gave interest, even color, to the rehearsal—from the first, and not without a rising bitterness, Julian sensed the fact—was the aptitude of Joe for the work assigned to him. Self-assurance, indeed, was his in plenty. He moved easily and with grace. And his voice, as Jim had pointed out, rang with a natural resonance. Hester seemed positively happy over the promise he gave. And more than once Murry Watt uttered words of encouragement.

Ohioans Will Seek Fund to Construct Giant Dirigible

AKRON, O., Dec. 10.—Ohio senators and representatives will seek an appropriation from the present congress with which to construct an airship of 6,500,000 cubic feet capacity, it became known here today.

Such a dirigible would be three times as large as the ill-fated Shenandoah.

Two such ships already have been authorized by the government and plans prepared by Zeppelin experts employed by the Goodyear Tire & Rubber company, have been submitted for approval by federal agencies.

The Piercing Pains of Neuritis Can Now Be Stopped

In Twenty-four Hours Pains Cease and You Get Rest and Comfort Again

Torturing pains—the kind that pierce and burn and never seem to let up—that rob a man of his sleep—that make him just a bag of nerves and all worn out.

Those are the pains that dope and coal tar products can only relieve. You've got to get something more lasting.

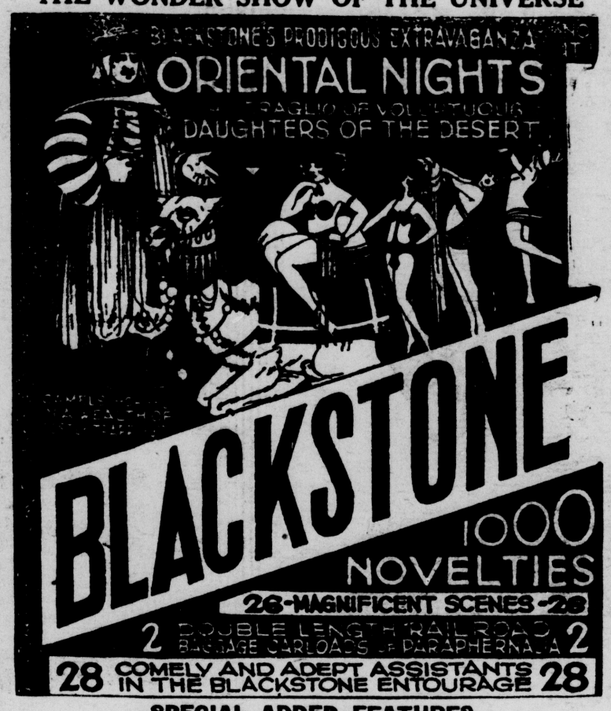

The quickest, safest and surest way to get rid of the persistent, nerve-racking pains of Neuritis is to get a bottle of Allenrhu Special Formula No. 2. Be sure you get No. 2, which comes in capsule form. Take these little dark green capsules as directed and notice how in about 24 hours they have considerably reduced if not entirely banished those severe, torturing pains that have caused you so many sleepless nights. Continue for two or three days more or until the pains have entirely disappeared.

It doesn't matter how long you may have suffered or whether your Neuritis is in the shoulder, arm, neck or legs, Allenrhu Special Formula No. 2 will stop the torture and give you speedy relief. J. D. Holloway and Mathews Medicine Store or any good druggist will be glad to supply you.
